MEN VS. BULLDOZERS — Herbert Miller, bulldozer operator, heeds shouted order of Mario Ghilotti, his boss, to "shut it off" as Gate 5 houseboat and ark residents clamber aboard the machine to prevent its clearing undeveloped streets. This confrontation was the nearest to actual violence as the county moved in on the houseboat community yesterday afternoon.

WILLING HELPERS — After reaching an agreement with the county that their floating homes would be spared if they cleared debris from the streets, Gate 5 residents hove to with a will. Here, they carry off big timbers. Nearly 50 law officers who showed up to enforce county clearing orders stood by as threatened violence turned into cooperation.

HAYAKAWA'S PROBLEMS

Teachers Threaten To Strike Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Plagued by violence and a student strike since last fall, San Francisco State College now faces a strike by the militant teachers union when Christmas vacation ends Monday morning.

Leaders of Local 1352 of the American Federation of Teachers agreed to meet over the weekend with representatives of the state college system's board of trustees, but warned if the talks fail a strike would "effectively close down" the campus.

The talks were in recess yesterday after the union charged the trustees refused to negotiate their demands, including educational reforms, a resolution of student grievances, a stronger voice for the faculty in college administration and a written contract.

LIKE STUDENTS?

"The trustees are doing exactly what they criticized the student groups for doing — refusing to negotiate," said union president Gary Hawkins. He said the refusal was "what may be the most hopeless negotiating situation in the history of this city."

But a spokesman for the trustees said state law required them only to "meet and confer" with faculty groups and contended some of the union demands could not be met unless the law were changed.

The union, representing about a quarter of the college's 1,100 faculty members, claimed "quite overwhelming" support from union and nonunion teachers after a union survey of the faculty.

HAYAKAWA ORDERS

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa, meanwhile, tightened restrictions on holding rallies and unauthorized outdoor meetings in hopes of preventing a renewal of violence between striking students and police.

He prepared a proclamation forbidding "rallies, parades, hootenanies, hoe-downs, chivarees and all other public events likely to disturb the studious in their reading or reflection."

The semanticist said the ban would apply to the large open quadrangle in the center of the crowded urban campus. He scheduled a news conference today to disclose further plans for reopening the school.

Students Stir New Tensions In Mideast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Lebanon's 15,000 university students staged their first joint strike today, demanding mobilization for war and a tougher line against Israel.

They also vowed no return to classes until punishment is meted out to persons responsible for allowing Israel's commando raid against Beirut Airport a week ago.

In Jordan, where King Hussein long has taken a stronger vocal line against Israel, the government today hanged two men as spies. Jordanian officials said Zahran Youssef Ismail Kharroub, 49, and Zubei Abdul Hafiz Abdullash Kharroub, 39, were executed in Amman's central prison after admitting being paid spies for Israel since 1964.

Also in Amman, a military spokesman said Jordanian and Israeli troops fought a 45-minute heavy artillery and mortar duel last night in the area of the Damya Bridge along their Jordan River ceasefire line. The spokesman said there were no Jordanian casualties. He said fire was seen in some Israeli gun positions.

In Jerusalem, a military spokesman said today there had been no incidents "on all ceasefire lines during the past 24 hours."

Nixon Completes Top Bracket State Team

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon rounded out his top level team for the State Department today, picking an administrator and two career diplomats. He also said he wants Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to stay on for a time in Vietnam.

Nixon confirmed his choice for the No. 2 job in the State Department: Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Elliott L. Richardson, 48, a man who, like Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers, has little foreign policy experience.

The president-elect said Richardson has demonstrated "an immense capability as an administrator" and has "a broad interest in foreign policy."

Rogers said Richardson, as undersecretary of state, will be his "alter ego" and as such will be involved in all foreign policy.

The president-elect picked U. Alexis Johnson, 60, now ambassador to Japan, as undersecretary of state for political affairs, and Richard E. Pederson, 43, deputy U.S. representative at the United Nations Security Council, to be counselor at the State Department.

Ambassador Johnson will return to Japan, Nixon said, then stop off in Vietnam on returning to the U.S. to confer with Bunker, to see if he will stay on.

"We believe that at this time a change in ambassadors would not be wise," the president-elect told a news conference at the Hotel Pierre.

Houseboat Dwellers Turn Bulldozer's Wrath Aside

Cheerful Work Party Lowers The Barricades

By ANNE BARDWELL

A standoff confrontation between county officials and Gate 5 houseboat dwellers at Waldo Point resolved itself yesterday into a cooperative effort to clean county streets of debris.

A last-minute compromise prevented what threatened to be bloody conflict pitting California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies, called in by the county to remove persons blocking the way of a street-clearing bulldozer, against houseboat dwellers fearful that the county would take their homes along with the debris.

In the peace-saving move, houseboat residents agreed to remove the debris if county crews agreed not to set foot or equipment in the Arques Yacht Harbor.

Within minutes of the agreement, more than 30 waterfront residents were sloshing through the mud hauling out debris. Within a half hour, a third of Sonoma Street was essentially clear except for a large tin shed, and county crews were moving the debris into refuse trucks.

"This is beautiful," said one county official. "I only hope it continues."

Earlier in the day, 15 waterfront residents promised to oppose the county, but several backed off when they learned that Donlon J. Arques, owner of the property, had given the county the right of access via his private road to the three largely underwater streets — Sonoma and Monterey Streets and Humboldt Avenue — under cleanup orders.

The streets, which have never been developed, were covered with debris — old mattress springs, mirrors, tin sheds, lumber, trunks, a few cars and miscellaneous metal so corroded it was difficult to determine its original use.

Repeated reassurances by Michael King of the county public works department that the county meant only to clear the streets and not to touch any occupied dwellings, no matter how tattered, did not relieve the fears of the group.

From early in the morning, the group, headed by Henry Jefferson Sudduth IV (Buddha) and Piro Caro, waited in bitter cold for the county to finish its work at Gate 6 and come to Gate 5.

At Gate 6 there had been no opposition. In fact, most residents were satisfied with the county's efforts, noting that

Table To Be Round, But Split How?

PARIS (UPI)—Western diplomats said today all four sides had agreed on a round table for the expanded Vietnam war talks but still disagreed whether the table would be divided.

Diplomats close to the stalled talks expressed optimism the long hassle over procedures for the opening of the conference may be reaching its final stage.

The Communists yesterday announced their willingness to drop all remaining procedural issues deadlocking the talks, including officially calling the conference a "four-party" meeting, if the allies would agree to a solid circular table.

And with both sides willing to sit at a circular table, the only issue that remained was whether it will be symbolically marked off or divided to

WHO IS THAT JUST HANGING AROUND TREE?

Somebody was hanged in effigy near the Civic Center yesterday, but investigating sheriff's officers couldn't say who it was.

Whoever it was intended to be, the dummy, suspended from an oak tree, was so lifelike that it brought a rash of calls to the sheriff's office from commuters who were startled as they passed by on Highway 101.

Picket Lines Begin At Oil Refineries

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Some 60,000 workers at oil refineries from coast-to-coast walked off of their jobs today in a dispute over wages.

A. F. Grospiron, president of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said no incidents have been reported in the strike which was called after negotiations on a proposed 23-month contract failed to reach an agreement.

UNION GOALS

The union is asking an increase of 72 cents an hour, plus a variety of fringe benefits and improved working conditions. Oil workers now earn an average of $3.80 an hour. A two-year contract between the union and 435 oil industry units expired Tuesday.

A union spokesman said it would be several days before the strike's effectiveness could be analyzed and added that it might be a month before it would be felt by consumers.

EFFECT DENIED

Meanwhile, spokesmen for major oil companies denied that the strike would create any gasoline or fuel oil shortages, contending that most refineries would be kept producing by supervisory and non-union personnel. They pointed out that operations had been highly automated in recent years.

Pickets appeared at refineries on Puget Sound, Washington, along the California coast and at vast Texas oil centers, in southern Michigan where temperatures hovered near zero and at refineries clustered along the Eastern Coast, particularly in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

REP. ADAM CLAYTON POWELL
Gets Congress seat back

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 91st Congress gets down to business in earnest Monday with Adam Clayton Powell back in the House, a more liberalized Senate leadership and enough immediate work to possibly provide clues on the mood that will greet the new President.

After a joint session with the Senate to certify presidential election returns, the House is expected to take up Monday the question of pay raises for congressmen, cabinet members and the President.

The Senate faces the biennial effort to gut the filibuster rule, plus debate on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty that President Johnson wants ratified before he turns over the White House to Richard M. Nixon Jan. 20.

ASTRONAUTS TO VISIT

The Apollo 8 astronauts Thursday will tell a joint session of their lunar-girdling trip.

Capping a day of party caucuses and swearing-in ceremonies yesterday the House voted after five hours of debate and preliminary balloting to seat the ousted Powell if he agreed to pay a $25,000 fine and accept loss of seniority.

Powell, banished from the 90th Congress after being accused of misusing federal funds, accepted the conditions, was sworn in and took the seat that represents half a million predominantly black voters in New York's Harlem.

"Maybe I'm an emancipated slave," said the Negro congressman. "It might be a good idea if everybody had to pay $25,000 to get in here."

CELLER FOR POWELL

The resolution to seat Powell was supported by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the special committee that investigated Powell in 1967 after charges that included misusing travel funds and putting his nonworking wife on his payroll.

"He who is without sin in this chamber, let him cast the first stone," said Celler. "Judge not that ye be not judged—especially in regard to loved ones on the payroll and travel."

Final vote on the resolution was 252 to 160. Powell, who lost his chairmanship of the Education and Labor Committee, will have the fine deducted from his paycheck.

For a man of Powell's past high-stepping style the punishment might have seemed too humiliating. But he swallowed it, and came forward at once to be sworn into office by speaker John W. McCormack, apparently reconciled to punishment after sitting out most of the past two years of the 90th Congress on a Caribbean island without pay and with very little attention.

Still, some of the old Adam flashed at a news conference after the long day of debate and voting. He called the punishment "racist" and said he wanted to talk to his lawyers before deciding to accept it without a fight.

"Do you plan to behave any differently?" he was asked at a news conference after his seating.

"That's like asking me if I plan to stop beating my wife," he replied. "I'll behave the same as I always did."

WORK AHEAD

Yesterday's sessions of the 91st Congress' two chambers marked only their preliminary organization, which will take several weeks. They will meet in joint session noon Monday to count the electoral votes and declare Richard M. Nixon officially elected President. Legislation to give him a pay raise as chief executive will also be taken up.

Standing behind a railing and smoking a little cigar, Powell watched five hours of bitter wrangling as the 434 members who took their oaths earlier debated whether to let him take his.

He was asked if he would put his wife back on his House payroll.

"I haven't picked my staff yet," Powell replied.

"Do you feel chastened?"

How They Voted

Pueblo's Crewmen Muster For Purple Heart Awards

The 11th man wounded when the Communists seized the Navy electronic monitoring ship last Jan. 23 did not live to get his decoration.

The Purple Heart due Fireman Duane Hodges of Creswell, Ore., will be awarded to his family at a later date. Hodges died shortly after the Pueblo was attacked, in what the Navy says was an illegal action carried out in international waters.

The question of whether other members of the Pueblo's 81-man crew are eligible for Purple Hearts on the basis of beatings inflicted during their 11 month imprisonment in North Korea is still open, a Navy spokesman said.

He explained that official criteria for the Purple Heart state it can be awarded to a serviceman injured "as the result of maltreatment by his captors while a prisoner of war."

"I'm sure it's under discussion," the Navy spokesman said.

The list of men receiving Purple Hearts today reflected the Pueblo's mission as a monitor of North Korean radio and radar traffic. Three of those decorated were electronic technicians, an unusual number for such a small vessel. A fourth was a radio operator.

Coming into the ceremony, Bucher was the only member of the 82-man Pueblo complement who had not been released by doctors to go on liberty.

The Pueblo's skipper still is recovering from a respiratory ailment and general nervous fatigue. He still is confined to the officers' quarters at the hospital.

The other 81 men are eligible to go on liberty three nights out of four, the Navy said.

Debriefings of the Pueblo officers and crew continue on a regular schedule every day. No date has been set for a court of inquiry into Bucher's handling of the Pueblo and the conduct of his men while in North Korean captivity.

The sailors learned yesterday they will be able to keep the one physical souvenir they brought from North Korea—their prison clothing and tennis shoes.

Communications Technician Ralph McClintock, of Milton, Mass., said the clothing was important to him. "This experience is something we should always remember even though there are parts of it that are best forgotten," McClintock said.

"Every time we look at these clothes its a reminder of how good we live in America," said Fireman John A. Mitchell of Dixon, Calif.

Cold Wave Grips Nation

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cold wave warnings were up today for Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio as winter refused to release its icy grip on the nation.

Light snow was reported in Atlanta, Ga., early today as the temperature hovered around freezing.

Heavy snow was forecast in northeastern Ohio, prompting travelers warnings. Snow already was on the ground in parts of western New York and Michigan.

Below zero readings were common from eastern Montana to Wisconsin and from Kansas to Indiana and scattered areas of New england.

Travelers warnings also were up in parts of Washington and Idaho where freezing rain and snow glazed roads. That combination continued to harass the upper elevations of the Pacific Northwest.

Victims Return After Black Power Hijacking

MIAMI (AP) — The victims of the year's first gunpoint airliner ride to Cuba returned to American soil yesterday, leaving behind a Black Power advocate who appeared a little awed by his own act.

The crew of the Eastern Airlines jet returned with 15 ill passengers yesterday morning and the other 122 passengers came later in two other planes sent from Miami.

The passengers said a Negro gunman—accompanied by a woman and an infant—grabbed a white 2-year-old boy, Alan Levy, as a hostage before dashing to the cockpit to take over the flight.

A passenger, Larry Wenzel, 18, of Hollywood, Fla., said the man shouted "Black Power Black Power!" as he ran up the aisle, dangling young Levy by one arm.

Capt. Dennis Vanhuss, the plane's pilot, said the gunman was almost hysterical when he pushed into the cabin on the New York to Miami flight Thursday night and said: "You're not the captain any longer. I am. You're a lieutenant."

"He constantly threatened to kill us and the child if we didn't take him to Cuba," Vanhuss reported to newsmen on his return. "He calmed down later and seemed a little awed by what he was doing."

MOTHER GIVES CHASE

The mother of the hostage, Beverly Levy, 25, of Massapequa, N.Y., ran after the hijacker when he grabbed her son.

"You have my baby! You have my baby!" she screamed.

"My thoughts were that they were going to shoot him," Mrs. Levy—seven months pregnant—said after returning to Miami.

Bob Piccinni, a 21-year-old New Yorker attending the University of Miami, said the hijacker entered the tourist section of the jet burdened with luggage, extra clothing and a baby carriage.

The hijacker sat across the aisle from Piccinni, but seldom spoke. Piccinni said the man read Ebony, a Negro magazine, before going to a washroom to change clothes. He emerged wearing a gaudy, African-style shirt and a beanie. His woman companion, yelling and carrying an infant papoose-style on her back, ran forward with the man toward the cockpit, passengers said.

Once inside the cockpit, Vanhuss said, the gunman let a stewardess take the screaming hostage.

Illness of several passengers apparently was the reason 15 were permitted to return on the hijacked craft, a departure from custom.

BEAUTY ON FLIGHT

Among the early returnees was Countess Cristina Paolozzi Bellin, an Italian beauty who was dropped from the New York Social Register after posing semi-nude for a 1962 Harper's Bazaar advertisement and later played in the film "La Dolce Vita." Her two children and their nurse accompanied her.

The incident was strikingly similar to a Nov. 4 hijacking in which a Negro took over a jet carrying 57 other passengers and a crew of seven.

Morris Bedlin, a Miami Beach taxi driver, reported that the man told passengers, "You've got a new captain." Bedlin said the hijacker claimed the seizure was part of a black nationalist movement. "He said: 'We're going to take over a new ship every day for 10 days,'" Bedlin related. The gunman also changed aboard the plane from conservative dress to garb associated with black militant groups.

CONGRESS MOVES

Before the bulk of the passengers returned yesterday, a bill was introduced in Congress to provide a $30,000 reward for apprehension and conviction of sky pirates. The measure, presented by Rep. Louis C. Wyman (R-N.H.), also calls for the arming of plane crews and installation of a bullet-proof door between the passengers and the flight deck.

Twenty American planes were hijacked to Cuba in 1968. Several other attempts were thwarted.

Judge Studies Politics Claim In Draft Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. District Judge George B. Harris had under study today a defense motion that the draft refusal charge against Eric Whitehorn was politically motivated and should be dismissed.

Whitehorn, 18, charged with failure to register for the draft when he became 18 in October, contends he made his decision on the basis of the moral teachings of his mother.

The mother, Evelyn Whitehorn, a Palo Alto real estate agent, has asked to be prosecuted instead of her son, because he was merely following her advice.

Aubrey Grossman, attorney for Whitehorn, asked Harris to dismiss the charge, contending it was politically motivated because of the large number of draft refusals in the San Francisco federal district.

He said this was also apparent in the "incredible haste" with which the indictment was returned.

Grossman also argued it was "dire, dangerous and deadly" to prosecute the youth in view of his mother's teachings.

Mrs. Whitehorn contends that her son was legally too young to sign a legal contract or marry without her consent, so he could not submit to the draft without her permission.

Sophia Loren Presents Son

GENEVA (AP) — "I feel like a new person," Sophia Loren said today as she presented her baby son, Carlo Jr. at a news conference. "I have never possessed anything so beautiful."

"He's a real Ponti—see how he has his father's looks," the 34-year-old film star told newsmen.

Fatigue and a slight fever failed to prevent the 34-year-old Italian movie star from attending the one premiere she has dreamed of for 11 years.

She showed the baby in a cramped lecture hall at the maternity clinic of Geneva's Cantonal Hospital. The baby, her first, was born at the hospital Dec. 29.

Twin Peaks Crash

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thirty-three passengers were injured yesterday when a streetcar jumped its tracks at 60 miles per hour on busy Market Street shortly after exiting the Twin Peaks tunnel, out of control.

The streetcar, carrying a full load of passengers, collided with a delivery van, spun wildly around an intersection and then smashed into two parked cars.

After the initial smashup halted streetcar traffic, another crash occurred when one streetcar rear-ended a stalled car inside the tunnel. Several persons were injured in that crash but, again, none seriously.

PORTO EMPEDOCLE, Sicily (AP) — Italian customs police chased a Greek ship, the 10,000-ton Maria, early today and forced it to a stop with machine-gun fire that wounded the skipper.

Police said they seized the ship and found 10 tons of illegal cigarettes aboard.

Nasser Kin Hurt

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser's younger brother was seriouly injured in a car accident on the Cairo-Alexandria highway, a hospital report said today.

Leithy Abdel Nasser was driving with his family to the port city when his car overturned last night.

Shah Speaks Up

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Shah of Iran, in what he said was his first official statement on the Bahrein dispute, declared today that his country would not use force to take over the Persian Gulf sheikdom "without the consent of its people."

"I won't go into details now," he said when asked whether he favored a plebiscite for the British protectorate. Iran's relations with Saudi Arabia have been clouded by Iranian claims to Behrein.

Thailand Bus Holdup

BANGKOK (AP) — Police said a gang of 50 bandits opened fire on a bus yesterday, killing one passenger and wounding the driver, because the bus company had refused an extortion demand for $10,000.

A police patrol caught up with the fleeing gunmen as they were crossing the Pattani River in sampans and reported four of the robbers were shot. Their bodies were not recovered.

Mummers Parade

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Some 16,000 fancy-dressed Mummers strutted and cakewalked up Broad Street today in a belated salute to the New Year.

The participants didn't allow 17 degree temperatures and brisk winds to postpone their parade for a second time, as it had New Year's Day.

Bombs Hunted

RED BLUFF (AP)—A search for highly dangerous fragmentation bombs continued today along California Highway 36 east of Red Bluff.

The hunt was touched off by discovery of eight 20-pound bombs scattered by an truck explosion during World War II.

Authorities said the bombs were spread when a truck carrying Army explosives caught fire near Paynes Creek and exploded in 1942. Army personnel thought at the time that they had recovered all the bombs.

New Job For Chief

Panther Dislaimer

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Black Panther Party wants to disassociate itself from persons who rob gas stations and taverns using the militant organization as a base.

National Panther chairman Bobby Seale said yesterday that a number of persons have been expelled from the organization for getting involved as criminal suspects.

The Panther leader said that "conspirators and opportunists" have joined the party to take advantage of it for their own private excursions into crime. He said such persons were "counter-revolutionaries." The party has a rule forbidding members from stealing "even a needle or a piece of bread," he said.

Siamese Twins

MADRID (AP) — Siamese twin sisters born here Jan. 1 have a common heart and liver and doctors said today surgical separation would be "doubtful and difficult."

The girls, Manuela and Maria, are linked by the thorax and abdomen. Dr. Julio Monereo, chief surgeon at the La Paz Clinic, said the girls are doing well and their physiological functions are normal.

Swedish Quad Dies

STOCKHOLM (AP) — One of the Swedish quadruplets born on New Years Day, a boy, died here early today.

The remaining infants, two boys and a girl, and the mother, Mrs. Ulla-Britt Jansson, all were reported in good condition.

Spain Cedes Land

FEZ, Morocco (AP) — Spain returned the province of Ifni to Morocco today after 108 years.

The enclave of 741 square miles on Morocca's Atlantia coast was was turned over to Morocco in a formal treaty signing in the Palais Du Batha.

Oil Well Sealed

GRANADA HILLS (AP) — Oil workers say they have finally sealed a troublesome well that leaked natural gas for a week after firemen extinguished a five-day fire.

The workers dumped water and mud down the well's 8,000-foot shaft yesterday in a field leased by the Getty Oil Co. in the foothills north of here.

They said 500,000 cubic feet of natural gas had been escaping from the well daily.

workmen even helped move valuable timbers and other salvageable material off the rights-of-way so that it would not be hauled away.

A few were disgruntled, and they appeared at Gate 5 in the afternoon, warning residents there that there would not be time to save anything off the streets.

One, Peter Day, an artist, claimed the workmen had hauled off four tons of valuable marble he owned although he had asked for only two hours in which to move it.

"This will happen here. Don't believe them," he warned.

Still the hard core waited. Blocking the private Arques Road was a truck with a three-decker shake shingle camper superstructure.

Shortly after 1 p.m. the bulldozer appeared. As it approached the harbor entrance, David Wolf, a Gate 6 resident, lay down in front of it, placing his head under its blade. As the bulldozer stopped, the blade grazed Wolf's head, leaving a dirty smudge.

Three others immediately leaped on the bulldozer and sat on top of its bucket, daring the driver to continue.

"Turn it off, turn it off," shouted Mario M. Ghilotti, project contractor. "We dont want anybody hurt here."

Then came the wait. Protestors surrounded and sat on the bulldozer while county officials conferred.

Lawmen were called. First came the highway patrol, then the sheriff's deputies. More conferences, and then the first warning — five minutes to leave peacefully or the demonstrators would be removed by force.

The five minutes became 10 and then 20 as county officials tried to avoid bloodshed. The demonstrators warned they would fight before they would allow the bulldozers to come in.

A larger crowd gathered as passers-by were attracted by the confrontation.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest was called for a legal opinion. He appeared and said to give the protesters five minutes and then move them out.

Then T. J. Nelsen, a Gate 6 boatbuilder, offered the compromise. Would the county stay out of the yacht harbor if the houseboat residents hauled the debris out to the trucks?

Yes, said Forest. Nelsen approached the other side.

"Sure, if we get to choose our own debris," yelled one man. Then, with laughter, the work began. Out came the mattress springs, the lumber, the old mirrors.

Groups of men carried heavy frames, perhaps once parts of sailing vessels. Others began to tear down a tin shed. The pile of debris at the foot of the bulldozer grew higher.

At dusk the work was still continuing, less than one-third finished. Sonoma Street, 60 by 330 feet, was partially cleared. Still untouched was one block of Humboldt Avenue and a portion of Monterey Street.

Whether the cooperation continues on Monday was a question upon which no one, county and waterfront resident alike, was willing to speculate. But yesterday afternoon no one really cared.

any picketing on the quadrangle but permit "reasonable informational picketing" in other places. Such picketing, however, "is expected to be silent."

Groups seeking to picket near the campus "must have arrangements with city officials to utilize sidewalks and streets" on the edge of campus, located in a crowded residential area at the southern edge of the city.

Hayakawa said the speakers platform on the quadrangle may not be used and that "no substitute locations on the central campus are authorized" for rallies.

The new rulings were imposed for the period from Jan. 6, when classes reopen, until Jan. 31.

Leaders of the rebellious students also plotted their own strategy for the return of the school's 18,000 students to the campus. They said nothing had been settled during the holiday break despite the efforts of several outside groups at mediation.

Used Car Stolen

Theft of a 1964 blue Chevrolet Malibu, license VLL-984, from a used car lot at 269 Jacoby Street, San Rafael, was reported Thursday by an employee, Darrel D. Altermatt, police said.

WANTED — Ruth Eisemann Schier, 26, charged with participating in the abduction of Barbara Jane Mackle, 20, of Coral Gables, Fla., has been added to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." She is the first woman ever to make the list.

Storm Cuts Audubon's Census List

Heavy rain and winds kept Marin bird watchers from spotting as many species of birds as last year during the Christmas season bird count sponsored nationally by the Audubon Society.

Raymond Higgs of San Francisco, who tallied the results, today said that about 190 species were counted at Tomales Bay last Saturday and about 165 at Drake's Bay on Sunday. Last year the totals were 194 and 182.

Higgs said the Coast Guard would not allow the bird watchers to take out an ocean boat because of high winds, and counters were hindered also by rain-swollen streams.

Although no rare bird was spotted last week, "some interesting birds, including white-tailed kites, old squaw and harlequin ducks and several kinds of owls" were seen, Higgs said.

About 70 persons from over Northern California participated in the first day's count and 60 persons on the second day, according to Higgs.

Mobile Homes Denial Appealed

Petaluma City Council, meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m., will be asked to overturn planning commission refusal of rezoning to permit a mobile home park on Corona Road between Highway 101 and North McDowell Boulevard.

David D. Young, a Novato developer, had requested his 80 acres be changed from limited industrial to multiple family residential to permit the mobile home park. The planning commission on Dec. 17 split 2-to-2 on the rezoning, automatically defeating it.

The council will also consider an ordinance to establish sewer connection fees for mobile homes, requested by Vice Mayor Kenneth C. Colin.

Adult Classes Will Begin Monday Night

Courses in arts and crafts, including one on film viewing, will be offered starting Monday at the Redwood High Adult School.

The film course will include the movies "The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner," "The Organizer" and "The Blue Angel" and starts at 7:30 p.m. Other courses include beginning jewelry, advanced jewelry, advanced knitting, beginning knitting, beginning and intermediate clothing, and tailoring.

Cluster Housing Plan Due Review

A public hearing of a zoning ordinance amendment to allow cluster housing development is scheduled before the Larkspur City Council at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The council also will hear a progress report on widening of Magnolia Avenue.

Driver Injured

A 42-year-old Oakland man suffered minor injuries when his car struck a utility pole on East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Highway 17 at 4:30 a.m. today. Richard H. C. Chun was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises.

Permit Due Study

An application by the Tri-State Development Co. to operate a service station and car wash at 111 Red Hill Avenue will be discussed at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Monday before the San Anselmo Planning Commission at city hall.

Man, Woman Face Varied Charges

A San Rafael woman was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia, but was subsequently released on her own recognizance.

Shirley Jean Fabian, 23, of 18 Crestwood Drive, and a companion, Robert Edney, 25, who gave his address at 1567 Fourth Street, San Rafael, were also booked for investigation of possession of stolen property and false evidence of automobile registration.

Police reported they noticed the two sitting in a car at 14 Sentinel Court, the scene of multiple drug arrests Dec. 3, about 5 a.m. today. A check on the car revealed it bore license plates stolen in San Francisco, they said.

While the two were being booked, a syringe, hypodermic needles and a substance believed to be methamphethmine were found in Miss Fabian's purse.

Edney was also released on his own recognizance. Both were scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Edney was also involved in a report to San Rafael police Thursday.

Gunther Hagel of 161 Grannlee Road reported his men were cleaning Edney's former apartment at 1567 Fourth Street when Edney appeared and asked where his belongings were, police said. He was told they had been placed in storage, Hagel told police.

Edney became angry and kicked walls, doors and cupboards, causing about $150 damage, Hagel told police.

Larkspur Requests Quarry Property Within Limits

The City of Larkspur's request to annex the 75-acre Hutchinson Quarry east of Highway 101 north of Corte Madera Creek will be considered by the Local Agency Formation Commission at 8 p.m. Thursday in the supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

In other business, the Novato Sanitary District seeks to annex the 6.7-acre Pioneer Memorial Park adjoining Simmons Lane at the intersection with Virginia Avenue, the City of San Rafael wants to absorb 1.5 acres owned by Joseph Arrighi near the intersection of Jacoby Street and Bellam Boulevard at San Quentin Wye, and the Tiburon Sanitary District seeks to annex the Raymond E. Weeks property, a 1.82-acre lot at 949 Tiburon Boulevard.

State College Expands Offering

Sonoma State College will offer Marin residents a greater number of extension courses during the spring semester, according to Dr. Carroll Mjelde, dean of educational services.

Courses, which begin the week of Feb. 10, will include history, education, physical science, art, music and physical education. Classes will be located in San Rafael, Novato, Kentfield, Larkspur, Corte Madera, San Anselmo, Mill Valley and Tiburon.

County Jail Inmate Injured By Tumble

An 18-year-old inmate of the Marin County Jail, awaiting sentencing on a joy-riding charge, fell while climbing into the top bunk in his cell yesterday and was hospitalized with a concussion.

Meeting Not Held

The Inverness Improvement Association did not meet last night due to lack of a quorum, according to Allan D. Talford, president. The meeting was tentatively rescheduled for 8 p.m. Jan. 17 at Vladimir's Moravian Restaurant, Inverness.

Mill Valley Youth Accused Of Shoplift

Dennis A. Brown, 21, of 111 Nelson Avenue, Mill Valley, was arrested by the security guard at Montgomery Ward and Co. in the Corte Madera Shopping Center yesterday on suspicion of taking a $15 sweater, Corte Madera police reported.

Brown was booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of petty theft, with bail set at $315.

He said his diet for the five years primarily was rice and fish twice a day. He said "There were never any overt threats" on his life.

The 1960 West Point graduate would not go into details about his escape. "The guard became unconscious," he said. Then he ran to a helicopter he heard near where he was being held in the Mekong Delta and was whisked away.

"I celebrated Christmas, New Year's and everything else on the 31st when I got away," he said.

Rowe said he already has asked to be returned to Vietnam.

"I feel that the experience I have gained over the past five years would be beneficial and would enable me to do something of benefit in the effort which is being made in South Vietnam," he said.

"I've gained a wealth of knowledge which I never would have had and never could have gained in any other manner."

He never heard any news that wasn't propaganda. Radio Hanoi, the Viet Cong's "Radio Liberation" and the Viet Cong cadre constantly reported Communist victories. There was never any word of Communist defeats, he said, adding that he never believed any of the propaganda.

He told how the Communists call President Johnson "the No. 1 bad man" and how the Red Cross is considered "an evil lackey of the U.S. imperialists."

He said he did learn of President John F. Kennedy's assassination soon after it happened from Viet Cong cadre. But he never was told that President Johnson was elected, although he knew that he was, because of repeated Communist broadcasts criticizing the U.S. President.

preserve U.S. and South Vietnamese demands the conference be "two party" negotiations.

The diplomats said there had been such progress toward breaking the deadlock that has held up the start of the talks since Nov. 6 that a final agreement could come as early as next week.

The closest the two sides have come to final agreement on the table issue is a proposal by the United States, approved by South Vietnam, to meet around a solid circular table divided by a thin stripe of green baize.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong have rejected that proposal and five others presented by the United States for a divided round table.

Yesterday, the Viet Cong offered to drop calling the conference a four-party affair and any further arguments about labels, flags, name plates and speaking order. Diplomats interpreted the offer as a sign of Viet Cong willingness to bargain.

Fairfax Council Creates New Job

The Fairfax City Council last night created the position of stenographer clerk for Fairfax and set Jan. 17 as the deadline for applications, according to Mayor Robert R. Souza.

Mayor Souza said only three persons attended the special public hearing held to formally establish the post and the council approved it unanimously.

The steno-clerk will replace Mrs. Dell Blodgett, administrative secretary, who resigned.

Women Supporting Strikers At State

The Marin County Chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom today announced its backing of striking students at San Francisco State College. (See story on page 1.)

Marie Ingerman, president, said the chapter passed a resolution at its Dec. 18 meeting endorsing the strike aims and urging that the campus be closed to avert further bloodshed, that all police be kept off campus, that "meaningful discussion" be conducted with all parties concerned, and ways sought "to meet the justified demands of minority students."

OBITUARIES

James E. Brady Dies At 59

James Edward Brady, a lifelong resident of San Rafael, died yesterday at his home at 320 D Street. He had suffered from a heart condition for some time and Richard W. Madigan, deputy coroner, said death was apparently due to natural causes.

Brady, 59, was retired from Langendorf United Bakeries.

He was a past president of San Rafael Council 10 of the Young Men's Institute and a member of Mount Tamalpais Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Survivors are two sisters, Miss Ann Brady, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. Alice Pasini of Los Angeles.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the mission chapel of St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Rosary will be recited at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

JOHN AITKEN

John Anthony Aitken, 40, of 12 Tyler Street, Novato, died today at a local hospital after a brief illness.

A native of San Rafael, Aitken had lived in Novato for four years. Prior to that he lived in Phoenix, Ariz. He was an operation supervisor for Greyhound Bus Lines in San Francisco.

Survivors are his wife, Jacquelyn Aitken; three children, Robin, Steve and Lori Aitken, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Aitken of Cambria, San Luis Obispo County, and a brother, Richard Aitken of Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

Nature Writer Sued For Divorce

Conservationist author Francois Leydet of Belvedere was sued for divorce in Marin Superior Court yesterday by his wife of 13 years, Patience Leydet.

Mrs. Laydet accused her husband, author of Sierra Club books, of cruelty and causing her "grievous mental and physical suffering." She asked $200 a month support and that the court divide their household furniture between them and award her their Volkswagen bus and her husband their Triumph sports car.

Leydet filed notice with the court that he will not contest his wife's suit.

Leydet has written "Time and the River Flowing: Grand Canyon" and "The Last Redwoods."

Pavilion Painting Discussion Set

The Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday to discuss specifications prepared for painting the inside of Fairfax Pavilion.

At the last meeting the commission approved the suggestion of architect D. Hugh Coleman for a variety of light, warm tones.

Also included in the meeting will be reports from the various standing committees of the commission.

Private Sanitation Plan Is Due Study

A proposal that the Corte Madera Sanitary District operate the combined private sanitation system of Redwood High School and the Fifer industrial tract is scheduled for consideration by the Tamalpais High School District board at 8 p.m. Monday.

Sanitary district officials said the proposal does not involve annexation. The board will meet in the Redwood High School faculty lounge, rather than as usual at district offices.

MILDRED BRODIE

Private funeral was held yesterday for Mildred T. Brodie, 63, of 2441 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, a retired bookkeeper, at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

Miss Brodie was found dead in her home yesterday by her sister, Mrs. Majorie Amos of Tiburon. She died of natural causes after being hospitalized for two months recently, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan.

A native of Oregon, she had lived in Marin County for 45 years, working as a bookkeeper for Diamond National Corp. in San Francisco until retiring about three months ago.

In addition to Mrs. Amos, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Brodie of Campbell, Santa Clara County, and two other sisters, Mrs. Roberta Jorgensen of Campbell, and Mrs. Sharon Dragner of Sunnyvale.

Burial was in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

LAURA HARRINGTON

Laura E. Harrington, 97, of Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Harrington lived with her sister, Mrs. Eva Alderman, at 655 Canyon Road.

A native of Black River Falls, Wis., she came to California 45 years ago. She worked as a secretary for a San Luis Obispo real estate firm until she retired in 1946.

Eighteen years ago she moved to Marin County, living in the Larkspur-Corte Madera area until five years ago when she moved to Novato.

Mrs. Harrington was a widow. In addition to her sister, she is survived by a brother, J. P. June of Viroqua, Wis., and a niece, Mrs. Katherine Scott of Novato, whom she reared.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Chapel of the Chimes, Oakland. Friends may call at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato, through tomorrow evening.

LEILA HAWLEY

Private funeral for Leila M. Hawley of Sonoma, a resident of Marin County for 17 years through 1966, will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary Chapel in San Rafael.

Mrs. Hawley, 65, died Thursday in a local hospital after long illness. She was the wife of Edwin E. Hawley, an engineer. They moved to Sonoma two years ago.

She was born in Nebraska and had resided in California for 40 years.

MRS. GEORGIA W. LAWRENCE

Funeral for Georgia W. Lawrence, wife of former Fairfax Mayor Frank L. Lawrence, will be held Monday at 11 a.m. at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Lawrence died Thursday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

Her husband, a retired Army man, served on both the Fairfax City Council and Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission. They had been Fairfax residents since 1947. The home is at 334 Cascade Drive.

Mrs. Lawrence was born in Montana and had resided in California 50 years.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Sadie Johnsen of Sacramento; three sons, Frank L. Lawrence Jr. of Novato, Merle W. Lawrence of San Anselmo, and Robert W. Lawrence of Sacramento; a daughter, Mrs. Irene Nienkark of Fairfax; three sisters, Helen Johnsen, Roberta B. Johnsen, and Mrs. May Stribling, all of Sacramento, and eight grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills.

MARY LUNDQUIST

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lundquist, 56, of 8 Elm Court, San Anselmo, died yesterday after a long illness.

She was found dead in bed at 7:20 p.m. by her husband, Erik C. Lundquist, an engineer with United Fruit Co. in San Francisco. An autopsy will be performed, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan.

A native of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Lundquist had lived in Marin County for 19 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, John, and twin daughters, Alice and Addie, all of the home; her mother, Mrs. F. G. Dillard of St. Louis, Mo., and two sisters, Mrs. M. A. Shanklin of Ferguson, Mo., and Mrs. William Nierhoff of Lombard, Ill.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

BEATRICE McGRATH

Beatrice McGrath of San Rafael, a Marin County resident 18 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after long illness.

Mrs. McGrath, a nurse, was the wife of Edward C. McGrath, an engineer with the California Department of Water Resources. They resided at 41 Coleman Drive.

Mrs. McGrath was office nurse for Dr. Brooks Pringle of San Rafael for 12 years, and most recently a general duty nurse at Marin General Hospital.

She was born in Nelson, B.C., Canada, and graduated from Royal Jubilee Hospital Nursing College in Victoria, B.C. She came to California from Canada in 1948.

Surviving are her husband; her mother, Frances Staples of Vancouver, B.C.; a brother, Tanner Staples of Edmonton, Alta., Canada, and a sister, Audrey Staples of Vancouver.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Mission Chapel, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton Chapel, San Rafael.

PATRICIA REYNOLDS

Mrs. Patricia W. Reynolds, 38, of 6C Circle Drive, Tiburon, a self-emplyed advertising agent, was found dead today at her home.

She was taken by ambulance to Marin General Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. An autopsy was scheduled.

A native of New York state, she worked for several years in the advertising department of the Ebb Tide, Tiburon weekly newpaper, prior to establishing her own advertising agency. This business, Pat Reynolds and Associates, was declared bankrupt on Dec. 18.

She is survived by a daughter, Melind, 13 and a son, Kevin, 15.

Office Center Again On Planner's Agenda

El Marinero office and commercial center, to be built directly across North San Pedro Road from the Civic Center, will come up for another review by the Marin County Planning Commission Monday at 2 p.m.

The all-day meeting of the planning commission will begin on the third floor of the Civic Center at 9 a.m.

The master plan for the $6 million El Marinero project ran into a snag last month because planning commissioners wanted more parking spaces. Charlton Investment Co. of San Francisco plans two underground parking levels plus four stories for offices and retail stores on 5.2 acres. Architect Gilbert Oliver showed plans for 398 parking spaces, about one per 420 square feet of office space. Commissioners asked him to bring the ratio closer to one per 300 square feet of floor space.

During the morning, the commission will consider a 55-unit apartment project by Western Hosts Inc. on two acres in Santa Venetia, just east of Cala Market. On Dec. 9, residents in the area protested that more apartments there would be unsightly, cause congestion, and overcrowd schools.

Other items on the agenda include:

William Wright's request for rezoning about 48 acres at Black John Slough, south of Gnoss Field, from planned industrial to resort and commercial recreation. Wright plans a boatel, mobile home park, houseboat marina, and repair shops.

William Timmer's application for 28 units of apartments at Merrydale Road and Las Gallinas Avenue, Los Ranchitos.

Johngold Corp.'s request for a change in plans for the Howard Johnson restaurant and motor lodge on Richardson Bay, to delete an indoor tennis club and add a service station and boat storage facility.

A tentative map for a 52-lot subdivision on 25 acres next to Tamalpais Valley School in Tamalpais Valley, by Allan-Marin Co. Access would be from Tennessee Valley Road to Marin Avenue, and into Bell Lane.

Amendments to Los Robles Mobile Homes master plan for 200 mobile homes on 30 acres on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard between Highway 101 and Hamilton Drive. Developer Paul Goldstone wants to relocate the main entrance and the recreation building, and re-route traffic.

Louisiana's Lake Ponchartrain, covering 630 square miles, is the largest lake wholly within the United States.

One Marinite Left On State Utility Board

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Two of three Marin County members of the California Public Utilities Commission were replaced yesterday, making four of the commission's five members appointees of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Sole holdover, and the only Edmund G. Brown appointee remaining on the commission, is A. W. Gatov of Kentfield, whose term expires Dec. 31, 1970.

Reagan named Thomas Moran of San Diego and John P. Vukasin of Oakland, both attorneys, as commissioners, to replace Peter E. Mitchell of Ross and William M. Bennett of Kentfield, whose terms expired Tuesday.

Other Reagan appointees on the PUC board, named in 1967, are Fred B. Morrissey of Berkeley and William Symons Jr. of Bishop.

Bennett has served one term on the board after being its legal counsel. Mitchell was appointed in 1951 by Gov. Earl Warren and reappointed by Governors Goodwin J. Knight and Brown.

Tree Burning

Twelfth Night tree burning ceremonies, sponsored by the Belvedere and Tiburon parks and recreation commissions, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday in a vacant lot on Tiburon Boulevard, adjacent to the Safeway market.

Court Refuses To Throw Out Murder Charges

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Superior Court judge refused yesterday to dismiss murder charges against a Tiburon man and his mother, accused of killing an elderly San Francisco woman.

Judge Bernard Glickfeld said a date for the trial of Daniel Nyhan, 43, and his mother, Mrs. Elsie F. Nyhan, 72, would be set Jan. 22.

The Nyhans are accused of murdering Genevieve Dolan, 61, who was found dead of head injuries in Mrs. Nyhan's San Francisco apartment Oct. 25.

The mother entered a plea of innocent yesterday. The son had pleaded innocent earlier. Both sought dismissal on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Police claim that Nyhan struck Mrs. Dolan, a legal secretary and longtime family friend, while he was intoxicated. His mother's attorney argued that she was not actually involved in the incident but made statements to protect her son.

Mrs. Nyhan is free on $4,000 bail and her son on $5,000.

Play Next Saturday

"Katya, the Wonder Girl," a San Francisco Players Guild production, will be presented by the Junior Theater of Marin at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. next Saturday, not today, as incorrectly reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal. Both performances will be at San Rafael High School auditorium.

No Marijuana Charge Filed Against Pair

Barbara Gail Portnoy, 30, and Gary Edmund Shaeffer, 23, both of Forest Knolls, were freed in Marin Municipal Court yesterday when the district attorney announced he would not file charges as a result of their arrest earlier in the day on suspicion of possessing marijuana.

Sailor Was Civilian Before Apollo Flight

The Independent-Journal on Dec. 28 incorrectly reported that Radarman 3c James Reed Jr. of 45 Bolinas Avenue, San Anselmo, was aboard the guided missile destroyer Cochrane, secondary recovery ship for the Apollo 8 lunar flight.

The error was based on incorrect information supplied by the Navy. Reed had already been discharged from the Navy when the story appeared.

The Three Wishes of Sgt. Preston

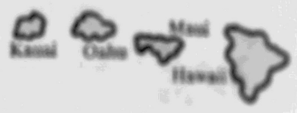
Sgt. Preston was a tireless servant in Her Majesty's Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He toiled to bring law and order to the untamed region called the Yukon. For a good part of the year the temperature rarely climbed above freezing. Deep snow covered the ground. So it is not surprising to find that in moments of quiet reflection, he often dreamed of getting away to a warmer climate. He dreamed of cruises to the warm islands of the Pacific. Here are his three favorites.

1. A Matson 42-day South Seas Cruise

Allows escaping from winter before it's over. The yacht-like SS Mariposa sails from California ports on March 9 to the lush islands of the South Pacific. Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, Noumea, Fiji, Niuafo'ou, Pago Pago and Hawaii. It's late summer in these warm, delightful places and things are as they've always been. Uncrowded. Unspoiled. Captivating. The relatively small size of the Mariposa creates a very congenial atmosphere for her 365 guests. The service, the cuisine, the marvelous parties are like those of a great mainland country club. But, perhaps a little nicer because of the sea. Fares for the 42-day South Seas Cruise begin at $1,595.00.

2. A Matson Cruise to the four Islands of Hawaii

Allows cutting 15 days out of the dead of winter. It's called the Winter Paradise Cruise. Sail from California on January 28 aboard the luxurious SS Lurline. Enjoy all the amenities of ship travel. Have breakfast in bed. Sing old favorites at the piano bar. Dance the night away. Wind leisurely around the four biggest islands of Hawaii, before heading back to California. Visit Honolulu and sunny Waikiki Beach on the island of Oahu. Nawiliwili on the "Garden Island" of Kauai. The old whaling port of Lahaina on the island of Maui. And Hilo, on the "Orchid Island" of Hawaii. Pack just once. The Lurline is your exotic Polynesian Hotel in port throughout the voyage. Also on this cruise, golfers may enter a special 72-hole handicap tournament and play on each island's most famous golf course. All-expense, four-island cruise fares start at $630.00.



3. A Matson Air/Sea Hawaiian Cruise Tour

Allows getting away from winter for a full 11 days. Fly to Hawaii. Spend six days and five nights at the Holiday Isle Hotel. Shop. Hula. Tour around the islands. And bask in the sun on world-famous Waikiki Beach. Then, come aboard the beautiful SS Lurline and sail back to California across the sparkling Pacific. Enjoy five days of attentive service and marvelous food and lots of great parties. Everything is included for $399.00. If you prefer, there are also Sea/Air Cruise Tours, where you can sail over, then fly back to California.

Volunteers Donate 'Gift Of Life' To Marin General Hospital

The Marin General Hospital Volunteers gave the hospital a $10,700 New Year's present to enable it to purchase equipment for the heart unit and the pediatric department.

The Volunteers voted to allocate $8,000 for the Heart Unit, to re-equip two "crash carts" used to save the lives of persons suffering from an emergency cardiac condition and to add a third cart.

In addition, the Jack and Jill Branch of the Volunteers, who devote all their energies to the hospital's pediatric department, voted to purchase four electric beds for a total of $2,700 from the funds raised through an "auto premiere" held last fall in Marin.

The "crash carts" will be placed in the Marin General Heart Unit, in surgery, and in the emergency department.

Each of the re-equipped carts will contain a cardioscope, a defibrillator, and a direct electrocardiograph writer. The heart unit cart will also include a heart rate meter and equipment called a "synchro-trigger with reversible polarity."

The allocations of the $10,700 has been approved by the hospital board of directors, and administrator Ray K. Bolinger has already begun to order the equipment, according to Mrs. Peter Behr, chairman of the council of the Volunteers.

ROLAND FENZ of San Rafael is chairman for the San Francisco alumni and parents gathering of Lawrence University on Wednesday at the Presidio Officers Club in San Francisco. The annual meeting is set from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. for associates of the Appleton, Wis., univeristy.

NEW OFFICERS of the St. Vincent's Branch 127, Italian Catholic Federation, in Petaluma have been elected. Mrs. Olga Lavio is the new president and the other officers are Mmes. Maria Molinoli, first vice president; Lucy Rosa, second vice president; Mary Solari, financial secretary; Clementina Musso, treasurer; Victor Albertini, orator, and Mmes. Emilia Miligia, Margaret Leone and Anne Casazza, trustees. Installation will be held with Sonoma Branch on Jan. 18, with a dinner to follow.

THE UNITED Presbyterian Women of the San Rafael Presbyterian Church will hold a luncheon in Canoles Hall at noon Thursday. It will be given by the Ladies' luncheon League.

Tickets should be purchased in advance if possible.

MARIN TOASTMISTRESS 651 will discuss "U.S. Today" at a 7 p.m. dinner meeting Thursday at The Kettle Restaurant in San Rafael. Purpose of the meeting has been designated "To Improve Your Notes." Mrs. Wilfred Castle will be toastmistress.

Miss Roberts Will Be Wed

A Valentine Day wedding date has been set by Judith Lynn Roberts, whose engagement to Nicholas John Lederer of San Francisco has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Roberts of San Rafael.

The sister of William Lee Roberts, serving with the Navy aboard the USS Enterprise, Judy is a Terra Linda High School graduate and will receive a degree in psychology from Sonoma State College this month. She has been active in the Volunteer Bureau of Marin and Community Involvement Project at Sonoma State.

Nicholas is the son of Mrs Ruth Lederer and Walther Lederer of Alexandria, Va., and the brother of Thomas C. Lederer, a graduate student at Princeton University. He is a graduate of Mount Vernon High School in Alexandria and Hiram College in Ohio and University of Michigan. He is employed with the Involvement Corps in San Francisco.

William Sarm To Wed Christine Rapetti

The engagement of their daughter, Christine Rapetti, to William Geoffrey Sarm of Tiburon has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Rapetti of Fox Chapel, Pa.

CHRISTINE RAPETTI

Christine is the sister of Edward, Paul, Barbara and Jeanne Rapetti of Fox Chapel. She is a graduate of St. Agnes Cathedral High School in Rockville Center, N.Y., and of St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind. She is teaching in Verona, Pa.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Sarm of Tiburon. He was graduated from North Reading High School in North Reading, Mass., and the University of Notre Dame. He is employed with the Del Monte Corporation in San Francisco.

Plans are being made for an April 19 wedding in Pittsburgh,

Paris Family Visits Ross

By MOLLY MARIN

A holiday reunion in Ross brought Comte and Comtesse de Morelos and their son, Carlos de Morelos, 9, from their home in Paris. The Comtesse is the former Brenda Helser. The family stayed with Brenda's mother and stepfather, Adm. and Mrs. M. C. Cheek of Ross.

The Comtesse, who has lived in France 19 years, frequently stayed in Belvedere with her grandparents, Col. and Mrs. Benjamin Pope, as a child. She attended the Katherine Delmar Burke School in San Francisco and was graduated from Stanford University.

An outstanding American swimmer, she trained for both the 1940 and 1944 Olympics, which were cancelled because of World War II, and was a gold medal winner in the 1948 Olympic Games in London. She is the former holder of five world and 27 American records in free-style swimming events. A friend and competitor of Anne Curtis Cuneo, Brenda had hoped for a visit with the Marin swimmer, but Mrs. Cuneo was out of town during the visit of the Parisians.

In Paris she wrote a column for the Paris edition of the Herald-Tribune and was French correspondent for "The Diplomat".

The Cheeks had a series of small dinners for close friends and family members during the stay of the de Morelos family. Before coming to the Bay Area Brenda and her husband and son visited relatives in Portland, Ore. They also stopped in Los Angeles for a brief visit with family members before returning to France.

MARRIED LAST Saturday at St. Mary the Virgin Episcopal Church in San Francisco were Alison Plummer and Dennis Slattery of West Covina. Alison, who is the daughter of the Harold Pierson Plummers of San Francisco, bowed at the first Marin Debutante Ball in 1962 and has been a member of the Spinsters. She is a graduate of the Katharine Branson School in Ross and the University of Southern California. Her husband is attending law school in San Francisco, where the couple will make their home.

SPENDING THE holidays with their parents, Brig. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Jack A. Gibbs of the Marin Country Club Estates, were Jack A. Gibbs Jr. of Oxon Hill, Md., and James Gibbs, a second lieutenant in the Air Force stationed at Griffiss Air Force Base near Rome, N.Y.

LEAVING MARIN, where they have lived since 1937, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson of San Rafael. The Robinsons will make their home in the Palm Springs area where they have bought a home at La Quinta golf course and plan to leave Marin about the middle of the month.

WAWONA WAS a Belvedere outpost over the New Year holiday when the Warren Finkes, Edward R. Russells III, John Hoefers, G. M. Howards and members of the Robbert Bagnall family, took adjoining cabins for fun in the snow. The Joseph Royers of Belvedere had been at Wawona for Christmas but returned before the New Year festivities.

FIVE GENERATIONS visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Machado in Novato Monday. They were Mrs. Alma Malloy of Santa Rosa, Mrs. Machado's grandmother; Mrs. E. O. Madsen of Orland, her mother; Mrs. William Residinger of North Sacramento, her sister; and Mrs. Phillip Christian, her niece and her husband and children, Anita and Brian Christian of Reedstown, Wis.

MRS. GORDON B. TELLER of San Rafael was honored at a surprise baby luncheon shower Dec. 27 at the Iron Horse Restaurant in San Francisco. Among the guests were Mmes. Alfred R. Thatcher, James L. Murray, Stewart L. McDonald, Alan J. Gibbons and Miss Alberta Moore.

THEIR FIRST child, a son, was welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Sawyer of Oakland on Dec. 30. The baby is the first grandchild of Mrs. Richard Finnie of Belvedere and Dr. Lester Sawyer of Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ashton of Walnut Creek are the baby's maternal grandparents. Mrs. Lloyd Ackerman of San Francisco is his great-grandmother. The infant has been named Scott Patrick Sawyer. His mother is the former Lorraine Ashton of Walnut Creek, and his father, Chris Sawyer is a former Belvedere resident.

SAILING ABOARD the Lurline on the Aloha Mexico cruise from Los Angeles harbor will be Mrs. Estella M. House of San Rafael. Ports of call include Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan during the 11-day cruise.

MR. AND MRS. Harold F. Davis of Tamalpais Valley will be honored tonight in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary at a dinner party given by their children, Mrs. Robert Martin of Mill Valley and Robert F. Davis of San Francisco.

About 100 guests are expected to attend the dinner to be given at 5:30 p.m. at the Fox Hostess House in San Francisco.

The Davises were married on Jan. 4, 1919, in Omaha, Neb.

THE EIGHTH annual tree burning ceremony was held at the Marin Country Club Estates on New Year's Day. The Gordon Walkers and the Arthur Lindauers were hosts and served gin fizzes to the homeowners, with the admittance fee being one Christmas tree to burn.

MR. AND MRS. Harry Flachs and Mrs. Frederick Goette of the Marin Country Club Estates have just returned from a Christmas cruise on the Greek liner, Jason. They visited Acapulco, Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta on their 10-day cruise.

AFTER A TRIP to Hawaii Mrs. F. I. Clary of Baltimore, Md., joined her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William I. Sarm for a holiday family reunion in Tiburon.

Velvet Is Not For Beginners

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

Please give me any information you have on sewing with velvet, since I have several bridesmaids dresses to make.

MRS. W. T. L.

DEAR MRS. W. T. L.:

To you, and all the other home sewers who try to work on very difficult fabrics such as velvets and chiffons — don't! At least, don't work on them for the very first time as a beginner when the occasion calls for a professional. I can't tell you in a few words how to handle velvet or any other unusual fabric since there are pressing techniques, length of stitch, lining, pinning etc. that are so completely different than working with the more average fabric.

If you know ahead of time that you will have to use a certain type of fabric that you have never used before, please purchase an extra half yard and play with it; practice the length of stitch, tension, pressing and general handling. The results will more than pay off in the finished product. It's much better to do a great job with a more basic type of fabric than to do a poor job with an unusual one. No I don't mean to discourage you. I just want to erase the problems that make you nervous and keep you from enjoying the real pleasures of doing your own sewing.

I'd like to tell all you readers about an apron I made to wear while sewing; it works great for me and I think others would love it too!

I made mine out of plastic fabric, it is easier to clean the surface when it's slick. Turn the hem up to the right side instead of the wrong side and machine stitch vertically at the width of the hem in at least 4 places, including both ends. This forms a deep and generous pocket and will serve you faithfully while you are sewing. It's a collector of cuttings from seam trimmings, thread, small supplies, etc. Keeps everything within easy reach too!

JUDY S. says:

If you are stuck with a lot of very short mini dresses with the A-line shape, just belt them in and add a nifty pair of slacks, preferably the loose, full ones, and you will have one of the sharpest looks of the year. Be sure the dress is short enough for a balanced effect.

Another great use for those sleeveless A-line dresses which we all have many of is to make a lower neckline and a slightly larger armhole and use them for jumpers. You can add the newest shirt blouses with the long full sleeves, either a roll collar or the Peter Pan collar in a contrasting fabric and you will have another "new look" of the year.

DEAR EUNICE,

Just exactly what is the correct width of a waistband on a skirt, shorts and slacks? I have seen them anywhere from 3 inches wide to no waistband at all; just grosgrain ribbon on the inside of the skirt.

MRS. S. E. R.

DEAR MRS. S. E. R.

There doesn't seem to be much conformity today when it comes to the width of the waistband. For the average person, the waistband should be from 1 inch to 1¼ inches wide. A waistband that is 3 inches wide is for a very youthful figure when fashion calls for a wide belt. One must be extremely thin to be able to wear this type of waistband comfortably.

Upon examining the waistband on some designer suits, I noticed that the waistband is often made of a bias strip of fabric that more or less binds the seam allowance of the skirt, making it approximately ⅝ inches wide. The more narrow waistband works beautifully with the type of panty girdle most women wear today; the more narrow it is, the less apt it is to double over.

Many skirts also have the grosgrain ribbon on the inside of the skirt; this too, would be most comfortable to the wearer if her waistline isn't too trim.

Wisest Way Not Always Best 'Not Prejudiced' Learns

DEAR HELEN:

I am an honor student and have always been brought up with the idea that it didn't matter who you were but what you accomplished that counts.

Isn't it funny how your parents can say one thing and mean another? I've known a certain boy for five years and we were always good friends. He's on student council and is aiming for a scholarship. But he's a different nationality, or I should say, race.

Recently he asked me for a date and I accepted, not even thinking my folks would object. We aren't serious, just get along well together. But I am more comfortable with him and can talk with him better than I can with any other boy.

Well, my parents tried to be kind, but they wouldn't let me go out with him. And he feels it's best that way too. That's what bothers me, Helen. He just gave up without even trying to prove himself. Is it best? I feel so mean and low about it all. — NOT PREJUDICED

DEAR NOT:

It isn't the best way, but it may be the wisest way — and the boy realizes this, though the hurt runs deep. Why not discuss the situation thoroughly with your parents? Perhaps you'll all gain a great deal through a deep-down examination of a problem which is becoming quite common these days. (But frankly, there is no perfect answer. No matter which way you decide, someone is bound to suffer. I hope it won't always be so.)—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a friend I'll call "A." She was engaged to "B," whom I've know for eight years.

They broke up and "B" went into the service. I write to him. Meanwhile, "A" got engaged to another fellow.

Now, "B" has asked me out when he gets home. My mother seems to think I would be betraying "A" if I went with "B," as old loves die hard, and maybe she only got engaged out of spite or something. Could this be? — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UN:

Your mother worries too much. "A" minus "B" equals "You." Date him!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I met a very nice gentleman. My folks like him and treat him almost like a brother. He is at our house a lot, and sometimes takes trips with us.

We were in the back yard playing ball when I got hit with a bat. He came over and picked me up. Afterwards he told me it came to him all of a sudden that he loved me, and so he had better not come around any more.

I am only 15, but I think I love him too. So why should he stop coming to see us? — YOUNG BUT SURE

DEAR Y BUT S:

You didn't mention the man's age, marital status, or much of anything else except that he feels loving you is wrong. I can only assume he's right: You aren't mature enough for this gentleman's affection.—H.

HEIDEE BORGESON

August Rite Set By Pair

Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Ralph Borgeson announced the engagement oftheir daughter, Heidee Lynne, to David Alan Lenzi Sunday at a party given in their San Rafael home.

Heidee, who is a senior at San Jose State College, is the sister of Philip Borgeson of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mrs. Hazel Mayhood and Mrs. Sarah Borgeson, both of San Francisco. She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lenzi of San Anselmo. Vicki Lenzi is his sister. He is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and is in his senior year at San Francisco State College.

The couple plan an August wedding.

Baked Hash

You can bake corned beef hash. Just pack the hash from a couple of one-pound cans into a baking dish, a glass one that is 10 by 6 by 1¾ inches will be fine. Brush with melted butter or margarine and bake in a moderate oven until piping hot. This may take half an hour.

Lyda Yohner Bride Of Ronald G. Harley

St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato was the setting Dec. 28 for the wedding of Lyda Jeanne Yohner and Ronald Godfrey LeVatte Harley.

The bride is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Herman J. Yohner of Hamilton Air Force Base, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Borden Harley of Novato.

Donald Phillips of Novato was best man, and the bride's brother, Larry J. Yohner of Sacramento, and the bridegroom's brother, Christopher Harley of Novato, ushered guests to their seats.

A reception at the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at Hamilton followed the ceremony.

Lyda is a graduate of George Washington High School in Denver, Colo. She attended College of Marin and is employed by Tele-Vue Systems in San Rafael.

Ronald is a graduate of Novato High School. He attended College of Marin and is employed by Standard Oil Company in Greenbrae. Mrs. Gertrude Stocker of Novato is his grandmother, and he is the brother of Christopher, Donald and Cynthia Harley.

The couple will live in Novato following a wedding trip to Carmel.

Ward Off Heart Attacks Through Jogging, Activity

Jogging and other physical exercise may help ward off heart attacks by taking cholesterol out of the body.

This finding comes from rats made to exercise on a treadmill after being fed cholesterol containing radioactive carbon. Exercised rats had more radioactive carbon in their breath, reflecting faster removal of cholesterol, than animals not taking exercise, a team of researchers from the University of Oregon Medical School reports. Cholesterol is a fatty material blamed for clogging arteries and bringing on heart attacks.

Bob Watkins Claims Bride From Montana

At a ceremony at the First United Methodist Church in Seattle, Wash., on Dec. 27, Dr. Robert P. Watkins Jr. claimed Joyce Marie Phillips as his bride.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Orville Phillips of Billings, Mont., and the sister of Theodore Phillips and Mrs. James Whitson of Billings and Roy Phillips of Orland, Wyo.

The bridegroom is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Robert P. Watkins of Belvedere. His sisters are Mrs. Douglas Green of Spokane, Wash., and Eleanor Watkins of Belvedere. He is the grandson of Mrs. John Merle Davis of San Francisco.

Mrs. Daniel McKevitt of Seattle was matron of honor and Dr. Eliott Scull of Seattle was best man. Dr. James Curtis of Seattle and Dr. Douglas Green of Spokane, the bridegroom's brother-in-law, were ushers.

Joyce, a graduate of Montana State University, is employed in King County Hospital, Seattle, as a nurse.

Bob was graduated from Tamalpais High School and Stanford University. He received the M.D. degree from the College of Medicine at Baylor University, and is an orthopedic resident at the University of Washington College of Medicine in Seattle.

After a wedding trip to Vancouver and Victoria, the couple will live in Seattle.

Parents Tell Of Engagement

Mr. and Mrs. George B. Nickerson of San Rafael announce the engagement of their daughter, Michele Deborah, to William F. Patry II, son of the senior William F. Patrys of Greenbrae.

Michele is the sister of Christine A. and Steven George Nickerson. She was graduated from San Rafael High School and attends College of Marin.

William is a graduate of Redwood High School. He also attends College of Marin. The future bridegroom is the brother of Jeff and Dawne Patry.

America: Land Embracing Virtually All The Faiths

(EDITOR'S NOTE: America is a land of many religions embracing virtually all known faiths. Many of us have only the vaguest ideas of what religions other than our own are all about, some of us are even a little vague about what we profess as our own religion. The dispatch that follows is the first of a series by a noted writer on religion describing the faiths of Americans — their origins, their teachings and the people who follow them.)

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Baptists are America's largest Protestant family. There are more than 25 million of them in 90,000 local congregations.

The Baptist movement originated in Holland in the early 17th Century. Its first adherents were Puritan fugitives from England. They got the name "Baptist" from their insistence that baptism should be administered only to persons old enough to make a personal "Decision for Christ." This was a radical break with the tradition of infant baptism, then practiced almost universally by Protestants as well as Catholics.

Baptists also believed—and still believe—that baptism must be total immersion of the body, rather than by pouring or sprinkling.

Although the Baptist movement grew slowly in Holland, and gained a foothold across the channel in England, it was in America that it finally found fertile soil. The first Baptist church in the new world was founded in 1639 by Rev. Roger Williams, a Church of England priest who had cast his lot with the Puritans and fled to Massachusetts under threat of imprisonment.

The Baptist movement remained relatively small throughout the colonial era. But with the coming of independence, and especially with the opening of the western frontier, it began to grow explosively.

The local Baptist church, governed by its own members, free to elect and ordain its own pastor, totally independent of any ecclesiastical organization, proved highly attractive to the freedom-loving men of the frontier.

The preaching in Baptist churches was often more fiery than profound, since a congregation could ordain to the ministry any man who felt he had a divine call to preach, however little education or preparation he might have had.

But Baptists were not greatly troubled by a lack of learning among their pastors: They were convinced that the Bible itself contained all the "saving truth" that any man needed to know, and that each man was required to "work out his own salvation" by reading the scriptures and making a personal commitment of faith in Jesus Christ.

The emphasis on personal faith led, inevitably, to a preoccupation with a felt experience of conversion. And this led, in turn, to emotion-filled "revival meetings" and to the tradition of concluding each Sunday service with an "invitation" to repentant sinners to come forward and declare their faith in Christ.

Today, there are 28 different Baptists' associations, conferences, or conventions in America.

The largest Baptist body, and the largest single Protestant organization in America, is the Southern Baptist Convention. There are now "Southern" Baptist churches in all 50 states. California, for example, has nearly a thousand. Nationwide, the Southern Baptist Convention has more than 11 million members.

Southern Baptists are uncompromising fundamentalists in theology. They will fire a seminary professor who suggests that the creation story in Genesis is a religious parable, and is not meant to be read as a literal scientific account of what took place during the first seven days of the world's creation.

Their rigorous conservatism in doctrine has made them wary of contacts with other denominations (including other Baptist groups), which are, in their view, gravely tainted with liberalism. They have accordingly remained aloof from such cooperative organizations as the National and World Council of Churches, and have refused even to discuss possible mergers.

The American Baptist Convention, which used to be called the Northern Baptist Convention, is considerably smaller, with slightly more than 1.5 million members. Some of its churches are fundamentalist, but many are receptive to more liberal theological viewpoints. American Baptists are very active in the National Council of Churches and other cooperative Protestant bodies.

Two other large Baptist bodies are predominantly Negro in their membership. The National Baptist Convention of the U.S.A., Inc., has 5 million members. The National Baptist Convention of America has 2.7 million.

In addition to these four giants, which account for more than 90 per cent of the nation's Baptists, there are Seventh-Day Baptists, who worship on Saturday instead of Sunday; Primitive Baptists, who conduct foot-washing ceremonies as part of each celebration of the Lord's Supper; Free-will (or Free) Baptists, who stress man's freedom to choose salvation or perdition; Predestinarian Baptists, who cling to Calvin's doctrine of the double election, and many other varieties.

Baptists are great supporters of foreign mission. The Southern Baptist Convention alone maintains more than 1,500 full-time missionaries abroad. They also are zealous evangelizers at home, conducting house-to-house visitation drives to reach unchurched families. The greatest practitioner of mass evangelism of our time, Rev. Billy Graham, is a Baptist.

In recent years, Baptists have made a mighty effort to upgrade the educational level of their clergy. You may still encounter an "ordained amateur" in the pulpit of a small-town or rural Baptist church, but elsewhere today you are much more likely to find seminary-educated ministers.

Baptist worship is traditionally informal: A typical service includes spontaneous prayers, scripture reading, hymn-singing, and the sermon, followed by the pastor's invitation for converts to come forward.

The Lord's Supper is observed at least four times a year, with grape juice instead of wine, and small cubes of ordinary loaf bread instead of the flat communion wafers familiar to Catholics, Lutherans, and others.

The elements are passed around the pews by deacons, and members of the congregation receive them while remaining in their seats instead of coming forward to kneel at an altar rail. To Baptists, the observance is strictly an "ordinance"—that is, a memorial to Jesus — rather than a sacrament with mystical power to convey grace.

FOUR SUNDAY NIGHTS

Racial Conflict Series To Open

Interpreters of the current racial conflict, including two Marinites, will lead four consecutive Sunday evening sessions on "Studies in Black" beginning tomorrow.

Mrs. Festus Adebonojo of San Anselmo, a faculty member at Dominican College, will present "African Roots" at 7 p.m. tomorrow at Church of the Nativity, 333 Ellen Drive, Marinwood.

J. D. Lawson of Novato will conclude the series with a panel "On Being Black in Marin" at the fourth meeting on Jan. 26 at the First Congregational Church, 8 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael.

Other topics will be "History in Plain Black and White" by Mrs. Raye Richardson, Success Book Co., San Francisco, Jan. 12 at Congregation Rodef Sholom, 170 North San Pedro Road, San Rafael, and "Where It's At Today" by Percy Moore, executive director of the Oakland Economic Development Council, Jan. 19 at St. Isabella's Parish Center, Freitas Parkway, Terra Linda.

Sponsoring churches are Aldersgate Methodist, Blessed Sacrament, Christ Presbyterian, Church of the Nativity, Congregation Rodef Sholom, Faith Lutheran, First Congregational, Marin Covenant Church and St. Isabella's Parish.

Tickets for the entire series or individual sessions will be available at the door tomorrow night.

Patriarch Of Moscow Asks Continued Faithful Service

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexius, patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, sent a Christmas message this week to members of the Russian Orthodox Church, calling upon them to "serve mankind zealously."

The 91-year-old patriarch appealed to the faithful to carry out "the commandments of love, fraternity and peace."

"Making steps toward disarmament — this is what we must devote all our powers to," he said.

The message will be read in all Orthodox churches in this country Tuesday, which is Christmas according to the calendar used here before the Communist revolution. There are an estimated 50 million adherents of Russian Orthodoxy in the Soviet Union.

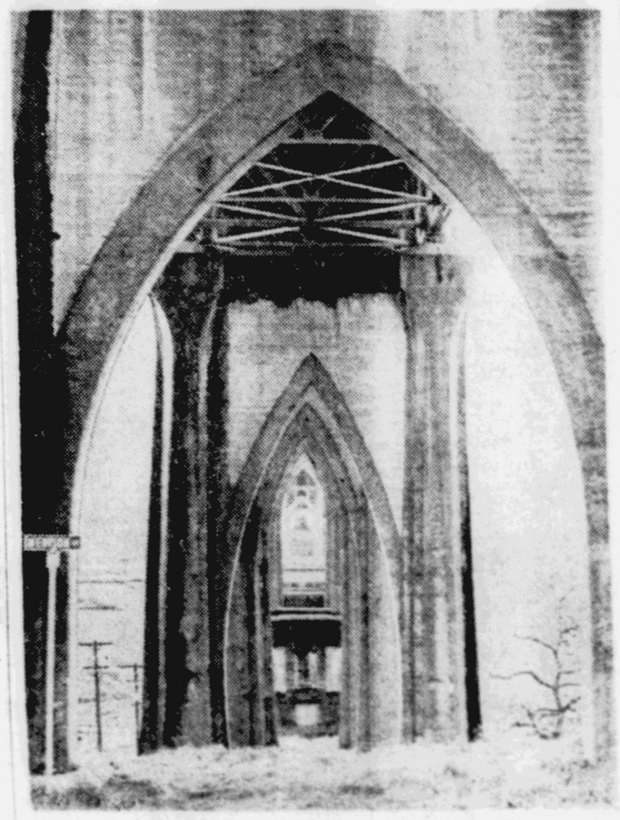
The Christmas message was reported by the government news agency Tass. The patriarch has supported the Kremlin on various international issues and enjoys official favor.

Elder To Address Stake Session Set In Petaluma

Elder Henry D. Taylor, an assistant to the Council of Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will speak at the Marin Stake (diocese) Conference tomorrow in Petaluma.

Elder Taylor was a Provo, Utah, businessman before being called to his full-time church position in 1958. He also is a former Californian mission president. He serves as managing director of the church's vast welfare program.

The session will begin at 10 a.m. in the Petaluma Chapel. Stake president is Weston L. Roe, of Novato.



BRIDGE—NOT A CHURCH

An ancient Gothic cathedral? If it is, it's the first with a street sign inside it. Recently a Portland, Ore., cameraman found that a telephoto lens and the proper approach gave St. John's Bridge, across the Columbia River a real look in keeping with its name. He titles it, "St. John's Cathedral." (UPI Telephoto)

United Methodist Bishop To Address Redwood Units

Bishop Charles F. Golden, recently appointed head of the United Methodist Church in Northern California and Nevada, will hold his first major conferences in the church's Redwood Empire District on Thursday and Friday.

District Supt. Joyce W. Farr of Santa Rosa said Bishop Golden will speak for two "Reconciliation Dinners," Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Arcata United Methodist Church, and Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Santa Rosa.

Rev. Warren R. Walker, host pastor, will be master of ceremonies at the Arcata dinner. Presiding at Santa Rosa will be Rev. Howard B. Daulton, minister of First Methodist Church.

Churches of the United Methodist Redwood Empire district are scattered in eight California counties — Marin, Solano, Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino, Lake, Humboldt, and Del Norte. The dinners are part of a series of 11 in Northern California and Nevada, all to be addressed by Bishop Golden.

In his addresses the bishop will discuss a national program outlined for the first four years of the new United Methodist Church, formed last April by union of the Methodist and the Evangelical United Brethren denominations.

Under the theme, "a new church for a new world," the program aims to contribute to reconciliation of the divisions in society caused by poverty, lack of power among racial minorities, and the alienation of youth. The program calls for intensive, church-wide study of the Sermon on the Mount as the Biblical basis for a ministry of reconciliation.

Bishop Golden is a member of the national committee of 50 steering these efforts. He was sent to California in July after serving for eight years in Nashville, Tenn., as the bishop for several Methodist conferences in the former Central Jurisdiction. He is president of the National United Methodist Board of Christian Social Concerns.

BISHOP GOLDEN
Schedules area visits

Earlier in his church career Golden had been a local pastor, college teacher, and U. S. Army chaplain during World War II. Before his election as a bishop in 1960 he was for 13 years on the staff of the Methodist Board of Missions, first as director of field services in the department of Negro work, and finally as director of the division of national (USA) missions.

Sports-Loving Vatican Official To Become Bishop Of Church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The big talk during warmups for the 16th World Cup golf tournament in Rome last October was that the Vatican had been invited to enter.

The long-driving, cigar-chomping monsignor who could have helped carry the Vatican colors was Paul Marcinkus, 46, of Cicero, Ill. But the Vatican thanked cup organizers for the invitation—and turned it down.

On Monday Msgr. Marcinkus is to be consecrated a bishop. The step up came as recognition for his 17 years in the Vatican diplomatic corps, capped by his service as a translator, troubleshooter and travel organizer for Pope Paul VI.

The bishop's robes also go with Marcinkus' new post as second-in-command—but effective head— of the Vatican Bank. As such he is responsible for the accounting and distributing of vast sums used to administer farflung missions, poor parishes and special charity projects, such as the Vatican-sponsored food drop in Biafra.

Bishop-designate Marcinkus' golf game—reportedly in the five-handicap range—symbolizes the American imprint he has made in high Vatican circles.

He also admits to enjoying a fast game of tennis and "loves to read westerns and mystery stories" along with historical and theological fare.

At various times since he came to Rome 19 years ago the 6 foot 3 prelate has hankered for home, but he now seems to be a Vatican fixture.

REV. PAUL MARCINKUS
Vatican troubleshooter

"Let's say I have taken out a longer lease on my apartment," he says.

He is a distinct loyalist to the Paulist view of things. He appears to disdain much of the dissent in the church today as the product of "bad theology" —that which takes little stock of the past.

Through his service to three popes, beginning with Pius XII, he has come a long way from his boyhood days in Cicero, a suburb west of Chicago.

He studied for the priesthood at Chicago's Quigley Seminary and was ordained in 1946. His first and only parish assignment was to St. Christina's on the city's far South Side.

He arrived in Rome in 1950 to study canon law at the Jesuit-run Gregorian University and soon began taking on special assignments for the Vatican. When he earned his degree in 1953 he was asked to stay and work full time.

The young priest went through the Vatican's two-year diplomatic school, then was dispatched to Bolivia in 1955 and to Canada in 1959. In both countries he was secretary in the Vatican Nunciature, which corresponds to first secretary in a U.S. embassy.

The Vatican called him back to Rome in December 1959 for deskwork in the Secretariat of State. He sharpened his Italian enough to be able to translate occasionally for Pope John XXIII.

When Pope Paul took charge Msgr. Marcinkus became the No. 1 English translator and the man who arranged the last five of the pontiff's six trips overseas.

Because of his imposing height, the monsignor took it upon himself to be an unofficial bodyguard. He often shielded the slightly built pontiff from the crush of excited crowds.

Security Is Called Major Church Role

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) —Church is a place where the average American middle class layman seeks security and reassurance, according to the Rev. Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, president of the American Baptist Convention.

"Evidence multiplies that an uprooted middle class seeks through the church to 'find' itself," Rutenber writes in Crusader, American Baptist newsmagazine.

Here is a home to entertain in . . . outdoor area with large deck for minimum upkeep. Landscaping and fencing all completed. A sweeping panoramic view, a one-level residence providing 3 bedrooms, 2 baths, wall-to-wall carpet over hardwood floors. Combination family room, breakfast nook, plus spacious dining area. We believe this home will please you. Shown by appt.

A Home of Excitement

A distinct departure from the prosaic run-of-the-mill home. Presenting a residence with a charm and character of its very own. Roughed hand-hewn beams in two-storied living room with mahogany dunnage paneling over used brick fireplace. Formal dining room, separate family room, 3 bedrooms, all good sized, 1½ baths with plumbing all roughed in for third bath. The view is spectacular. Maintenance at a minimum. All in a prime residential area with all conveniences within walking distance.

EXPLOSION

It shouldn't take an explosion to bring an intelligent investor to recognize the potential value here. However, as our population continues to explode, this fine property should alert such an investor. Located directly across the street from Ross Hospital, this R-3 zoned property consists of approx. 21,000 sq. ft. of valuable ground. One-half of which contains a fine single family residence (easily convertible), & the other half a Von Rotz-built duplex. Let us show you how the rents from these two improvements will enable you to acquire this valuable site. The Hospital, Medical Centers, Convalescent Homes, Apts. & the College are pressing in on this outstanding location. Excellent financing available. Exclusive.

Police Not Attending Workshops?

The major problem facing the police community relations committee of the Marin County Human Rights Commission in 1969 is how to get more police departments interested, according to Bella Aaron, committee chairman.

Mrs. Aaron said several police departments have never attended a meeting, despite repeated invitations.

She said a basic premise of the police community relations program in Marin is that police can help prevent crime.

Those who refuse to recognize that prevention is part of their work are not attending meetings, she said in a review of work during 1968.

Mill Valley and Sausalito police, the sheriff's office and the California Highway Patrol attend regularly and San Anselmo has attended once, she reported.

Corte Madera, Larkspur, San Rafael and Novato have been invited but have not responded, she said. Other departments have not been invited yet.

Mrs. Aaron criticized some police for taking advantage of the current support for law and order. "Police have begun to think each can use as much of whatever is needed," she contended. "They feel absolutely omnipotent."

A discussion of how law enforcement officers can help young people stay out of trouble, begun at the last meeting, will continue as a topic in 1969.

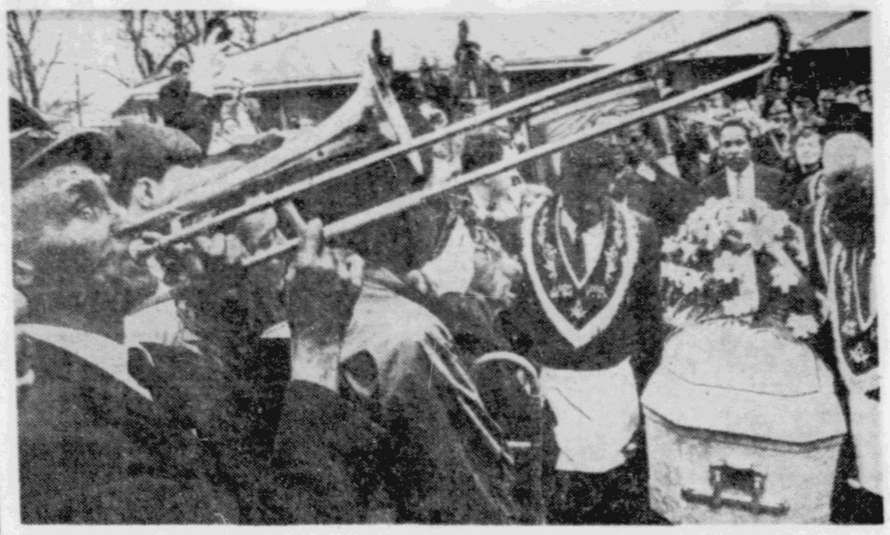
So far, the committee has established a grievance procedure, a firearms policy, a citation procedure, a police community relations division within the sheriff's department, rules for the use of Mace and has expanded community participation in the committee, Mrs. Aaron said.

Health Advisers To Study Report

The Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board will continue its discussion on a citizen's committee report on the proposed county mental health planning project at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Coral Room in Marin General Hospital.

Dr. Clyde G. Miller will make a progress report on overall county mental health programs during the last two months and Dr. Donald P. Wilson on the operation of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital.

The board, which usually meets only once a month, also will meet at 8 p.m. Jan. 30 in Room 400, Marin Civic Center.



DIXIELAND JAZZ SENDOFF

Oscar (Chicken) Henry, who will be 81 in June, blows a farewell note at the New Orleans funeral of clarinetist Gearge Lewis. Several bands took part in the traditional Dixieland funeral for Lewis yesterday, after he died of pneumonia and Hong Kong flu at the age of 68.

MARIN NAMES

Sailors In Welcome At Apollo Landing

Two Marin County sailors were aboard the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown when it served as the primary recovery vessel for the Apollo 8 lunar flight.

Navy Electronics T/3C Robert J. Hansen, son of Mrs. Robert J. Hansen of 350 Oak Manor Drive, Fairfax, was aboard the carrier for special duty to work on the telephone call between President Lyndon B. Johnson and astronauts William Anders, Frank Borman and James Lovell.

Navy Fireman/4C Kenneth Kondratieff, son of Mrs. Anna Mae Kondratieff of Spring Avenue, Lagunitas, is serving in the oil and water laboratory aboard the carrier.

SERVING — Navy Lt. (j.g.) Michael L. Williams, son of Mrs. Irene Williams of 909 Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, is a combat pilot and the communications officer with Attack Squadron 164 aboard the aircraft carrier USS Hancock in the Gulf of Tonkin.

DONOR — Alfred R. Rodriguez of 47 Driftwood Court, San Rafael, has received a plaque from Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of the San Francisco Medical Society for donating blood 45 times. Rodriguez is a Bank of America assistant teller.

ASSIGNED — Army Capt. Michael G. Ball, son of Wilbur G. Ball of 196 Lucas Park Drive, San Rafael, has been assigned to the 74th Reconnaissance Airplane Co. near Phu Loi, Vietnam.

AWARD — Lloyd H. Sisson of 344 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, received a plaque from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for donating blood 43 times. Sisson is welder-mechanic with the Marin County Fire Department.

HOME LEAVE — Airman Machinist Mate Thomas Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Anderson of San Anselmo, was home on leave for the Christmas holidays. He is attached to the Pacific Missile Range Facility, Hawaii.

DONOR — Frank H. Conrad of Sausalito received a plaque from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for donating blood 85 times. Conrad is a civilian engineer at Hamilton Air Force Base, Novato.

PROMOTED — George C. Howie, 23, son of Wallace N. Howie of 4579 Paradise Dirve, Tiburon, has been promoted to Army specialist five in Vietnam, where he is serving as an avionics technician with the 121st Assault Helicopter Co. He is a graduate of Tamalpais High School.

IN VIETNAM — Robert L. Montgomery, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murrel Montgomery of 132 The Alameda, San Anselmo, was promoted to Army specialist four in Vietnam while assigned as a personnel management specialist at the 93rd Military Police Battalion headquarters. He attended Sir Francis Drake High School.

ENLISTED — Steven P. Accomazzo, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Accomazzo of 11 Birch Way, San Rafael, is in recruit training at the U.S. Naval Training Center, San Diego.

PROMOTED Thomas R. Brickman, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd F. Brickman of 1495 Casa Buena Drive, Corte Madera, was promoted to Army specialist five while serving as a computer chief for the Third Armored Division in Germany.

ENLISTED — Paul C. Martin, 18, son of Mrs. Gwendolynn Martin of 169 Deepstone Drive, San Rafael, is in recruit training at the U.S. Naval Training Center, San Diego.

FEARS, HOPES—Congressional decision to create a Redwoods National Park of part of the old timber similar to the Avenue of the Giants scene above has worried Eureka area lumbering interests—and the loggers face loss of jobs, precarious at best. Two hopes for the future are Eureka's fishing industry (albeit menaced by hungry Russian trawlers) and the pulp mill in background (right photo). (AP Wirephotos)

REDWOODS, INDUSTRY THE KEYS

Eureka's Fortunes Shaky

EUREKA (AP)—The visitor's nostrils recoil at the foul chemical smell spewing from the towering stacks of the two big wood pulp mills across Humboldt Bay.

A Eureka businessman steps into the street, sniffs the breeze coming in from the Pacific Ocean outside the bay and smiles: "That odor you smell isn't odor. It's money."

There is money in Eureka this holiday season. Perhaps not a lot, but more than last year. Enough for a few more toys under the Christmas tree; a bottle of better wine on the holiday table; maybe a new car, or a $62.50 trip in a chartered jet down to Sacramento to watch the Humboldt State Lumberjacks play in the Camellia Bowl.

FEWER JOBLESS

Not so many lumber and mill men will be filing down to the unemployment office on K Street to pick up their state checks this winter, or waiting for the welfare payment to arrive in the mail.

What about next Christmas? Or Christmas five years hence?

For Eureka is a one-industry town in the backwater of California's population surge.

That industry is lumbering, the giant coast redwoods which grow only along a narrow fog and rain belt on California's northern coast and a tip of neighboring Oregon.

Leaf through the Yellow Pages of the telephone book. There are 24 logging companies, 21 listed under logging equipment and supplies, and 29 lumber manufacturers.

LOPSIDED ECONOMY

These firms, and others directly dependent on them, account for an estimated 80 per cent of the North Coast economy.

The lumber business is good this year. The mill hands are on 10-hour shifts six days a week. But when business is bad, the lines lengthen at the unemployment office.

In general, times have been rough during the 1960s.

The mills were busy in the post-World War II days, particularly with a boom in lumbering of heavy stands of Douglas fir in Humboldt County. Hundreds of sawmills sprang up, cashed in and then gradually were swallowed up by the giant firms.

Prices plummeted in the late 1950s and early 60s as home construction leveled off and some big markets, such as the Los Angeles region, became overbuilt.

ON WAY UP?

"We feel we've hit bottom and are on the way up," said Mike Johnston, publisher of the Eureka Times-Standard. "We're building on a solid base now."

Eureka's population was 28,137 in 1960. A rough estimate now is about 30,000. Humboldt County has 106,000 residents, only a thousand or so more than in 1960.

But there's a new courthouse, city hall and the Times-Standard is moving into a new $2 million plant.

Some of the smaller downtown stores have gone under. One reason was the poor retail market last year. Another is the influx of chain stores in residential area shopping centers.

HIGHWAYS, PARKS

Nearby highway and bridge construction is expected to keep the unemployment rate —which often runs to 15 per cent in winter— down this coming year.

But the biggest question mark in the future is the effect of the new Redwood National Park —a subject of years-long emotional dispute in Humboldt County and its sparsely populated neighbor to the north, Del Norte County.

A sticker on the Eureka Chamber of Commerce door reads: "Don't PARK my job —Support the Sensible Redwood Park and Recreation Plan."

LOGGERS STUNNED

After years of telltale signs, lumber company executives became resigned to the fact of a national park. They were stunned this fall, however, when Congress created a park of 58,000 acres of prime "old growth" redwood, including about 30,000 acres of company lands. The rest is existing state parkland.

"That hit the companies much harder than they expected," said one timber firm official, who asked not to be identified. "If it wasn't for Vietnam, we'd be dead."

What he meant was: except for war expenses, Congress might have voted more money for a larger park and taken even more land.

Worst hit was Arcata Redwood Co., which hires about 350 men out of the more than 8,000 directly employed by the lumber industry in Humboldt County. About 70 per cent of the firm's potential timber volume was taken. ARCO officials say they are quitting, phasing their operations out over a period of 10 years or less.

Some park proponents contend ARCO had planned to liquidade in the near future anyway. It is a subsidary of a giant publishing firm headquartered near San Francisco.

Officials of the other major firms involved decline to say how their operations will be affected or how many jobs may be cut, if any.

TOURIST BOOM?

Meanwhile, park proponents from the outside forecast an almost immediate tourist boom which — they contend — will far offsets any loss to the economy through logging cutbacks.

Eurekans, even those in the tourist trade, are skeptical and cautious.

Stanton Elliott, owner of seven restaurants in the region, sees a gradual increase. But it will come only as the park is developed and roads are improved.

"It will take some considerable time even to survey what they've got," Elliott said.

"Like all of us up here, I have some mixed feelings. In order to survive, the food service industry is very dependent on the local economy. We really don't know yet the effect from the standpoint of lost jobs in the lumber industry."

He adds, "I feel perhaps there will be a business upsurge. I don't really know why. But we must be close to the point of being attractive to industries other than lumber."

Diversification is the semi-magic word here, just as it is in other one-industry towns across the nation.

"We've been trying to diversify," said Sero Maffia, vice president of the Bank of America in Eureka. "But it never seems to come."

"It's nearly 300 miles from the nearest major metropolitan center — San Francisco. Portland, Ore., is 440 miles away, Seattle 600 and Los Angeles 720.

'EVEN THE BIRDS'

Most Eureka residents you talk to just can't fathom the need for an expanded park. Nearly 30,000 acres of the best trees already were preserved in the state parks, they say.

"Hell, you walk back into those trees and there's nothing to see," said a barber who runs a two-chair shop next door to the Greyhound depot. "Even the birds don't go back there."

Down on the bayfront, a knot of commercial fishermen considered the issue for a moment, and agreed, "There doesn't seem to be much point in it."

RUSS TRAWLERS

Their big concern is the fishing being done by modern, sophisticated Russian trawlers off the California and Oregon coasts, traditional grounds of the Eureka - based commercial fleet.

Dean Randall was fitting fresh redwood rails on the bow of his 52-foot boat, "Azalea." Randall is better off than most of the Eureka fishermen. His boat, which he values at $45,000, is paid for. He and his two-man crew split expenses and profits.

"It's been a good year," said Randall, a husky man with graying hair. "It takes a lot of money to get into business and stay in business." In all he said, his 22 years at sea "has worked out pretty good for me."

IGNORE LIMIT

But he said the Russians "are going to run us out of business" if they continue to sweep the nearby coast area of fish. The Russians ignore the conservation practices Randall and his weathered colleagues must obey. The foreign boats aren't supposed to fish within the 12-mile limit, but do, he adds.

"The Fish and Game Department talks conservation, which is fine if those Russian bastards weren't out there taking the goodies," Randall said bitterly.

"It seems like the federal government is doing nothing about it. The government has sold us down the river."

Over Randall's shoulder, a freighter took aboard redwood lumber. Across the bay, on the narrow Samoa Peninsula, the Georgia-Pacific and Crown Simson mills churned and boiled wood chips into pulp that will be shipped abroad or to paper finishing plants in this country.

In a Eureka motel room, the wrapper on a roll of toilet tissue reads: "Georgia-Pacific industrial tissue division. Franklin Park, Ill., Portland, Ore."

Eureka officials hope that someday such products will say, "Manufactured in Eureka, Calif."

Establishment of the pulp mills in the mid-1960s was a start toward putting the logging industry on a more stable and permanent basis, they say. Their work force of several hundred is year around, levelling off the employment graphs.

NEW DAM

Now, Congress has authorized construction of the $37.5 million Butler Valley Dam 35 miles upstream from Eureka on the Mad River.

This will provide the millions of gallons of fresh water needed to allow planned expansion of the pulp plants. It will take eight years to complete the dam providing appropriation of construction money isn't delayed.

Donald Falk, a prominent local attorney, and publisher Johnston hope the next step will be location of finishing plants in Eureka — paper, cardboard cartons and the like.

These byproduct operations can use the smaller second generation redwoods that have grown since the logging began a century ago, while the best cut lumber comes only from the dimishing supply of "old growth" trees.

END IN SIGHT

Economists and forestry experts say the old growth lumber will last only another 15 years or so, at present cutting rates — the park notwithstanding.

The transition to an industry based on younger and smaller timber is no longer in the distant future," said a recent study by the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station in Portland.

Where will production and employment level off during the next 15 or 20 years?

"Today's tree-farming practices assure a permanent supply of raw material," a Redwood Association official told a legislative hearing recently.

But the same committee was told by a Georgia-Pacific executive, "Any significant government acquisition of our timberlands (for a park) would certainly destroy our sustained yield program."

Meanwhile, a new generation of Eurekans is gradually emerging into positions of influence in the community—seeking new economic goals for their region and less dependence on the big timber companies.

As one professional man expressed it: "The question is not whether they are raping the landscape, but are they committed to a permanent operation? Or will they come in for 20 or 30 years, cut all the trees and leave? That is the burning question."

And as Christmas approaches, the big lumber trucks rumble down Fifth Street on their way to the mills, where the saws are cutting on overtime. Business is good—this year.

Congress Spotlights Two New Englanders

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Two men from Massachusetts who represent different points of view within the same political party were the focus of attention as the 91st Congress convened, each striving to lead a divided Democratic majority in the separate houses in which they sit.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, 36, of the eastern liberal wing, successfully challenged Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, a powerful member of the conservative Senate establishment, for the post of assistant Democratic leader in the upper chamber. The vote was 31 to 26.

Rep. John McCormick, 77, three-time speaker of the House, and a conservative whom young Democratic liberals say provides "uninspired" leadership, easily beat back a challenge from Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, 178 to 58.

Behind The News

Around The World; Around The Clock:

BEIRUT — Numerous violations of a cease-fire agreement between Israeli and Jordanian troops were reported during the week and in Cairo the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram predicted another full-scale war in the Mideast before the end of the year.

SAIGON — As Vietnam fighting continued, the Viet Cong guerrillas freed three American prisoners after representatives of the Viet Cong met American officers in an isolated truce zone 59 miles northwest of Saigon.

PARIS — Hope faded for getting the expanded Vietnam War talks underway before President Johnson leaves office after negotiators for the United States and North Vietnam failed to agree on the issue that has been keeping the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong from taking part — the shape of the conference table.

Demos' Senate Majority Trimmed

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans gained a net total of five Senate seats in the 1968 election, leaving Democrats with a 58-42 majority that is their smallest in 10 years.

During the second Eisenhower administration, Democrats held a bare two-seat majority, before a 15-seat pickup in 1958 gave them 64 senators. Republicans have not controlled the Senate since the first two years of the Eisenhower administration, 1953-55, when they held a 48-46 edge.

But this year's GOP gains put Republicans in position to make an all-out drive to win Senate control in 1970, when 26 Democrats and just seven Republicans are up for re-election.

Republicans won seven seats from the Democrats this year, but Democrats gained two which had been held by Republicans.

These were in Iowa, where Democratic Gov. Harold E. Hughes defeated David H. Stanley for the seat of retiring GOP Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, and in California, where Democrat Alan B. Cranston defeated Max Rafferty, who had unseated Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel in a hotly fought GOP primary.

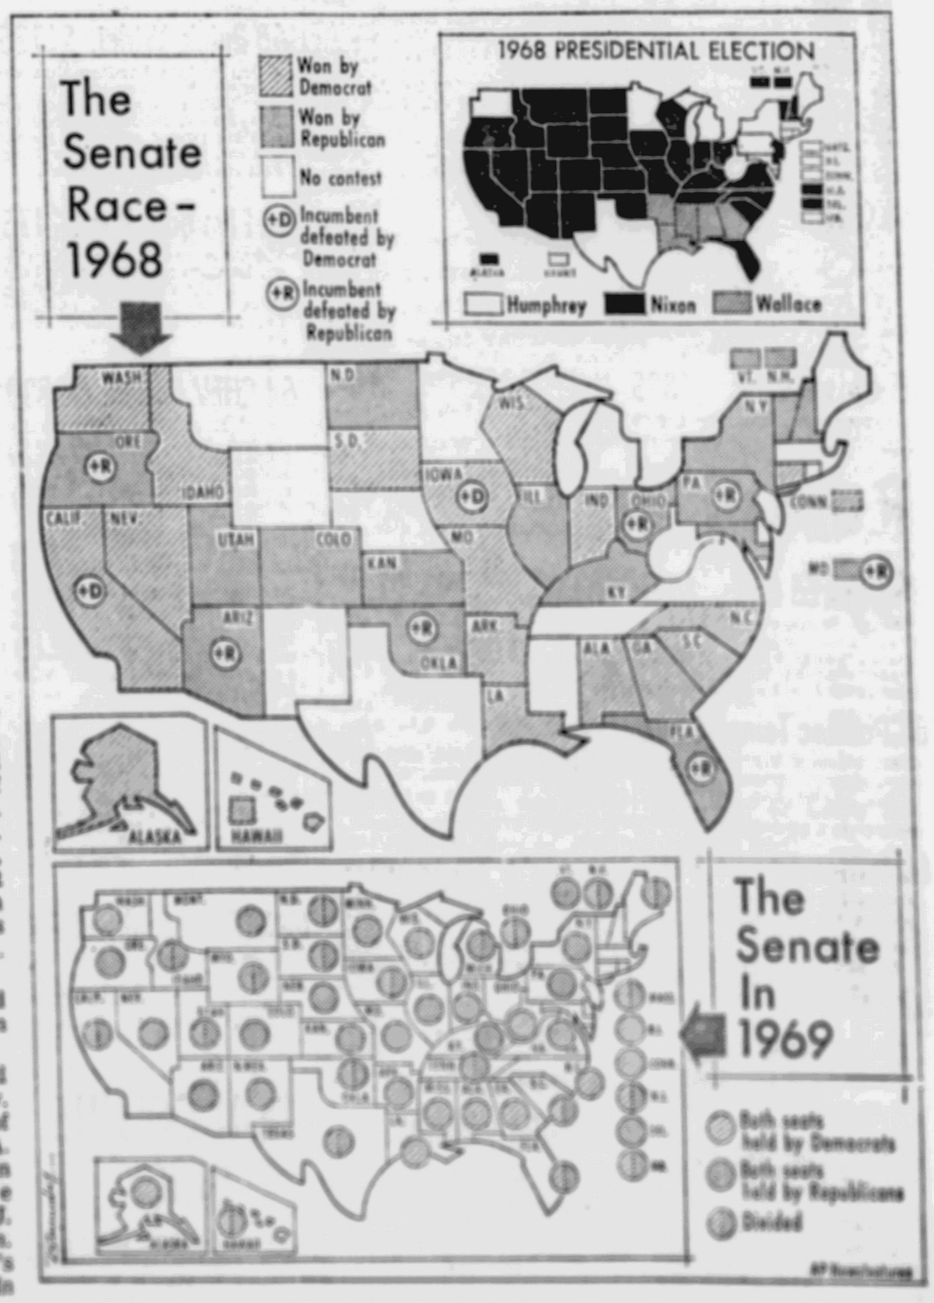
In Florida, Rep. Edward Gurney defeated former Gov. Leroy Collins for the seat of retiring Democrat George A. Smathers. In Ohio, Republican Atty. Gen. William Saxbe defeated former Rep. John J. Gilligan, who had unseated Sen. Frank Lausche in last May's Democratic primary. In Arizona, former Sen. Barry Goldwater won the seat of retiring Sen. Carl Hayden by defeating Roy Elson, Hayden's longtime assistant.

The following Democratic senators were re-elected: J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Frank Church of Idaho, Birch E. Bayh of Indiana, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Alan Bible of Nevada, Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina, Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Warren G. Magnuson of Washington and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Republican senators re-elected were Peter H. Dominick of Colorado, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, Jacob K. Javits of New York, Milton R. Young of North Dakota, Wallace F. Bennett of Utah and George D. Aiken of Vermont.

New senators elected to fill seats previously held by their parties, included Democrats Mike Gravel of Alaska and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, and Republicans Robert Dole of Kansas and Marlow Cook of Kentucky.



Things Are Looking Up For Marin Prep Cagers

The New Year seems to have agreed with Marin County Athletic League basketball teams as they came out even in six forays against non-league competition last night — an improvement over 1968 results.

Redwood and Novato high schools further bolstered their already fat records, Redwood sweeping aside El Camino of South San Francisco, 71-44 in Larkspur and Novato handing Napa a 51-41 loss.

Tamalpais of Mill Valley was a surprise winner, coming from behind to dump Vallejo, 51-46, at Vallejo.

On the losing side, San Rafael gave once-beaten Montgomery a struggle before bowing, 81-69, at San Rafael. The College of Marin frosh drubbed cold Drake, 59-41, at San Anselmo, and Healdsburg waltzed by San Marin, 92-51, in Novato.

Thirteen Redwood players hit the scoreboard in the easy win over El Camino as the Giants picked up a 38-21 halftime lead and were never headed. Jerry Piro and Roger Smith were high with 11 points apiece as the Giants upped their won-lost record to 9-3.

Ed Herrnberger continued his hot hand for Novato, pumping in 25 points against Napa, with help from Steve McNally's 11 points.

The Hornets, now 10-4, led by only 39-36 at the end of three periods but a final quarter advantage of 12-5 put it away. Napa's top, player Kirk Schultz, was checked with a two-point output.

Tamalpais struggled for three quarters with a dismal 28-point showing, trailing by 10 points before blasting Vallejo, 21-8, in the final period to pull the game out. The win was the Indians' second against eight losses.

Ken Gommeringer and Dave Larsen led the way with 14 points each and Ron Smith added 11 points.

San Rafael, now 4-6, stayed close almost all the way, leading 31-27 at one point against Montgomery, but hot shooting by Vikings Tom Fitchie and a

Allen Wants New Terms From Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Allen's wife says he has been offered his job back—that of head coach of the Los Angeles Rams. But she says he won't accept unless he gets a new contract.

"George is one of the world's great coaches," Etty Allen said yesterday. "He is now between jobs because the Rams wanted it that way. To get one of the world's greatest coaches, they should make an appropriate offer."

Allen, fired Dec. 26 by club president Dan Reeves because of what Reeves called a personality conflict, has been unavailable for comment on the firing since a Dec. 27 news conference. Reeves also has remained mum.

The Associated Press learned last night that no decision would be made by Allen or the Rams before early next week.

Etty said her husband had been offered his old job back on New Year's Day. But she said no decision had been made, especially in light of offers Allen has received from other teams.

The Buffalo Bills of the American Football League said soon after the firing they were interested in Alllen. Mrs. Allen said a National Football League team is also interested, but declined to name the team.

"His decision will not be made on the size of the offer," she said. "But on other things. He does have to give some thought to the future—not for himself but because he has a wife and four children."

DOWN TO THE SEA IN MOTORCYCLES

Four of the 250 motorcycle riders who started in Wednesday's "Hare Scrambles" race sponsored by the Marin Motorcycle Association at China Camp east of San Rafael churned down a hill and into one of the course's many puddles.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

UP PERISCOPE — A rider eyes the dim view ahead as he hits a deep puddle coming down an incline. Dick Mann of Richmond won the harrowing race with 11 laps.

STEAMING BISCUITS—The motorcycle of Bill "Biscuits" Verbiscio of San Rafael steams after landing in a ditch. "Biscuits" failed to make a muddy rut in the course of the Hare Scrambles, but got up to finish third in the race.

HOT AND COLD MARIN TARS OPEN LEAGUE

College of Marin's up-and-down, mostly down, basketball team opens Camino Norte Conference play tonight when the Tars travel to Cupertino to take on a good DeAnza Junior College team at 8 o'clock.

The Tars, topped by the scoring of guard Andre Horn and forward Pat Schafer, bring a 4-8 won-lost record into the contest. Host DeAnza is 8-5.

Pre-season favorite Contra Costra has the best non-league record among Camino Norte teams with an 11-3 mark.

Return To The One-Platoon System Pondered By NCAA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Worried over rising costs of intercollegiate football which override increased attendance, the National Collegiate Athletic Association today studies countermeasures which could include a return to the one-platoon game.

Chairman John Waldorf and Secretary David Nelson of the Football Rules Committee were invited to meet with the NCAA Council to discuss the situation.

On Monday, when the 63rd annual convention of the NCAA officially opens, a round table discussion takes a look at "the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics."

Any return to one-platoon remains the perogative of the Rules Committee which meets later this month in Palm Springs, but the convention also has power.

It could virtually issue a mandate through limiting the size of squads or the number of grants-in-aid.

Many football coaches have violently opposed a change in the present two-platoon system with different teams for offense and defense and some are sure to be heard.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, told newsmen, "The NCAA Council has expressed concern on the costs." He pointed out the monetary problem was not one of declining receipts with the 1968 attendance of 27,025,000, an increase of 2.25 per cent.

It seemed possible there could be a resolution on the question at Monday's round table discussion which would be put before the general meeting on Wednesday.

NCAA President Marcus L. Plant of Michigan told newsmen he felt a commission system may be a solution to the continuing amateur sports controversy between the Amateur Athletic Union and the various federations, the latter backed by the NCAA.

He pointed out that at Mexico City during the Olympics, the United States Gymnastics Federation and the AAU signed an agreement for a National Gymnastics Commission.

A majority vote controls and if a tie vote results, Arthur Gander of Switzerland, head of the International Gymnastics Federation, will suggest a solution.

Plant, however, said the knotty problem of conciliating differences between the U.S. Track and Field Federation and the AAU continues.

"It seems to us that the gymnastics commission set up a pattern which could be used in working out differences in other sports," the NCAA president said.

Blues Keep Magic Spell Over Seals

OAKLAND (AP) — The St. Louis Blues, runaway leaders in the National Hockey League's West Division, clipped the Oakland Seals, 3-1, last night before a crowd of 6,695 to keep alive the most one-sided series in the league.

Paced by goalie Glenn Hall's fine performance, the Blues picked up their fourth straight win this season over Oakland and remained undefeated in 14 games over a season and a half of play against the Seals.

Doug Harvey and Frank St. Marseille put the Blues ahead in the first period and they were never headed.

Oakland closed the gap when Jerry Ehman rammed in a rebound at 3:49 of the second period. St. Louis defenseman Ray Fortin scored his first goal in NHL play to put the game out of reach.

FINAL FOOTBALL POLL

No Doubt, Buckeyes No. 1

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio State's potent young Buckeyes, firmly entrenched atop the college football world after their Rose Bowl triumph over Southern California, looked forward today to a year . . . or possibly two . . . of continued dominance.

The Buckeyes, named national champions by a wide margin yesterday in the final Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters, will return all but four of the 22 starters who paved the way to a 10-0 finish capped by a 27-16 conquest of then No. 2 Southern Cal.

Thirteen of the 22, including quarterback Rex Kern, are sophomores, making the future brighter than ever for Coach Woody Hayes.

"We've got kids capable of making the big play," Hayes said in Pasadena yesterday before sending the Buckeyes back home to Columbus, Ohio, and then heading for Vietnam, where he'll show Rose Bowl films to the troops.

Ohio State, which last won the national championship 15 years ago, received 44 of the 49 first place votes cast in the final AP ballot. The Buckeyes got 968 points, to 782 for runner-up Penn State, the only other unbeaten, untied major team.

The 11-0 Nittany Lions, who edged Kansas 15-14 in the Orange Bowl New Year's night, moved up from the No. 3 spot they held in the next-to-last poll, conducted at the close of the regular season. Texas, 9-1-1 after trouncing Tennessee 36-13 in the Cotton Bowl, nailed the third spot, with Southern California, 9-1-1, falling to fourth.

The Final Top 20, with first place vote in parentheses, season records, including bowl games, and total points. (Points awarded for first 12 spots on basis of 20-19-18-17-16-15-14-13-12-11-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1)

TOUGHEST KID ON THE BLOCK

Noel Picard of the St. Louis Blues threw a body block on Oakland's Norm Ferguson (17) in first period of last night's National Hockey League game at the Oakland Coliseum. The Blues, who haven't lost to the Seals in a year and a half, did it again, 3-1. (UPI Telephoto) veteran squad killed the Bulldogs.

Fitchie pumped in 27 points and Steve Tiedeman added 21 points and 16 rebounds.

San Rafael missed 26 of 49 free-throw attempts. The Bulldogs got a 24-point splurge from Bill Sleezer and 21 points from junior guard Bruce Nave, who hit on 16 of 19 free throw tries.

San Marin ace Gary Howard poured in 21 points but the first-year club from Novato couldn't cope with Healdsburg, falling behind 44-25 at the half.

Drake failed to get a player in the double-figure column as the Pirates managed only 13 points in the first half, trailing 35-13. Dave Alvarado was high for the losers with nine points.

MINI-OLYMPICS TONIGHT

Assault On World Marks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The "Mini Olympic" All-American Games, first of 31 indoor track and field meets this winter, kick off the 1969 season at the Cow Palace tonight at 7:30 with world records possible in a number of events.

"I wouldn't be the least bit surprised to see several world records set in this meet," observed Payton Jordan of Stanford, the man who led America's men's track and field team to victory at the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

"Most of the boys are still in peak form," added Jordan, "so world records are a distinct possibility in the pole vault, 60-yard dash, 60-yard hurdles and several of the other short races."

Bob Beamon, the man who leaped a fantastic 29-2½ at Mexico City to improve the world long jump record by almost two feet, heads a field of 30 Olympians, 10 of them gold medal winners, in the All-American.

Beamon has set 30 feet as his goal this year and said he could just as easily do it indoors as out, "provided the conditions are perfect."

There are any number of observers who rate his 29-2½ as the single greatest achievement in the history of track and field and who agree almost as emphatically that the record will stand longer than any other mark on the books.

Beamon disagrees.

"I'll get to 30 feet," he said. "Maybe I won't do it at the Cow Palace but I'm sure I'll do it one of these days."

While Beamon's mark stands out like a beam of light on a dark night, he has to share laurels in this meet with Bob Seagren, who holds the world outdoor pole vault mark at 17-9, Lee Evans, the world's top man at 400 meters who plans to move up to the middle distances this year, hurdler Dave Hemery of Great Britain and high jumper Dick Fosbury.

All will be in action tonight in a meet which may not be matched anywhere on the indoor circuit this season as to the number of Olympic stars entered.

Because track and field now has become an around the year sport, few of any of tonight's contestants will be competing much below their best form.

About the only exception will be Gerry Lindgren, the gritty little long distance runner who failed to win an Olympic berth and has been resting since last September's Olympic Trials at South Lake Tahoe. Lindgren ran in the Trials with stomach problems created by an ulcer and a sore achilles tendon. He begins his "comeback" tonight in the two-mile run.

The pole vault field, headed by Seagren, includes six men who have cleared 17 feet. Seagren holds the indoor mark at 17-4¼.

The 60-yard dash is strictly an indoor event and with such as Charlie Greene, John Carlos and Ronnie Ray Smith, all Olympic medalists, in the field Greene's world record 5.9 could be in danger of falling.

Willie Davenport, who won the high hurdles gold medal at Mexico City, tops a crack field in the 60-highs. He holds the world records of 5.4 for 45 yards and 5.9 for 50. His chief competition should come from Hemery, who startled Olympics fans with a world record 48.1 victory in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles.

Carlos, who ran 200 meters in the pending world record time of 19.7 at the U. S. Trials and finished third in the Olympics, also will run in the 300 meter dash. Mike Larrabee, the 1964 400 meter gold medalist, also is in the field.

Evans, who won two Olympic gold medals, will go in the 440-yard dash; Fosbury, who won at Mexico City with a jump of 7-4¼, resumes his rivalry with Ed Caruthers (Mexico silver medalist) in the high jump, and Bill Toomey, Olympic decathlon champ, will compete in the 440 and long jump.

RAMS

"I'm not a coach, I'm just a wife and mother. George will decide as a football coach what to do," she said.

"But how," she asked, "can they possibly expect him to go back under the same old contract conditions? In any arrangement between two human beings, the most important things to consider are their intentions. I think anyone can see the same old contract doesn't protect him enough."

By firing Allen, she said, "They certainly have left him in doubt as to their future intentions."

At his Dec. 27 news conference, Allen was flanked by many Ram stars. Some said they would retire if Allen didn't come back. Others said they would ask to be traded to the team that hires Allen.

"The firing ... hasn't changed his feelings for the players," Etty said. "That love affair is still on, and those are the players he wants to lead to a championship ..."

As for the other offers, Mrs. Allen said only that her husband's decision wouldn't be based solely on monetary considerations. She said she believes Allen wants to coach the Rams.

"He still wants to come back. That's what he wants most," she said.

Allen built a losing NFL team into a winner (8-6) in his first season in Los Angeles. The next year, 1967, the Rams were 11-1-2 and won the Coastal Division title. Last season, Los Angeles lost its last two ball games and wound up 10-3-1.

NFL PLAYOFF BOWL

Stunned Cowboys Seek Solace Against Vikings

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Roy Jordan says he has to prove something to himself. He says the Dallas Cowboys have to prove something to themselves.

Jordan, a 225-pound linebacker for the Cowboys, figures tomorrow against the Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League's playoff game is as good a time as any to find some answers. (The game will be nationally televised by CBS at 10:30 a.m., PST.)

The 27-year-old Jordan, in his sixth year of professional football, admits he still is a little numb from losing the Eastern Conference title playoff to Cleveland two weeks ago.

"We've got to win this one (the Playoff Bowl) to prove to ourselves and other people we have what it takes to come back."

CAN'T WAIT

Jordan has heard that the Cowboys can't win the big ones. He says Dallas has to start its comeback now. "We can't wait until next season. That's too far away."

Dallas won the NFL's Capitol Division with a 12-2 record. The Cowboys were favored to beat Cleveland but lost 31-20.

"It took quite a while," said Jordan, "for me to get over it. It was hard to live with. I was moody, didn't want to talk to anybody or see anyone. I didn't want to entertain in my home."

Jordan said that finally he decided there was nothing he could do about it, so he went out and played some golf. "My golf was so terrible that I forgot about football," he said.

The 6-foot-1 linebacker, who played for Alabama before turning pro, expects the Cowboys to win big before an expected 50,000 fans at the Orange Bowl.

"It really boils down to pride," he said.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant has said that his Central Division champions—they lost the Western title to Baltimore—also are in good spirits and he expects them to play a fine game. Minnesota and Dallas met earlier in the season, with the Cowboys winning a hard-fought game 20-7.

Sonoma State Cage Squad Wins, 108-96

Sonoma State College's basketball team proved to be an unkind host last night, dumping visiting Southern Oregon of Ashland, Ore., 108-96, at Rancho Cotate High School in Rohnert Park.

Six-foot nine-inch center John Thornton, averaging 13 points going into last night's game, exploded for 37 points. Sonoma State, now 4-3, plays Southern Oregon again tonight at 8 o'clock.

Nate Sparks Warriors Past Boston

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The return of towering Nate Thurmond from the injury list has turned the San Francisco Warriors into National Basketball Association contenders again.

Thurmond sparked a powerful second half rally that gave the Warriors a 104-102 victory over the world champion Boston Celtics last night at the Cow Palace.

The win was iced by a three-point play — a free throw and a field goal — both by Thurmond, with 52 seconds to play.

Stanford '5' Loses Debut In New Gym

STANFORD (AP) — Brigham Young spoiled the opening of Stanford's new $3.5 million Roscoe B. Maples Pavilion last night by handing the Indians a 95-39 basketball defeat.

Stanford jumped to an early 16-6 lead, but BYU used its height advantage to control the boards from that point and grab a 48-45 lead at the half.

Kari Liimo, a forward, scored 14 points in the first half to lead the Cougar first half surge. Marty Lithgoe, with 20 points, 12 in the second half, led BYU scorers.

Stanford Mal McElwain kept the Indians in contention with 20 points.

Stanford's two Negro players, co-captain Don Griffin and Bill Barber, who had threatened to boycott the game because of alleged racial policy of the Mormon church wich operates BYU, both played. Griffin scored 19 points while Barber had six.

MARIN COUNTY BOWLING NOTES

Happy Holiday For The Distaffers

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Christmas and New Year's holidays must bring out the best in women bowlers.

Big scores over the holidays came from Penny Conti and Sylvia Knutson at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, and Anne Gildersleeve at Nave Lanes near Ignacio.

Penny rolled a 636 three-game series in the Hi-Lo's League, a 587 in the Toppers, and a 579 in the TGIF League, and Sylvia, treasurer of the Marin County Woman's Bowling Association, blasted out a 610 in the Mixed Travel League. Penny's 636 consisted of 194, 214 and 228 games. Sylvia's series was topped by a 228.

Anne had best score at Nave Lanes both in line and series. She banged out a 267 game and went on to a 614 series in the Novato Unified Bowlers League. Those scores even beat out the men at Nave Lanes.

THIS AND THAT — High scores from Country Club came from Jim Simmons, 675; Rich Curry, 667, Tom Amiral, 657; Steve Pieser, 647, and Bill Raudin, 640. (That 675 by Simmons was pced by a 265 and Curry's 667 had a 259 on top of it.) ... Lou Pfaff opened the eyes of the bowlers in the Nite Owls League at Country Club when he rolled a 276 game and 630 series ... Don Vattuone rolled a 111 triplicate in the Bowers League (now that's a league name for you) ... Marg Nelson, 132 average, rolled a 205-528 in the Striking Trios at Nave Lanes ... Agnes Johnson led the Women's Scratch League at Nave Lanes with a 234 game and 568 series ... Barbara Denay, 135 avg., rolled a 205 in the Novato Unified Bowlers, first time over the 200 mark.

PICKIN' 'EM UP — While Sylvia Knutson was rolling that 238 in the Mixed Travel at Country Club, Larry Asay rolled a 247 to help the Al Villa Builders team to an 819 team game ... Sam Ferry led scores in the Hawaiian League at Nave Lanes, 612 ... Helene Frederick almost had a 156 triplicate in the Classy Lassie League at Nave Lanes but fell four pins short in the final game ... In the Merry Mixers at Country Club, George Wigner picked up the 6-7-10 split on his way to a 226 game and Al Giambra converted the 4-7-10 leave ... That 31-game winning streak by Bert's and Johnnie's Auto Wrecking team in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club was wrecked by the Office Kitchen bowlers ... The 1969 Woman's International Bowling Congress national tournament is scheduled for April 3 through May 25 in San Diego. Entry deadline is Jan. 24. For information, call either Marin association secretary Marilyn Epidendio or treasurer Sylvia Knutson.

Prices Are Royal, Too, For Nixon's 'Coronation'

THE INAUGURATION OF an American president is, unhappily, beginning to assume dimensions of pageantry comparable to the coronation of an European monarch.

The Nixon inaugural will begin with an "inaugural all-American gala" one week from next Thursday. This is described as "an evening of entertainment by stage and television stars." It will be held at the National Guard Armory in Washington.

If you are invited, you can get a peanut gallery ticket for as little as $25. If you want a box seat, you must take the entire 10-seat box for $1,000.

Curiously, the address of the "1969 Inaugural Committee" to which you must mail your reservation order and check is "The Pension Building, Washington, D.C. 20025."

THE DAY FOLLOWING the gala, the "inaugural concert" is to be held at Constitution Hall in the nation's capital.

It is to be hoped that there is no omen in the circumstance which finds the least expensive ticket to the concert selling for only a fifth the price of the cheapest ticket to the stage and TV gala. You can get into the inaugural concert for as little as $5. Better seats cost $7.50, $10, $25 or $35. If you want a box, you must take five seats for a total of $500.

One might therefore deduce that the prestige of sitting in a box at the concert is the equal of sitting in a box at the gala.

But sitting in the peanut gallery or "cloth coat" section of the concert would seem far lower in prestige than a similar seat at the gala.

ON INAUGURATION DAY, two weeks from today, you can get a bleacher seat to watch the inaugural parade for $4 to $25. The latter is the price of a box seat and you don't have to buy an entire box just to get one seat.

Whether you pay $4, $5, $8, $12 or $18 for a bleacher seat to watch the parade depends, not on how well you can see the parade from your seat, but on how close your seat is to the White House.

Whether the $4 tickets are even in the corporate limits of Washington is not specified.

To repeat, any and all of the foregoing tickets must be ordered from the same address, the Pension Building.

(If the connection between inaugural pageantry and pensions escapes you, welcome to the club.)

WHERE DO YOU FIND a hotel room in Washington during the inaugural period? You guessed it. You write to the Inaugural Housing Committee, 1632 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20025.

How do you get to Washington?

Easiest way would be to fly on the "Inaugural Charter Flight" arranged by the 1969 California Inaugural Committee.

It will leave San Francisco International Airport at 1 p.m. Jan. 17 — in time to get to Washington to attend the Inaugural Gala. The charter will return Jan. 22, allowing you a day to rest after the four-day orgy of pageantry.

The charter flight will provide, of course, "first class service throughout," at $180 per person, round trip, including taxes.

The check for the flight goes to the California Inaugural Committee in San Francisco and must be in by Monday.

IF YOU DECIDE TO GO and expect that the first class service on the charter will "spoil" you into wanting first class for everything — gala, concert and parade — you can do it for only about $400 plus hotel and meals, if you don't take the wife.

If you scrimped, you could take your wife and the whole tab, including hotel and meals, might be scarcely more than $1,000.

Wonder what the founding fathers who thought they were doing away with the trappings of royalty would think of that?

Cure Worse Than Disease?

The Bay Area Air Pollution Control District Board next Wednesday will consider imposing a ban on backyard burning as a means toward reducing smog.

Wonder if the board members have considered the possiblity that the air pollution created by exhaust fumes from cars and trucks making all those extra trips to dumps with the refuse that could not be burned would create more air pollution than the backyard burning?

Bouquets And No Brickbat

The biggest of BOUQUETS to Col. Frank A. Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., Lt. Col. Van A. Anders, and all the many others who made possible their breath-taking, fantastic and successful flight around the moon and back to earth.

BOUQUETS to all those Marinites who welcomed the New Year sensibly rather than adding to the perils of highways by celebrating too liquidly and then getting behind the steering wheels of automobiles.

We swore off brickbats for one week as a New Year's resolution.

Garbage Pickups Skipped Nobody

On Saturday, Dec. 28, your newspaper printed a photo and news story which caused ill will towards Marin Sanitary Service. Although you did not mention the company by name, the area mentioned was serviced by Marin Sanitary Service.

Obviously you failed to read the front page ad in your own newspaper Saturday, Dec. 21, which clearly stated that Monday's garbage would be picked up on Sunday, Tuesdays on Monday, and Wednesday's on Tuesday, so that no one customer's service would be "postponed." Never in the history of Marin Sanitary Service, has anyone's garbage been "postponed" for any reason. If a miss occurs, it is picked up the following day.

I hope that next year, you will send a reporter and photographer to report and photograph the 18,000 accounts that we service, so that they may report to you the 18,000 eyesores we face the week after Christmas. Even though no one was missed, I'm sure it will be a site to remember.

I am very proud of my service and I am equally proud of the men who gave up their Sundays with their families so that "holiday hazards" and "eye sores" would be cleaned up as best as it would be humanly possible.

LINES ON LIVING

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Three courageous men blazed the longest path ever taken by human beings. They broke the shackles of earth's gravitational pull and set out gliding on a voyage to the stars.

And on that silent night, Dec. 24, human voices began emerging from the dark side of the moon, laconically informing earthbound creatures: "We got it; we've got it; Apollo 8 now in lunar orbit." And as they beamed their first television pictures from the realm of mystery and dream, we in our living rooms became witnesses anew to the miracle called man.

It was all so breath-taking and wonderous and glorious: human voices emitting sounds in bottomless space, a quarter-million miles deep; human hands navigating their tile neighbors to respond in spaceship in the void of other worlds; human eyes scanning the surface of another planet unaided by telescope; earth's people invading heaven's confines, celestial terrain.

TO SAY THAT this is testimony to man's virility of strength and endurance is an understatement. It testifies, above all, to his indomitable spirit and faith.

That the Columbuses of humanity, bestirred by charts and maps, have navigated to newer and wider shores of promise in the oceans of water, air and space, is no small miracle. But the greater miracle is their human stamina and fortitude to be guided and sustained by dreams that were first merely an opinion of faith, only to persist and prevail long enough to realization and triumph. The greater wonder is man's ability to see visions and look at things, not as they are, but as they ought to be.

Our ascent to the moon, therefore, proves more than the mere fact that we are master technicians, builders and scientists. It proves, more than anything else, that we are dreamers and believers. All that man thinks and believes and dreams is real and true, if he sets his mind long enough to prayer, to work and to perseverance, so as to witness realization.

THE FACT that man's thoughts turn to God, that he craves for immortality, that he dreams dreams and sees visions — isn't all this sufficient reason for a claim on divine prospects and superhuman qualities?

We know God is: our thoughts and visions of Him prove it. But we also know that God is with us and favors us — our good earth with its living and hospitable conditions prove it. From the heights of 200,000 space miles, our world looks puny at the edge of a stupendous universe. Yet, from atop Apollo's nose cone in the valleys of moon's shadow, the real heaven and dreamlike paradise is this earth. Moon's beauty is a myth of earthlings, an optical illusion of poets.

To the eyes of the first men who gazed upon the lunar expanse, it all seemed so plainly bleak and uninviting and colorless, with "a very whitish gray, like dirty beach sand with lots of footprints on it." Certainly no human footprints.

Navigating through the airless and waterless desolation of lunar's eerie silence, the three courageous men came out from the moon's shadow wiser men. Their longing urge to go back home to earth, was a sobering experience to all humanity, a reminder that the only oasis of life, of green and growth, of water, wind and color, is here on earth (as far as we know).

To us the living, it is still the best of all possible worlds, if we learn to live in it together as friendly and cooperative copilots that are bound together in a common voyage in an eternal ocean of time and space.

Israel, Fighting For Life, Can Be Forgiven Excesses

(Marquis Childs is on vacation.)

WASHINGTON — All this breast-beating condemnation of Israel by "world opinion" for the Israelis' reprisal attack upon the airport in Lebanon needs some cool re-examination and some factual perspective.

It is true that Israel's action, in retaliation for a terrorist Arab assault upon an Israeli aircraft in Athens in which an Israeli lost his life, was unwise and excessive — if judged in isolation. Lebanon has been a moderate force within the Arab bloc and has thus far joined only by words in the "holy war" being conducted against Israel by more vehement — and Communist-oriented — states such as Nasser's Egypt.

Still, this business cannot be understood out of its whole context. When all the facts, and not just some of them, are seen without prejudice, Israel comes off incomparably better than it is coming off in the excited indictments now being flung about inside and outside the United Nations.

FIRST OF ALL, Israel's commandos at any rate took the greatest care in Lebanon to take no man's life. But the essential points are vastly deeper. Here is a nation dug out of the hard, arid earth that for all its life has been tirelessly menaced by extremist Arabs from every side.

Week after week, month after month, year after year the Israelis have been drenched by the poisonous hatred of Cairo Radio. Eternally threatened, they have lived in a stockade state, much as did the American pioneers. Endlessly attacked along their frontiers, they have responded with a courage and an elan rarely seen in contemporary times.

Explicitly and repeatedly told by Arabs that they are going to be destroyed by Arabs, it is perhaps not too surprising that after two decades it is growing difficult for them to see that "big picture" which statesmen far from the scene are pleased to paint for them.

Is it very surprising, then, that finally they react with undue violence, considering the further point that never once have they been granted elementary justice by a U. N. presently headed by the openly prejudiced Secretary General U Thant?

THE SIMPLE, historic reality is that the Israelis have never stood a chance in the U.N., where the Russians and their tinpot and sometimes crypto-Communist allies, among the African and Asian states have used this tough and tiny western outpost as a kind of badminton shuttlecock in the cold war.

But there is an even more fundamental truth, and it is this: It is no longer liberally chic to be pro-Israel, where once it was too liberally chic altogether. Twenty years ago "elite" American opinion sentimentalized Israel out of all reason. Today, "elite" American opinion can hardly find anything good about the Israelis.

It would require a book fully to explore this turnabout; this columnist's opinion is that Israel has fallen out of grace not because of its considerable faults but rather because of its old-fashioned virtues.

For the Israelis oddly cling to certain outmoded concepts which in a shorthand way are more conservative than otherwise, to wit:

THEY DO NOT happily embrace any and all "revolutions," such as Col. Abdel Gamal Nasser's exported "revolutions" in places like Yemen. They feel no shame in being patriots. They love their country; they will unhesitatingly fight for it. And they will not be talked out of their right — and duty — of self-defense.

They do not accept the new isolationism, the new peacenikism, of the New Left now so popular in quarters here and abroad. Having been told several thousand times that pro-Communist Arabs intend the literal destruction of their way of life, they have come to believe it.

It's Easier To Get To Moon —You Don't Need To Buy Ticket

WASHINGTON — Although it doesn't seem to be much of a problem to get a man from the earth to the moon, it's still almost impossible to develop a fast train from New York to Washington. While some probes have been made by unmanned pullmans, rail-space officials said it was still too dangerous to send men to Washington in one of the new craft.

The head of the rail-space program, Werner von Penncentral, said that despite setbacks he felt the United States could get man from New York to Washington in three hours, by 1972.

"WHAT'S BEEN holding up the program?" I asked him.

"Train travel is a journey into the unknown. There are so many things that we have to know before we can put men on rails."

"What are some of te hazards to rail-space travel?"

"The first of course is the lift-off. In order to get a man from New York to Washington he must have a ticket. So far we have not perfected the ticket system that would make it possible for a manned trip."

"YOU MEAN the ticket problem is holding up the race in the capital?"

Werner von Penncentral said indignantly, "If Borman, Lovell and Anders had to buy tickets for their moon shot at Penn Station they wouldn't have made it either."

"What other hazards are you faced with?"

"We still don't know what effects a fast train ride will have on the human body. Of course we've put dogs and chimpanzees on trains, and they've given us some medical data.

"But as far as man is concerned, we'd only be guessing. We don't know for example what happens to the human body when it goes through Trenton or Philadelphia, not to mention Wilmington, Del. And then there is the Baltimore Belt. Can man live in the tunnels that run under Baltimore at 200 miles an hour? These are photographs of the New York to Washington road bed, taken by Borman from the moon. Notice the craters and pits. We have to know more about them before we risk a human life on a trip."

"I ADMIT that you must be cautious," I said. "But isn't the rail-space program being criticized for the slow progress that is being made in rail travel?"

"When you're dealing with something as new as passenger trains, you have to expect disappointments. We've had engine trouble, capsule setbacks, lavatory failures. But we're learning all the time. The research gained from the rail-space program will no only benefit transportation but mankind as well."

"What would speed up the program?"

"The only thing that would speed up the program is if the Soviets announced that they were going to build a railroad from New York to Washington. Then Congress would allot us the money for a crash program. There is no pressure to do anything in this country unless we think the Soviets are going to do it first."

"SOME PEOPLE say we're spending too much money on our rail-space program. What is your answer to that?"

"It's true that there has been this criticism, particularly since many people say there is no life in Washington.

"But we must consider the New York to Washington run the first step in a giant exploration. Who knows but someday man will go to Richmond or Atlanta on a fast train? So we can't say that just because we're not going to get much out of going to Washington from New York that we're wasting our money."

"YOU THINK if man ever finds a way of sending a fast train from New York to the nation's capital he will open a whole new world?"

"I'll go farther than than. I predict that we may not see it, but your children and my children will someday be able to travel as far away as Miami on a train with the same ease and comfort that it now takes man to go to the moon."

Today is Saturday, Jan. 4, the fourth day of 1968 with 361 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1885 Dr. William Grant of Davenport, Iowa, performed the first appendectomy. The patient made a complete recovery.

In 1937 about 10,000 Italian troops landed in Spain to bolster nationalist forces in the Spanish Civil War.

In 1948 Burma became an independent nation.

How Stayman Convention Aids After An Opening Two No-Trump

In an expert game, a response of two clubs to partner's opening bid of one no-trump is the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards if he can. You can make the same kind of bid if your partner opens with two no-trump. You bid three clubs to prove for a fit in a major suit.

SPADE SUIT

In today's hand North's response of three clubs is the Stayman Convention, and South obediently shows his four-card spade suit. North raises to four spades, and South must subside. North already knows about South's 22 to 24 points, but South doesn't know about North's hand. If there is any chance for a slam, the first move must come from North.

As it happens, North has no interest in a slam. In fact, North would not bet the family jewels that his side can make even a game.

West opens the seven of diamonds, and East wins with the ace. East fires back the queen of diamonds, and South must show what kind of head he has on his shoulders.

KEY PLAY

A chuckleheaded South will play the king of diamonds on East's queen. West ruffs, and South must eventually lose two more diamond tricks. Down one.

If South is level-headed, he plays a low diamond at the second trick. If the five missing diamonds happen to break 3-2, South can lose the first three tricks but will make the rest. The real danger lies in a 4-1 diamond break.

SITUATION CLEAR

After South has ducked the second diamond, West's discard makes the situation clear. If East continues with a low diamond, South can play low; and if East leads the jack of diamonds, South can cover with the king. Either way the defenders can take only three diamond tricks, and South easily wins the rest.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:
♠ 8 5 2

♣ Q 10 8 7 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention.

If partner bids three hearts, you will raise to four hearts; if he bids anything else, you will bid three no-trump.

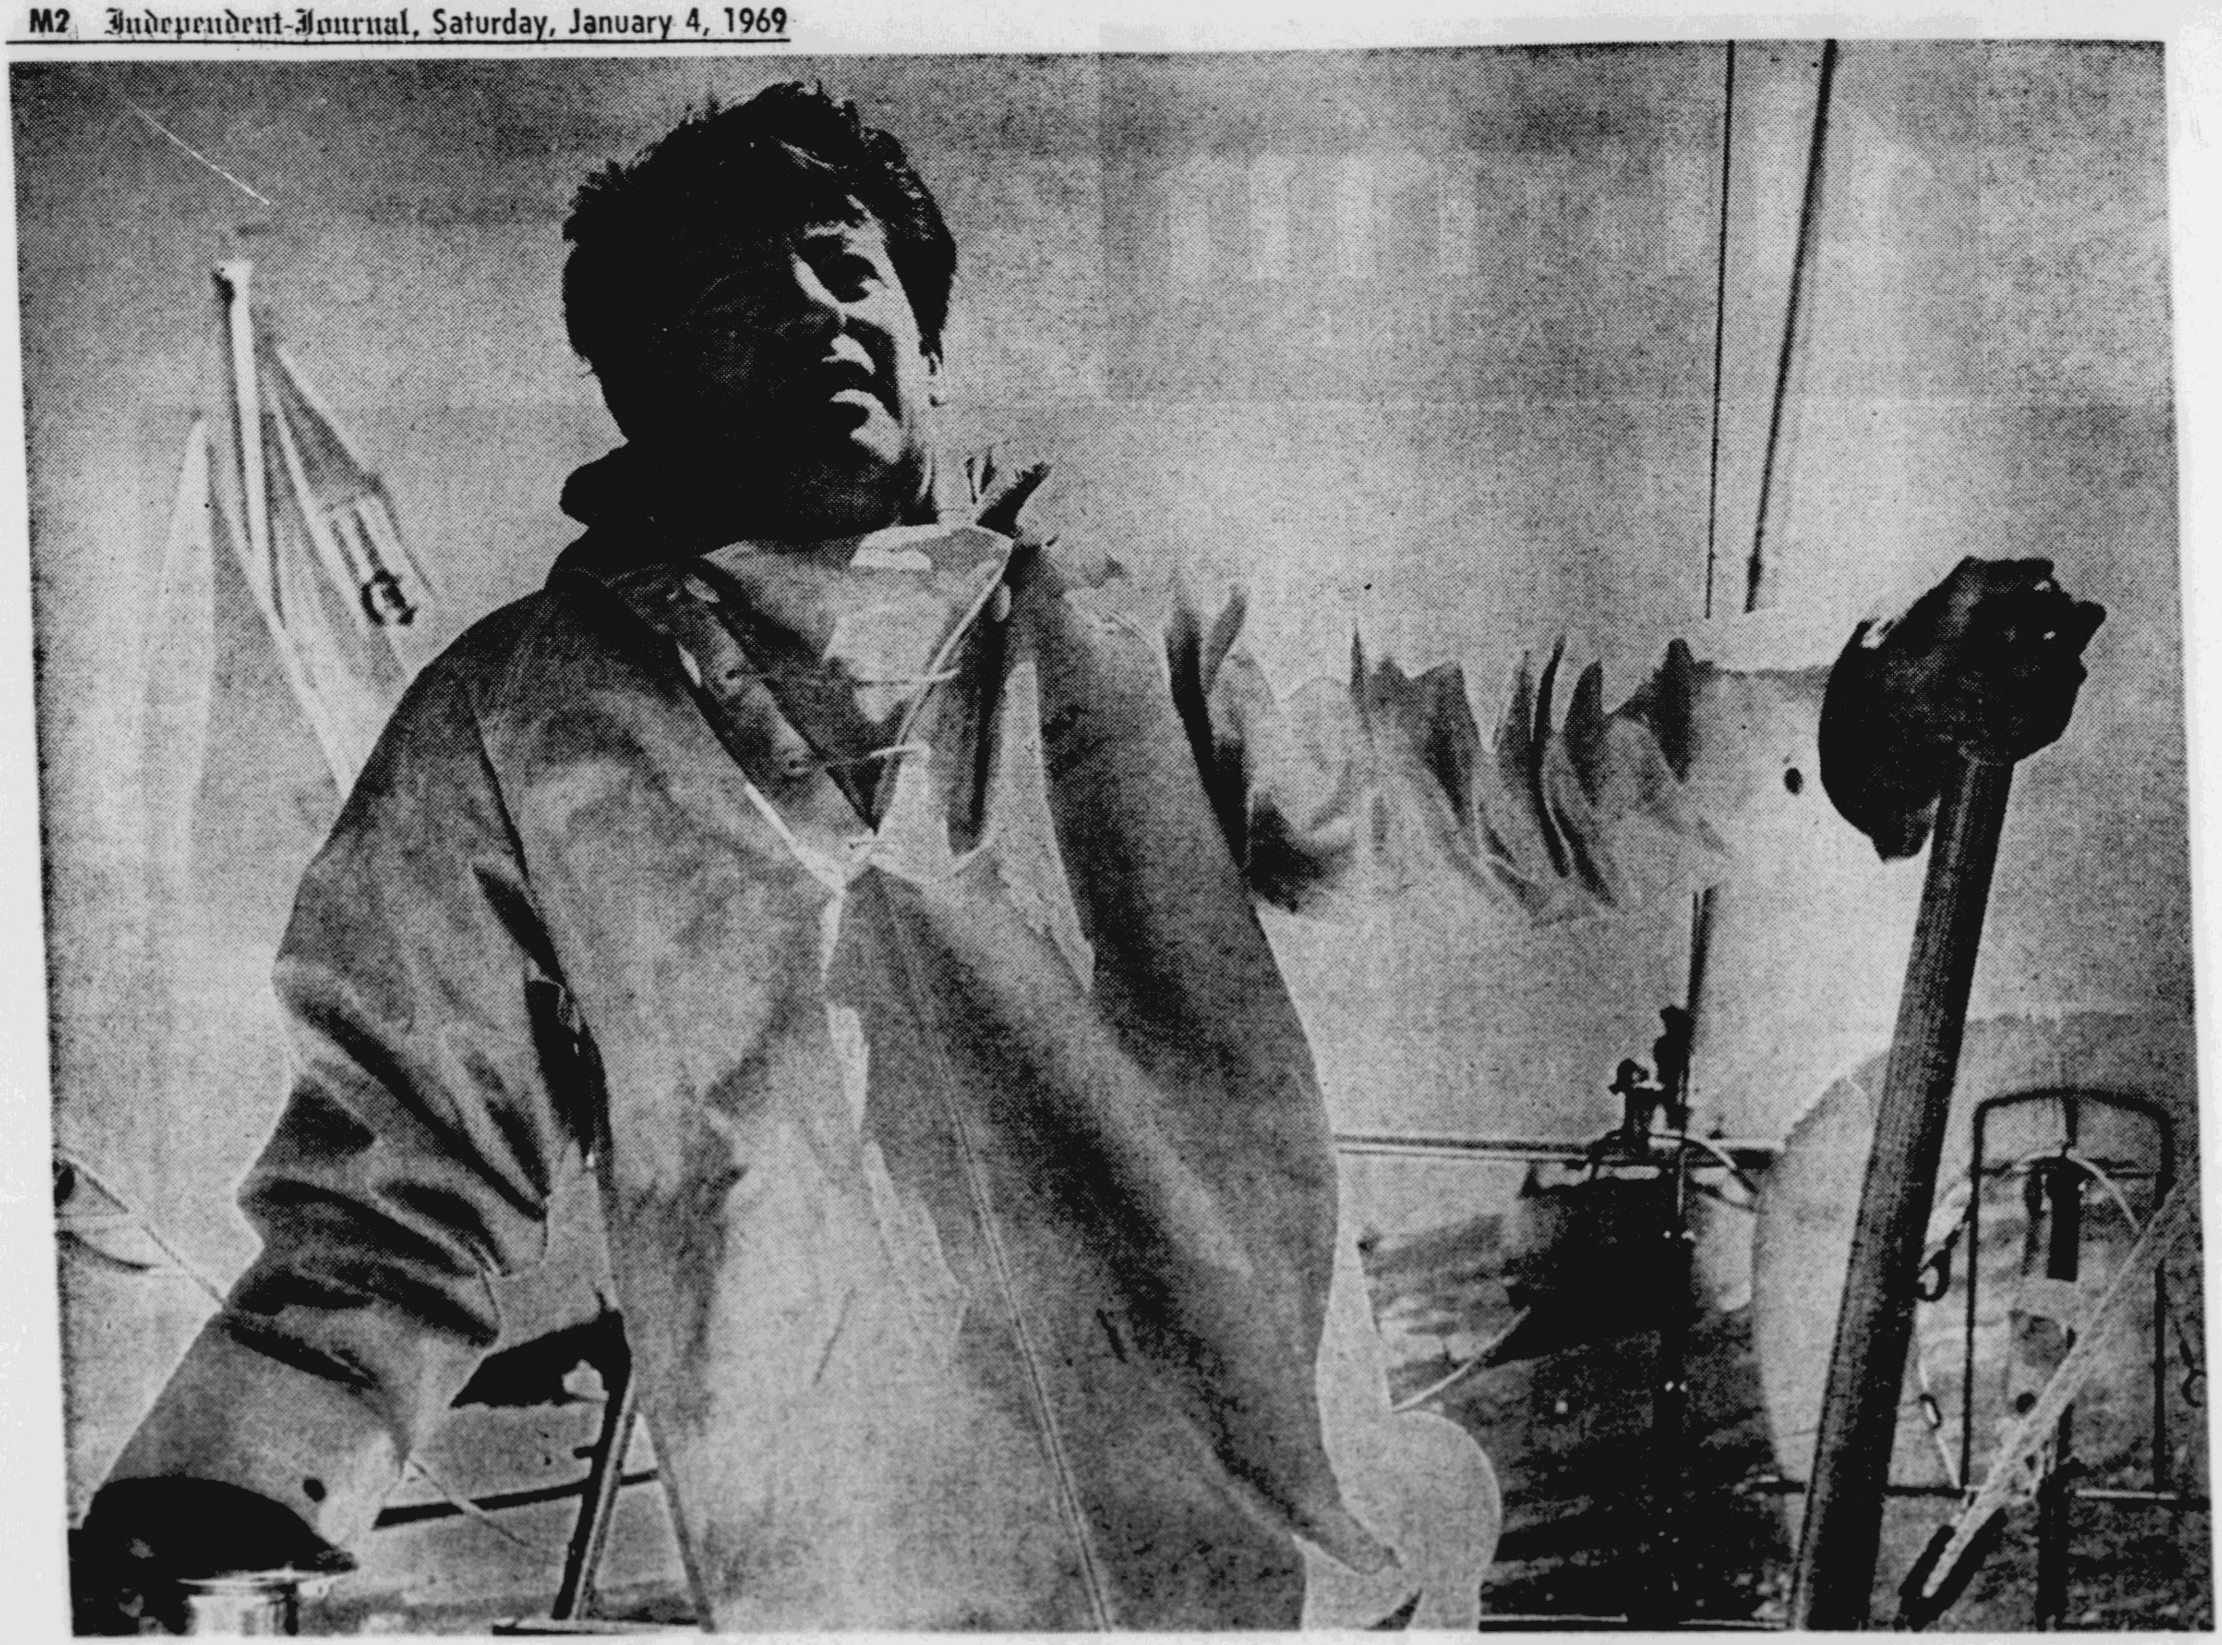
Marin's Lively Lady Invades The East

See Page M2



WITH THE WIND in his hair, but warmly garbed against the brisk sea air, Mike Shea is happiest at the tiller of his Lively Lady, whether on a pleasure or practice sail, or engaged in racing competition with the best available challengers.

THE LIVELY LADY

Bay Area's Winningest Yacht Takes On Eastern Challengers

He's the bay's winningest skipper: Pacific Coast champion in 1962; San Francisco Bay champ in '62, '65, '66 and '68; one-man ocean racing champ for three years, and three-time winner of the bay classic known as th "Midnight Moonlight Marathon" in which some 70 to 80 competitors enter.

The rest of the time he leads an interesting if less competitive workaday life as a jet captain for American Airlines. And spends as much time as he can with his wife, Nancy, and family of six youngsters, at their home on the water at 77 West Shore, Belvedere.

Now, he's answering one of the great challenges for any skipper.

AS CAPTAIN of the great team of designer, builder, crew and backer, he will enter the Southern Ocean Racing Circuit competition of six lengthy races including the Nassau Governor's Cup in February and March, at St. Petersburg, Fla.

He will enter a design that has won 11 out of 12 races in which it has been entered. It is a design arrived at after lengthy consultation with Gary Mull, Oakland naval architect, and built in Taiwan entirely of mahogany and teak.

She is the Lively Lady, a 30-foot "Cruising Club D" design similar to that known as a "Newport Thirty." She is "strip-planked and edge-glued," with no frames — one of a very few of her construction in the entire world.

HER PLANKS are inch-and-a-half mahogany, her trim is teak. Her small coachhouse cabin is well raked, her deck is flush. She has a nine-and-a-half foot beam and weighs 10,000 pounds, with half of that weight in her lead-keel ballast.

Captain Shea has collected a star-studded crew for the big February-March effort.

First and foremost is his backer — David Allen, Marin County builder and developer, and president of the Belvedere Land Co.

Allen will stand the costs of entering the Lively Lady in the Southern Ocean competitions — a series of races ranging from 85 to 435 miles in distance, and known as "the great American tank test," where all the greatest of the country's designers and yachtsmen bring

WITH A stiff wind blowing and the waters kicking up, Mike Shea's Lively Lady, a 30-foot racing boat designed in consultation with Oakland naval architect Gary Mull and built in Taiwan, cuts through the bay with no difficulty. The Lively Lady, one of the most successful Class D boats in Pacific Coast racing, has been shipped to Florida, there to challenge the best in the East in the annual Southern Ocean Racing Circuit competition. THE SUCCESS Mike Shea has enjoyed in sail racing is attested by the huge collection of trophies in his home. Professionally, Shea is a jet plane pilot for American Airlines.

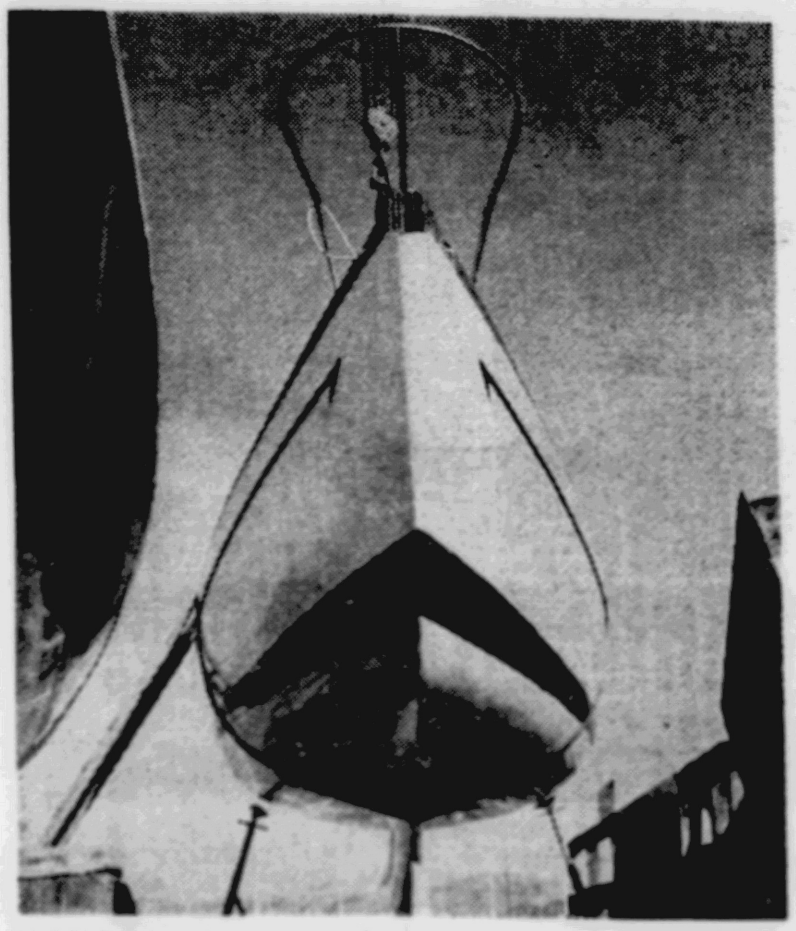
BEFORE DEPARTING for Florida and the upcoming Southern Ocean Racing Circuit season, the Lively Lady underwent a careful check and tune-up in her home port. Backer David Allen, left, who is also a member of the crew, and skipper Mike Shea supervise as Mike Verrier does a job.

WITH WIFE Nancy, Mike Shea relaxes on the deck of their comfortable Belvedere home beside the water upon which he spends so much of his leisure time.



IN DRYDOCK, the size and the lines of the Gary Mull-designed Lively Lady are impressive and pleasing to the eyes.

SNUG IS THE word for the small coachhouse cabin of the Lively Lady, and Capt. Mike Shea sees that things there are kept shipshape.

THE LIVELY LADY is the picture of grace as she glides over smooth waters of San Francisco Bay with skipper and crew relaxing aboard. Things become much busier, however, when the 30-foot boat competes in yachting races as she often does. Skipper Mike Shea has assembled an expert and experienced crew for what looms ahead as the Lively Lady's biggest season of racing.

Mull of Oakland, will be aboard to lend a hand, as will David Allen, Steve Taft, Tom Cooke and Les Brilliant of Belvedere.

Don Felix of San Francisco and Ding Schoonmaker of St. Petersburg, navigator, complete the roster of blue-water sailors.

THE PROSPECTS are good. Lively Lady, a D-class boat, has already won races against C and B classes.

She was hauled from the water in early December and trucked to St. Petersburg.

Except for some extraordinary troubles in one race that the Lively Lady lost by only seven seconds on corrected time, she would be entering the southern circuit as an unbeaten contender. The loss was in the Hearst Regatta, and in spite of the fact she broke her spinnaker pole, hove to for repairs and limped home on a jury rig, she came in ahead of the pack, only to lose, by those slim seven seconds, on corrected time.

SHEA'S YOUNGSTERS are taking to the water. Two of his five daughters are sailing successfully, as is his 10-year-old son.

Shea learned to fly with the Air Force, having flown B24s out of Africa and Italy in World War II until he was shot down over Yugoslavia. He then walked out in 30 days to freedom.

The design of the Lively Lady is already a proven success. She has been looked-at with interest by Olin Stevens and Halsey Herreshoff, two of the world's best designers. And an initial 10 boats of the Lively Lady class will be built for sale, as soon as a builder can be decided upon.

So it will be with more than casual interest that the Belvedere, Marin County and Bay Area yachting communities will watch the Southern Ocean Racing Circuit this year, and the performances of Mike Shea of Belvedere, and the San Francisco Yacht Club's Lively Lady and her crew.

A Marin Designer Outside The County

The talents of Marin County designers and decorators often make themselves felt outside the boundaries of our own county.

Sausalito's Lillian Kersnar Johnson is one such interior designer.

When the builders of the Villages, a San Jose condominium development, wanted furnished models to impress the public with the potential of their new residences, they turned to Mrs. Johnson, who works out of her Sausalito home, for the decor.

LILLIAN KERSNAR JOHNSON

Mrs. Johnson responded by setting up one of two display models that met with great success.

"What I tried to do," she says, "was to show an eclectic taste.

"I wanted to provide a setting suited to the needs of people with better than average income and education — people who travel and who are independent of fads and current fashions.

"These would be people of good taste, and with the means to satisfy those tastes."

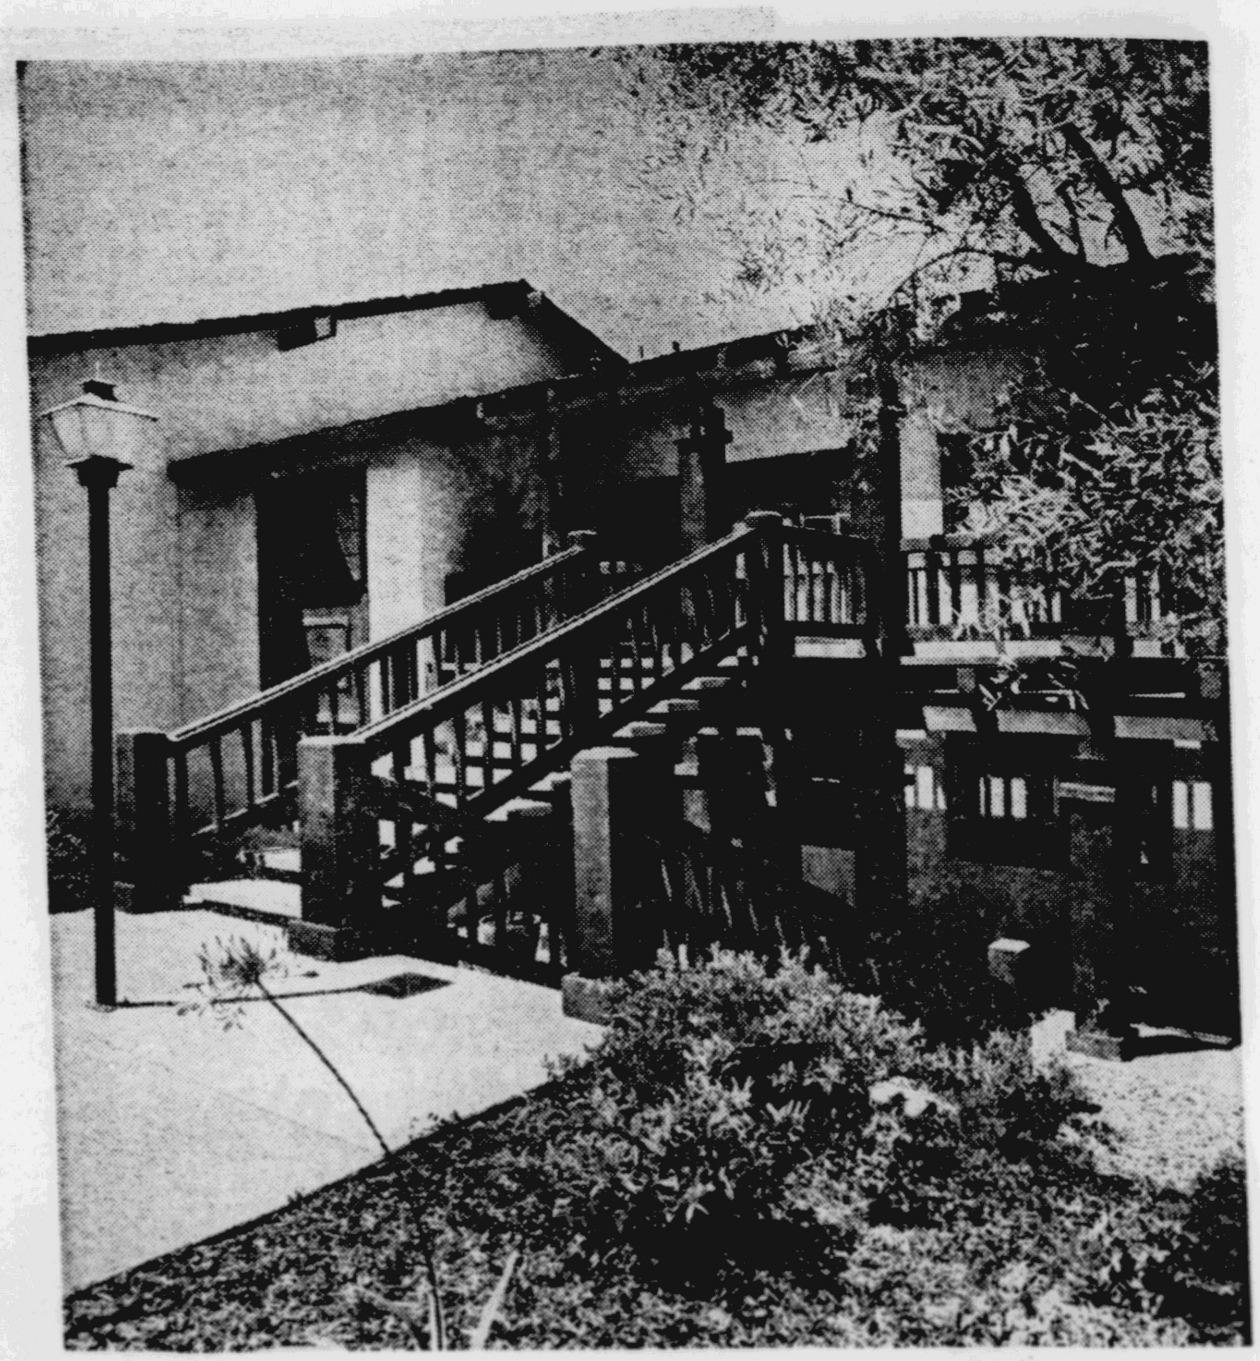
These were the kind of people for whom the Villages had originally been planned by the co-developers, Guy F. Atkinson Co. and Mackay Homes, the designer pointed out.

Mrs. Johnson is a member of the American Institute of Interior Designers and the National Home Fashion League. She has served as design consultant in the furnishing and decoration of many major executive offices and for both large and small private homes and apartments, as well as to the Stanford Research Institute at Palo Alto.

Her background includes liberal arts and fine arts schooling at the University of Arizona, painting instruction from Arizona artists Anita Buckman and Gertrude Ostrander, short periods of study with Frank Lloyd Wright, four years with the Emporium in San Francisco and four years with W. and J. Sloane of San Francisco including one year as manager of its Studio of Interior Design.

For the past 10 years she and her husband, Dale C. Johnson, a technical illustrator and structural designer, have operated their own business in Sausalito, Kersnar-Johnson Design.

She has four children, ages 6 to 29, and four grandchildren, ages 1 to 4, and finds time to teach classes in San Francisco at the YWCA, Galileo High School and San Francisco City College.



THE VILLAGES, constructed as a joint condominium project by Guy F. Atkinson Co. and Mackay Homes, is located in San Jose, but the builders turned to a Marin interior designer, Lillian Kersnar Johnson, for the decor of a model unit to impress the public.

THE PATIO as well as the interior of the model condominium at the Villages received the Lillian Kersnar Johnson treatment. The rattan chairs, bought in natural color and sprayed white, are by John McGuire, the San Francisco designer-manufacturer. Planters are peel (a form of bamboo) and also sprayed white. The redwood table moves on wheels.

THE LIVING area of the model condominium at the Villages in San Jose, as furnished and decorated by Marin interior designer Lillian Kersnar Johnson, features furniture by John McGuire of San Francisco that is rattan with cane sides and in a bone white finish. The couch is hand-embroidered crewel work, done in Spain. The draperies are of sheer linen casement with a burnt orange and gold fringe. Walls and ceilings of the apartment are white. Mrs. Johnson's intent was to design living quarters suited to persons of better than average income with eclectic tastes. Rooms were particularly planned for the effective display of art objects and other collector items which frequent travelers so often acquire. (Photos by Karl H. Riek)

THE DINING AREA features dividers that are black wrought iron equipped with pulls with pressure cups, as well as handsome furniture showing a Mediterranean influence. The table has an oak top and a heavy wrought iron base. Carpeting is Bigelow-Sanford with a very dense pile of off-white New Zealand wool. Designers, Mrs. Johnson says, generally give wool a strong vote of preference over synthetic fiber carpetings.

A BREAKFASTING area in the condominium kitchen is a bright and cheerful spot with its handprinted wallpaper, Bates circular tablecloth with fringe that is machine washable, and Swiss tambour drapes of hand-embroidered bastiste on an inch and a half brass rod. The chairs are imported from Portugal. Wall accessories are small antiques. Dominant colors are burnt orange, gold and off-whites. (Additional photos on Page M8)

THERE WERE two bedrooms in the Villages condominium apartments, one of which Lillian Kersnar Johnson furnished as a den. That room, at right, opens off the living room, but can be shut off by louvered doors. Without bolsters, the couch will sleep one. It is an antique piece purchased in Novato, sprayed black and upholstered in burnt orange velvet. The coffee table is oak. Book and ornament shelves are pilasters of oak with inset brass striping for hanging adjustable shelves. Below, the master bedroom features a bed and case pieces by Stanley with slight Mediterranean overtones. Drapes are a Schumacher antique satin in white with Indian-embroidered crewel border. A Peruvian rug has been used as a wall hanging. Spread is a heavy Wale corduroy in burnt orange with blending fringe. The two lamps are Chinese candlesticks that have been wired and shaded. Accessories are strongly black. (Photos by Karl H. Riek)

A Marin Profile — Larkspur's Tall Man

By ROSS DAVIS

When tall-standing, hard-working Neil Rhinehardt Brixon discusses Larkspur's past, present, and future projects, it's difficult to determine whether he's talking from a city councilman's viewpoint or from that of a chamber of commerce official.

It's also difficult for him to distinguish between the two roles, and he readily admits it. "It's because business is still the prime support of the city," said the man who is Larkspur's Chamber of Commerce president and present vice mayor of the city.

HE FRANKLY admits to something else, too — that he has had only eight years of formal education.

"I finished the eighth grade and quit school to go to work to help support my family," he explained. "The experience I gained as a councilman has been a great help to me; it is one of the best educations a person can have."

That Brixon is tall-standing is evident. He's six foot, six inches high. The conclusion that he is hard-working, however, comes not only from his list of municipal and civic efforts, but from testimony by his working cohorts as well.

ASKED IF Brixon could be described as a conscientious civic worker, Neil Schultz Jr., chamber vice-president, declared: "He works overtime at it, I'd say." Schultz termed Brixon "very dedicated."

From the city's standpoint, Mayor Alfred J. Malvino described Brixon as "very, very active in county politics as well as civic affairs in Marin County."

Brixon, 47, was born in Hawley, Minn., moved to Greenbrae in 1949, and began work in Marin as a driver for Greyhound Bus Co. In 1952, he resigned to devote full-time to the business of rug-cleaning. He is owner of the Elite Rug Cleaners at 975 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, and a partner in Service Masters, a national concern dealing in furniture, carpet-cleaning and fire insurance work.

APPOINTED TO the Larkspur City Council Sept. 7, 1960, to fill out the term of H. H. (Steve) Wheeler, who resigned to move to Southern California, Brixon was re-elected to the council April 10, 1962. On April 21, 1964, he was named mayor, then was re-named to that post May 5, 1965.

His election as president of the chamber came on Dec. 12, 1967. In addition, Brixon has been chairman of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen since Sept. 28, 1966, is an alternate councilman for the Local Agency Formation Commission, and is chairman of the advisory board of the Corte Madera Flood Control Project, Zone 9.

He said his biggest concerns, both as chamber official and councilman, have been the tax problem and the wants of the city.

"WE NEED a well-balanced commercial industry income to balance with the needs of city government so as not to put an unreasonable tax load on the homeowners," he said. "This is one thing that has to be done carefully. It's what we've been working on for eight years — to bring the right type of income in."

He said prize gains for Larkspur are businesses or industries that are called "no-load" concerns which cost the city little in fire and police protection and other attentions, but contribute handily to the tax rolls.

Other projects he's interested in, he said, are the proposed construction of a bridge over Corte Madera Creek to link Greenbrae with Greenbrae Marina and the Redwood High School area, and the construction of new city offices and a library building.

HE SAID the bridge would connect South Eliseo Drive with Riviera Circle by crossing Corte Madera Creek. It would give a safer and more direct route for many Redwood High School students, he pointed out, and would bring people to the Bon Air Shopping Center.

The bridge, he said, would be similar to but longer than the Bon Air Bridge, and is estimated to cost about $500,000.

Brixon declared he is expecting a goodly expansion of the Bon Air Shopping Center, and that its growth may provide the revenue for construction of the bridge and also help lower the city's tax rate through the center's own tax contributions.

RELOCATION OF city offices and the library is still a major project facing the council, he said, as is the continued development of Piper Park.

Biggest change in Larkspur since he arrived 27 years ago has been the growth in number of apartment buildings, declared Brixon. He termed the increase over the past 10 years as "fantastic," and said it appears the growth will continue.

"Because of its centralized location, Larkspur is a natural for people working in San Francisco or the East Bay but wanting to live in Marin," he said.

BRIXON, WHO in 1957 was on a committee studying the feasibility of a merger of Larkspur and Corte Madera, said the proposal is far from dead.

"My feeling on that is that if this were to be properly handled at some future time, it should be put up to a vote by the people and not resolved by the councils, themselves," he said.

The investigation faded away mainly because of lack of enthusiasm, he recalled.

Brixon, who resides at 30 Velardo, Greenbrae, with his wife, Velma Jean, and their two children, Bradley Warden, 12, and Susan Ellen, 8, is also a member of the Larkspur Lions Club, the Fairfax Lodge 556, Free and Accepted Masons, and the San Rafael Methodist Church.

"Why Is Lipstick So Difficult to Remove?"

Lipstick isn't too difficult to remove if you are a trained professional and have the proper equipment. Lipsticks combine waxes, oils, pigments or dyes. These smear on the surface of the fabric. Other lipsticks are in a liquid form and when spilled on a fabric are absorbed. This lipstick may damage a fabric if it is susceptible to the type of thinner used in it.

While some of the lipsticks containing a basic dye are not difficult to cleanse, many lipsticks now contain an eosin type of dye which is most difficult to remove. This is especially true if water or heat is applied to the spot. The eosin type of dye is very fast on practically all fabrics. Therefore, be certain you do not apply water or heat to any lipstick in an attempt to remove it.

By all means, take your lipstick-smeared garment to your professional drycleaner. Tell him what has happened and ask his expert care. You'll be far safer in handling it that way.

A Traveling Troupe Visits The Schools

REHEARSING A segment of the San Francisco Players Guild production, "Katya, the Wonder Girl," are cast members Clifford Dean and Diana Rugh who plays the title role. The Players continue to add new interpretations to their parts as the season progresses to keep the play fresh and lively.

They call themselves the San Francisco Players Guild, but Marin County can also place a substantial claim upon that professional acting company specializing in drama for children.

The troupe, for instance, draws heavily upon Marin talent.

Alice Perry of Sausalito is an actress and company manager, Philip Sheridan of Mill Valley an actor and stage technician, Emile Waldteufel of Mill Valley an actor and stage technician, Charlotte Wax of Sausalito a stage and costume designer, and John Brebner of Sausalito the designer of lighting.

For instance, next weekend, the Players will be presenting two performances of "Katya, the Wonder Girl," next Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the auditorium of San Rafael High School as the second presentation in the 1968-69 Junior Theater of Marin Series.

Those will be but two of 400 performances to be given by the Players of "Katya, the Wonder Girl," during the current season that began in September and will continue into May.

MOST OF THOSE presentations will be in Bay Area schools. A dozen Marin schools are now listed among the 180 schools on the schedule.

While the San Francisco Players Guild is frequently described as "educational theater for children," Helene Oppenheimer, who wrote "Katya" based on an early Rumanian folk tale, points out that the group does not teach children how to perform on the stage. Rather, it seeks to stimulate appreciation and involvement in the theater as well as creative expression in many other areas.

To insure maximum benefits for the students, teachers in the visited schools are provided with related educational booklets.

FOR INSTANCE, ONE such booklet offers directions for a folk dance in connection with "Katya" and was written by the choreographer, Mary Gould Quinn.

The school children also receive invitations to visit backstage with the cast, viewing firsthand the crafts and techniques that are required for successful play production.

To date, the Players have performed before nearly four million school children since their organization in 1919 on a non-profit basis.

Its approach of taking theater to the schools has won for the Guild national recognition as a unique method in furthering the learning experiences of children.

ACTOR Philip Sheridan of the Players doubles as a stage lighting technician, working with the special lighting designed for "Katya" by John Brebner and Patrick Hickey.

THE ACTORS of the San Francisco Players Guild find themselves called upon to serve as stagehands as well. Clifford Dean moves a stage set into position, while, behind the panel, Emile Waldteufel is adjusting the swivel mechanism that changes the scene.

SCENE FLATS are unloaded by Clifford Dean from the bus in which the cast and all their equipment travel from school to school for performances. Sets are compact and engineered for easy handling.

HANDLING TWO parts in "Katya" is Danny Duncan, talented actor, dancer and mime. But he still has time to fulfill backstage duties in the lighting department.

TWO OF THE several Marinites active with the San Francisco Players Guild get their heads together to discuss an educational booklet based upon their current play, "Katya, the Wonder Girl." Boris Lokusta of San Rafael is the Guild president. Martha Eliot of Belvedere has been a director-producer with the Guild for 20 years.

Some Steps That Will Help You To Get The Picture

Photographers of all degrees of expertise are discovering a valuable ally in their pursuit of the perfect shot. This ally is their travel agent, who has often been to the places they are going and may have taken some pictures there himself. He can advise the photographer on where to go, and when, to capture the quarry he most desires — on film.

KNOW YOUR camera before you leave home. Don't buy new equipment and take it with you untested. Shoot at least a roll of film at home, and see how it looks when it is developed. This will show you if you are making any errors and save you from returning from your trip with 50 rolls of poorly-exposed or unfocused pictures.

If you find that the pictures taken at home don't turn out well, ask the advice of the salesman at your local camera store. They should be able to tell you what you have been doing incorrectly — and they will tell you in English.

FILM IS generally more expensive in Europe, so take along as many rolls as possible. If you do buy film abroad, be sure to ask if it works in the same way as similar film made in this country. If your camera has a light meter and shutter adjustments, make sure to check on the ASA of any film you buy.

If you own a fairly new foreign-made camera, register it with the customs inspector on your way out of the country, or you may have to pay duty on your way back in.

It is wise to carry your camera in your hand luggage, and almost essential to carry film there. Occasionally customs inspectors will X-ray luggage before it goes into a plane or a terminal, and the X-rays will ruin any film.

WHEN YOU are photographing famous landmarks, do not try to duplicate the pictures on postcards. You will enjoy the pictures more if they are recognizable as your own. Look for a different angle. Put people in the picture.

When using a motion picture camera, make sure there is some movement in the thing you are photographing — even if it is just a leaf blowing in the breeze or a river flowing. It will make your films more interesting.

See your travel agent if you desire more specific information on particular places. Tell him that you are interested in photography, and would like his advice. If he can't give you first-hand advice himself, the chances are very good that someone on his staff can.

With a travel agent's aid, you won't be shooting in the dark — without a flash or time exposure, that is.

Parma Is Athens Of Italy

Ancient City Was Home To Many Greats

If you like good food and wine, music, art, history, typography, literature and flowers, you owe it to yourself to visit Parma, the Athens of Italy, so called, and the home of Verdi and Toscanini, of veal parmigiana, sparkling Lambrusco wine, Parmesan cheese, Parma hams and Panama violets.

It was also the domain of Marie Louise, second wife of Napoleon, who found sanctuary and romance there while her husband was in Elba.

Paganini died in Parma, and Stendhal chose it as the locale for his famous novel, "The Charterhouse of Parma" (though Parma has no Carthusian monastery;). Parma also has strong claims to Correggio, the greatest of fresco painters, who was not born there but who lived there most of his life and produced for the city his finest work.

Verdi, for that matter, was not born in Parma either but in the village of Roncole Verdi nearby. It is a short excursion for those who wish to see the modest stone cottage that was his birthplace, and the organ in the village church on which he used to play at the age of 11.

AMERICAN VISITORS to the cathedral in Parma will find an unexpected plaque and a touch of home over the tomb of Bodoni, the famous 18th Century printer.

It reads:

"In Enduring Recognition
Giambattista Bodoni
XCMLVI"

Correggio's masterwork, "The Assumption," occupies the cupola of the same cathedral. "Fill the cupola with gold," said Titian, "and that will not be its money's worth," meaning that the fresco was worth more.

PARMA IS AN ancient city, founded by the Romans in 183 B.C., but its history has been — for Italy — a quiet one. Mainly, its claim to historical importance came during the Napoleonic period.

Bonaparte snatched it from the Bourbons and joined it to France. On his exile, the city fell to Marie Louise, who lavished so much attention and care upon it that even today she is revered almost as its patron saint. There are some, however, who credit her excellent rule to Count von Neipperg, who was not only her chancellor, but also her lover.

In modern times, Parma owes its fame to its opera house and its cantankerous opera buffs. If La Scala spells success to opera singers, the hardly less famous opera house of Parma, the Teatro Regio, built by Marie Louise, can mean disaster. Every opera-goer of Parma assumes the mantle of Verdi, and is not only harsh in his judgments but vociferous.

THE CLASSIC story concerning this has to do with a young singer who failed on a high note. "Get her off the stage," yelled ungallant members of the audience. But dissenting voices were heard. "No, make her stay until she gets it right."

Aside from its rude opera audiences, Parma is a gracious and polite city, particularly courteous to strangers. It has a fine museum of antiquities, a library that contains 400,000 books and manuscripts, including original editions of Bodoni, and many outstanding renaissance monuments.

It lies along a main road from Florence to Milan, with the super highway the Autostrada del Sole running close by, and merits a stopover. The natives take as much pride in their cuisine as the Bolognese and the native wine is better than excellent.

For A Destination That's Really Different

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Did you know Americans now may apply for State Department approval to travel to Communist China, North Vietnam, North Korea and Cuba?

The total ban on travel to these Communist countries was eased following a court ruling which, in effect, upheld the traditional right of freedom of travel by Americans except, for instance, in times of declared war.

The new policy has been noted in U.S. passports.

Formerly, the official government document stated flatly: "This passport is not valid for travel to or in the Communist controlled portions of China, Korea, Vietnam, or to or in Albania."

NOW, THEY READ on page 4:

"Unless otherwise specifically endorsed, this passport is not valid for travel to Communist controlled portions of China, Korea, Vietnam, or to, in, or through Cuba."

The ban on Communist Albania has been dropped, as were restrictions on travel to Egypt and Syria which were imposed in the wake of the 1967 war in the Middle East when those countries broke relations with the United States.

While the State Department may give special approval to Americans who can prove, among other things, that such visits are in the best interests of the United States, getting visas from Peking, Hanoi, Pyongyang and Havana may be something else again.

THE UNITED STATES does not maintain diplomatic relations with any of these Communist regimes and the visas would have to be obtained in some foreign country that does.

In addition, none of them, particularly Red China, has shown any indication it is prepared to roll out the welcome mat for the average American tourist.

Americans who do gain admission will be on their own, without any of the legal and other protection provided by U.S. diplomatic staffs in other countries in case of emergency.

IN SOME Communist countries, including Bulgaria and East Germany, Americans can get tourist visas at airports, seaports or border crossing points by presenting a valid U.S. passport. East Germany charges $2.50 and Bulgaria $1.

No visa is required for entry into Yugoslavia or Romania, only a U.S. passport. On the other hand, Poland requires not only a visa—fees range from $4 to $16.90—but proof that the visitor has paid in advance for his hotels and meals through the official Polish Travel Bureau, Orbis. Hungary charges $3.50 for a visa.

A TOURIST visa is required for travel to the Soviet Union, too. There is no charge, however, for the visa which is valid for up to three months. But it must be obtained in advance through a travel agency which has connections with Intourist, the official Soviet travel organization.

Hotel accommodations, meals and other travel expenses also must be prepaid to Intourist which handles all such arrangements in the Soviet Union.

THE KREMLIN, once forbidden to westerners, now opens its gates wide to tourists in Moscow. The citadel covers some 64 acres and is a vast museum of Russian history with its forts, cathedrals and palaces. Access to the Soviet Union is relatively easy for Americans in comparison to some other Iron Curtain countries.

Disaster And Its Aftermath Furnish Fodder For A Novel

"Damn California. No state has a right to be that important," says a nameless character on page 359 of Gentry's science-fictionish history — or is it historical science fiction?

By page 359, Gentry has let gigantic earthquakes dump everything west of the San Andreas Fault into the Pacific Ocean. He's wiped out 15 million or so of the 20 million Californians living in the nation's most-populated, most gaudy, most smoggy and most-almost everything else state.

When does all this happen? Within 12 months from now, gentle reader. Gentry knows because Edgar Cayce, the sleeping prophet, had told him so.

The loss of practically all that is California has a gigantic impact on the rest of the world. With Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Monterey and Santa Cruz slid into the ocean, the great central valleys flooded and San Francisco Bay Area a shambles surrounding a bay glutted with wreckage, Gentry's imagination runs riot — but very plausibly.

Grocery stores' bare shelves — California was the lushest agricultural area of the world — rationed gasoline — its oil fields and refineries are sorely missed—; stale television shows; Los Angeles talent is gone—; financial panic, all result from the disaster.

Gentry decides that mystery mogul Howard Hughes must know what he is doing, buying up huge chunks of Nevada real estate for what will become a major intercontinental air terminal and resort when Los Angeles and San Francisco's airports are gone. Seattle, he also sees as a ghoulish benificiary of tragedy, becoming the West Coast's only viable port.

Enough — I shan't give away any more the Gentry's visions.

It's the earlier two-thirds of the book that I find most fascinating.

Gentry takes advantage of the supposed destruction of the Golden State to view the "last days" leading up to its fall with a delightful, irreverent objectivity.

Anyone who has lived very long in California is more or less aware of the strange cults, the gaudy politics, the spicy history and the grubbing greed that have molded a state based mainly on the 49ers' mad rush westward in search of fortune. Gentry lovingly and sometimes cuttingly peels back some of the skin and muscles to give even more insight to some of the skeletons in closets of the Warrens, Christophers, Browns, Kerrs and lesser luminaries of the Golden State.

Adding to my enjoyment was discovery that Gentry and I are members of the same chapter of E Clampus Vitus, the great history-and-hijinks loving "secret" society that infests the Mother Lode whenever sounds the Hewgag.

Gentry is a connoisseur of the silly as well as the serious, and this makes his rather Jonathan Swiftian work even more understandable.

Gentry is a Bay Area writer; his other books on Californiana have been good, but none have I enjoyed so much as "The Last Days . . ."

The Bill Of Rights And Why It Was Written

FRONTIERS OF CIVIL LIBERTIES by Norman Dorsen; Pantheon, 420 pages, $8.95. Reviewed by Larry Kramer.

". . . civil liberties are . . . an unnatural state for man or for society because in a short-range way they are essentially contrary to the self-interest of the majority. They require the majority to restrain itself, to say No to its immediate impulses, and to allow things to go on that threaten it."

As soon as we can understand the above lines we can understand the fervor of the advocates of "impeach Earl Warren," "curb the court," etc. It is the fervor of the frustrated majority faced with individual rights and liberties purposefully set outside of their control by the designers of the Constitution.

Part of the magnificence of the Constitution as a living document comes from the very realistic view of man in society that the Founding Fathers took. They recognized that men, particularly in political groups, were not always rational or reasonable. For this reason, says Dorsen, quoting Justice Jackson:

"The very purpose of a Bill of Rights was to withdraw certain subjects from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be applied by the courts."

In this light it becomes easy to see why civil rights and civil liberties are always likely to be "controversial," simply because they tend to fly in the face of the majority will.

Professor Dorsen, director of the Arthur Garfield Hays Civil Liberties Program at New York University, has given the non-legal reader a behind-the-scenes view of how arguments are prepared for the Supreme Court.

"Frontiers of Civil Liberties" consists of briefs prepared for the American Civil Liberties Union as a friend of the court, symposia on vital current issues affecting civil rights, and analyses of other civil rights advocacy such as overlooked issues in the Army-McCarthy fracas, etc.

Dorsen says that his primary purpose is "to alert the public to the diversity, subtlety and importance of civil liberties problems in the U.S."

His thoughtful book will bring many of us up to date as to how the continuing struggle for "liberty and justice for all" is going and against what odds. Unfortunately, "Frontiers of Civil Liberties" will not be read by those who most need to understand the vital role that the Bill of Rights plays in preserving a free society.

The Collapse Of France Told By British Historian

THE IDES OF MAY by John Williams; Knopf, 386 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

On May 15, 1940, Adolf Hitler's mobile Panzer divisions and dive-bombing Stuka aircraft struck the armies of France along 90 miles of the Meuse River in Belgium. Within two days the center of the French line was shattered.

"Where is the strategic reserve?" Winston Churchill asked Gen. Maurice Gamelin, military chief of the army. "None," replied Gamelin.

"I was dumbfounded," Churchill recorded. He realized then, in this May 16 meeting in Paris, that France was doomed and England alone must fight Germany.

"The Ides of May" is English military historian John Williams' account of the stunning military and political collapse of France in the spring of 1940. The "you-are-there" narrative is spliced to flashbacks which illuminate the events.

Williams is not timid about assessing the reasons for the fall of France. They are (1) an army and a people depleted in manpower and spirit as an aftermath of World War I; (2) archaic military strategy and tactics, and (3) political corruption in high places.

There are French heroes. Premier Paul Reynaud emerges as a resolute, resourceful leader. Gen. Maxime Weygand, replacing the inept Gamelin, does well in the face of a military debacle. Brave troops of the 25th Division sacrifice themselves for the sake of 338,000 British and French troops trapped at Dunkirk. A lesser figure, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, is a courageous, effective division commander at the front. He then goes on to oppose surrender, escapes to England, and organizes the Free French resistance.

Williams presents evidence that Leopold, king of the Belgians, is a maligned figure. His seemingly abrupt surrender was condemned by Churchill and Reynaud as perfidy, but facts are given that refute this.

The tragedy of the fall of France in June, 1940, is described with clinical perception. The passions, intrigues and factions within France as it collapsed make grim reading.

Williams is a 60-year-old who served with the British Army in World War I. He is the author of "Mutiny, 1917"—an account of mutinies in the French army. "Ides of May" is his first book published in the United States. It is worth a place on your bookshelf; Williams is authoritative, trenchant and lucid.

Helen Bottel Writes About Problems Of Teen-Agers

TO TEENS WITH LOVE by Helen Bottel; Doubleday, 276 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Grace Henderson.

In a folksy approach to teen-agers' problems, Helen Bottel, syndicated and Independent-Journal columnist, writes that "life is like a Chinese puzzle" and adds that if all problems in all households were related to fitting that puzzle together in proper perspective, life would be less complicated.

"You'll learn that every lock has a key, and the puzzles which seem impossible can often be cracked with this key phrase: 'I'm responsible for my own life. I'll make the very best of it!' " she writes.

Warm humor comes through giving the reader the impression the Sacramento home of the six Bottels must be one place where the solution to the Chinese puzzle has been achieved. This is accomplished in spite of the tendency to slip into written lectures in what Mrs. Bottel refers to as a "teen guidebook to better life."

The author's sincerity of purpose is apparent and must be acknowledged even by those not agreeing with all her answers to the problems. Mrs. Bottel strives a little too hard to make her points and her contrived colloquilisms sometimes miss the target. But the fact that an adult is dealing with teen-age problems and listening to their observations is in itself a commendable feature.

Southwest Settlers, California Indians

By DON KEOWN

RANCH ON THE RUIDOSO: The story of a Pioneer Family in New Mexico, by Wilbur Coe; Knopf, 279 pages, $8.95.

ALMOST ANCESTORS: THE FIRST CALIFORNIANS by Theodora Kroeber and Robert F. Heizer; Sierra Club, 169 pages, $15.

"Ranch on the Ruidoso" by Wilbur Coe holds both a generalized and a specialized interest for students of western history and lore.

It is of general interest in that it presents an unusually broad and detailed picture of Southwestern range life over a period of nearly a century.

At the same time, it offers a considerable body of fresh information about one of the specific chapters in western history with which buffs have been most enamored — the Lincoln County War.

In recreating the story of his prominent pioneer New Mexico family, Wilbur Coe relates from his own experiences, and from what he was told by father and grandfather. The reader is thus enabled to relive a facet of American life that even today has left its rugged imprint upon those regions of the West that are still rural in character.

It is sometimes difficult for today's city-dweller with his many conveniences and comforts to realize just how his predecessors could have existed in the earlier West amid dangers and hardships, and have taken not only satisfaction but genuine enjoyment as well from that rigorous life.

But Wilbur Coe makes it plain that they did so. And the answer seems to lie in their sense of solid accomplishment — in knowing that they were building. And that what they were building was something worthwhile and enduring.

Sometimes the reader may feel that he is being told more than he really cares to know about the personal affairs and habits of three generations of Coes as they lived upon their land. On the other hand, what is trivia to one man is an obsession with another. Thus we found the lengthy descriptions of apple-growing and marketing far more engrossing than the chapters dealing with cattle-raising, which after all was the principal business of the ranch. Accounts of the part music has played in Coe ranch life struck another responsive chord with this reader.

All this, however, will pale for many western buffs alongside the opportunity to learn more about the controversial, much romanticized Lincoln County War.

Throughout their residence in New Mexico, the Coes have been substantial, law-respecting citizens. The bloody feud between the McSween-Tunstall and Murphy-Dolan crowds, however, brought about the one occasion when they fell from the grace of the law. It was all because of the friendship George and Frank Coe felt for one William Bonney.

Because of their affection for young Bonney, a part-time hand on their ranch, the Coes were drawn into the conflict on the McSween-Tunstall side.

As Billy the Kid, Bonney, of course, became one of the legendary heroes of the Old West, pictured as something of an American Robin Hood on horseback. Then, in more recent years, the pendulum swung. It became customary to portray Billy as a sneaky, cowardly little psychotic of moronic intelligence. Wilbur Coe attempts to restore some sense of balance.

The William Bonney known and admired by Frank and George Coe was a likeable youth of considerable courage, charm and intelligence, he says, with an almost fanatical sense of loyalty toward his friends.

True, the Coes were partisans. And Wilbur Coe no doubt writes as such. But he also writes from a more knowledgeable position than have most of the Bonney detractors.

For kill, Bonney did, generally out of thirst for vengeance for the deaths of his own friends. Sometimes lawmen were his victims. But it is important to remember that the dividing line then between sheriff and outlaw was a thin one, and many a wearer of the star had a shady past as a gunman, (Indeed, Hendry Brown, next to Bonney the most infamous of the McSween-Tunstall gunslingers, rode out of New Mexico ahead of the posse to our own Kansas hometown of Caldwell, there to become its marshal and to rule that bawdy cattle town with an iron hand until, one day, restless, he rode over to neighboring Medicine Lodge with his deputy and two cowpokes to rob the bank. All four died by gunfire or by the rope. And Caldwell went hunting for a new marshal.)

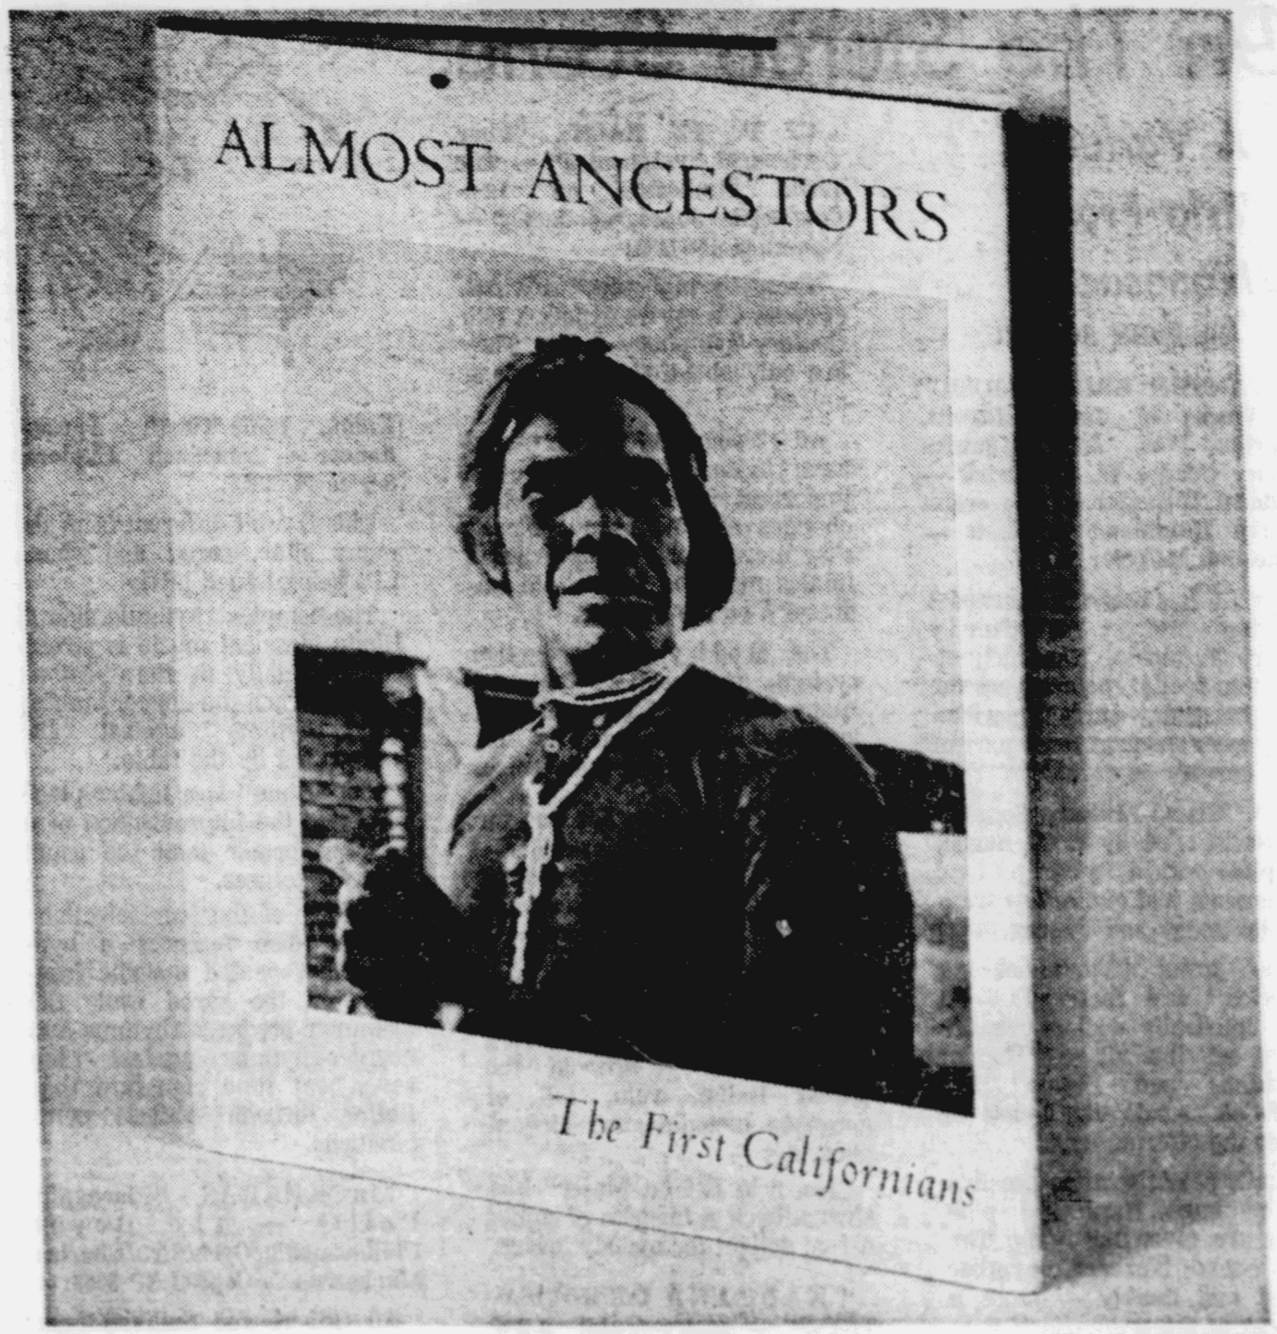
It is typical of Coe's vitality that one hardly notices that he has lived the hard and active life of cowboy and rancher crippled since early boyhood by a paralysis that did not dim his enthusiasm or limit his accomplishments. That, one realizes, is the kind of man the rigors of ranch life forged and molded.



"ON THESE FACES appears the signature of strength of spirit that has transcended suffering . . . ," says the Sierra Club of its collection of photographs of California Indians published under the title "Almost Ancestors," with text by Theodora Kroeber and Robert F. Heizer, detailing California's shameful mistreatment of its original residents.

"GENOCIDE" is one of the ugliest words in man's vocabulary.

Yet it has been practiced not so very long ago as history measures time right here in the very land where we now live in such affluence. We are confronted with the bitter record of that virtual elimination of a race in "Almost Ancestors: The First Californians," a Sierra Club book written by Theodora Kroeber, the author of "Ishi in Two Worlds," and anthropologist Robert F. Heizer.

Along with the text in which the two co-authors discuss with sympathy and sensitivity the histories, the way of life and the tragic fate of the 50 California tribes, the book also contains 117 original photographs of California Indians, dating back to 1851 and taken from the archives of the Southwest Museum and the Lowie Museum at the University of California.

These are pictures that focus upon the proud visages and erect carriages of a once free people. But suffering and bewilderment also show through as extinction closes in upon them.

These are not the scintillating color scenics one has become accustomed to in Sierra Club books. The photos are in black and white. Some are faded. And sometimes the negatives have been scarred. Why reproduce them, then?

Because, the authors tell us, it is the only photographic record of its kind available. And even with its flaws, it still tells us more about the features and expressions of individual Indians than do the available paintings and drawings.

Modocs, Yokuts, Mohaves, Miwoks, Yuroks, Pomos, Monaches, and many others, they are all there, with faces that mirror a quiet dignity and courage that reproaches the white man for the irreparable harm he has done his red brethern with his greed and thoughtlessness.

It reminds us that genocide isn't always the evil scheme of a madman such as Adolf Hitler. Right now, on this earth, man is doing his utmost to wipe out other groups of his own kind, as well as entire species of other creatures.

Mrs. Kroeber and Heizer have written a book that not only fills a yawning gap in our historical records, but which also confronts us with our past transgressions and cries out for us to mend our ways.

BALLANTINE Books has collaborated with the Sierra Club in publishing a paperback version of "The Sierra Club Wilderness Handbook," revised edition. Prepared originally a decade ago for the conservation group's own membership and since updated, the handbook has enjoyed a wide popularity as a camping-packing guide for lovers of the outdoors, with its invaluable, carefully tested advice on supplies, equipment, skills, techniques, planning, site selection, cooking, etc. This new version sells for a bargain 95 cents.

Sleuths & Suspense

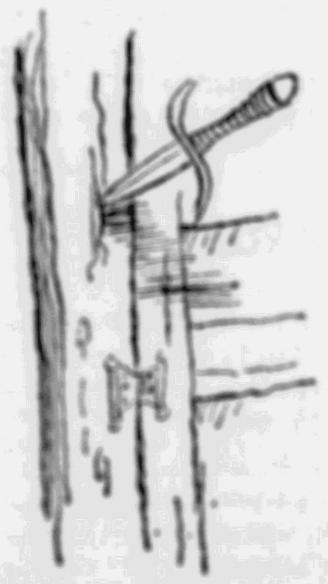
She discovers, however, that its previous occupant was murdered. And there is every indication that more violence will ensue — possibly with Norma as the victim.

Veteran readers of "who-dun-its" will have no great difficulty determining rather early who is behind it all. But there is a nice touch of romance, and sufficient suspense and excitement to hold your interest.



On The Stereo Scene

A Varied Trio From Nonesuch

By JOHN SUNIER

"YANKEE ORGAN MUSIC" — Works of James Hewitt, Charles Ives, John Knowles Paine, George W. Chadwick — Richard Ellsasser at the organ of the Hammond Museum — Nonesuch H-71200:

The LP has recently sparked a growing interest in early American music. Nonesuch offers this recital, pointing up the fact that many early American composers spent at least part of their careers as organists.

Ives' great "Variations on America" are featured — a work musically well above the others on this disc. "Theme, Variations and Fugue" by Chadwick sounds like music to collect the offering by.

Details of registration possible on the huge Hammond pipe organ are given for buffs. The organ sound, however, is rather distant and muddy — more a problem of the organ itself than the engineering of the recording, I would say.

C. P. E. BACH: "Four Orchestral Symphonies" — The Little Orchestra of London/Leslie Jones, conductor — Nonesuch H-71180:

These "symphonies" are not, of course, what we expect a 19th Century symphony to be. They are only about 11 minutes long apiece.

All 12 voices of the orchestra have independent and equally important parts. Dramatic changes of key, richly colored slow movements, and whirlwind finales make an immediate impression on the listener.

The Dolby noise-reduction system, employed on this and many other new Nonesuch LPs, insures a high degree of freedom from background noise.

ROSSINI: "Three Sonatas for Strings — Nos. 1, 5, and 6" — Toulouse Chamber Orchestra/Louis Auriacombe — Nonesuch H-71179:

Rossini's six sonatas are among the most beautiful works ever penned for string orchestra. They are in the purest Italian vein, full of gorgeous melodies and elegant phrasing.

"No. 5 in E Flat Major" has always been a favorite of mine. A real delight for melody lovers.

" KALPANA IMPROVISATIONS" — Instrumental and Dance Music of India — Mrinal Sen Gupta, sarod/Lateef Ahmed

The "Dhun" is a lighter piece closer to the improvisation of a jazz performer than the usual raga structures.

All Gilbert and Sullivan fans will want to snap up this bubbling ballet score based on the buoyant melodies of the two venerable English satirists. It is a veritable patchwork quilt of tunes taken from nearly all of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. The ballet scenario is detailed on the liner for those interested, as well as hints as to which operettas the various tunes came from. Good stereo sound.

A TRAMP ON THE MOON

Right away we knew this must have been our man,
We watched him as he staggered near the crater.

Right away we knew this must have been our man,
This tramp with a face red as tomat'a:

This man, who left the earth behind,
Left so that he could get off wine . . .

Came up here and started on moonshine!

The fragments of a family, whole.
Just long enough for hearts to mend,
A House of Cards offers safe asylum.
When this house crumbles no cause for alarm—
During its time it kept us all warm.
It kept us together as we grew strong.

'Tis The Season For Mold And Mildew

Handyman's Page

Marinites are entitled to a bit of smugness when they read in their newspapers how easterners are battling winter elements.

No snow shovels or automobile chains for us.

Yet we are not without our climatic problems. And one of them is the highly undesirable condition of mildew that too often invades our home.

The combination of winter wetness, closed windows and interior heating produce conditions under which the tiny fungi plants called molds produce mildew most prolifically. Dampness, warmth, lack of air movement, poor light — all the factors are there.

AND WHEN they reach certain proportions the mold spores, which are always in the air around us, suddenly begin to multiply and to settle upon the objects from which they derive their food.

They become apparent with the appearance of that familiar whitish growth we call mildew.

In its initial stages, mildew merely has an unpleasant appearance. That's the time to get rid of it. If allowed to enlarge, it causes discoloration and rotting, and emits a musty odor.

FAVORITE targets are wood, leather, paper and nearly all fabrics except such manmade materials as nylon, acetate, polyester and acrylic.

When mildew is discovered on any wooden part of the house, the area should be scrubbed with any household cleaning agent that contains trisodium phosphate. For stubborn cases, make a solution of three ounces of trisodium phosphate, one quart of household bleach, one ounce of powdered detergent and three quarts of lukewarm water. After scrubbing, rinse the treated portion with clear water.

To prevent a recurrence, coat the area with a mildew-resistant paint.

CLOTHING OR household fabrics which have been attacked by mildew should be taken outside the house, brushed thoroughly and left in the sun as long as possible.

Should the material be stained, wash with soap or detergent and water, rinse well and dry in the sun. If the stain isn't thoroughly gone, repeat the process. And if it still hangs on, then use a commercial bleach or a mixture of lemon juice and salt — assuming that the fabric is colorfast.

Non-washable articles, of course, must be dry-cleaned, as housewives know.

TO REMOVE mildew from leather good, make a solution of equal parts of denatured alcohol and cold water. Soak a clean cloth in the mixture, then rub the affected area. Dry outdoors or, if this is not practical, in the path of an electric fan. This usually will work, but if traces of mildew remain, wash the leather with a mild soap or detergent or a soap containing a fungicide.

To prevent mildew, leather goods should be polished with a wax dressing.

A frequent cause of mildew in clothes closets is the habit of hanging wet garments in them. Always dry an article of clothing wet by rain or perspiration before putting it in the closet.

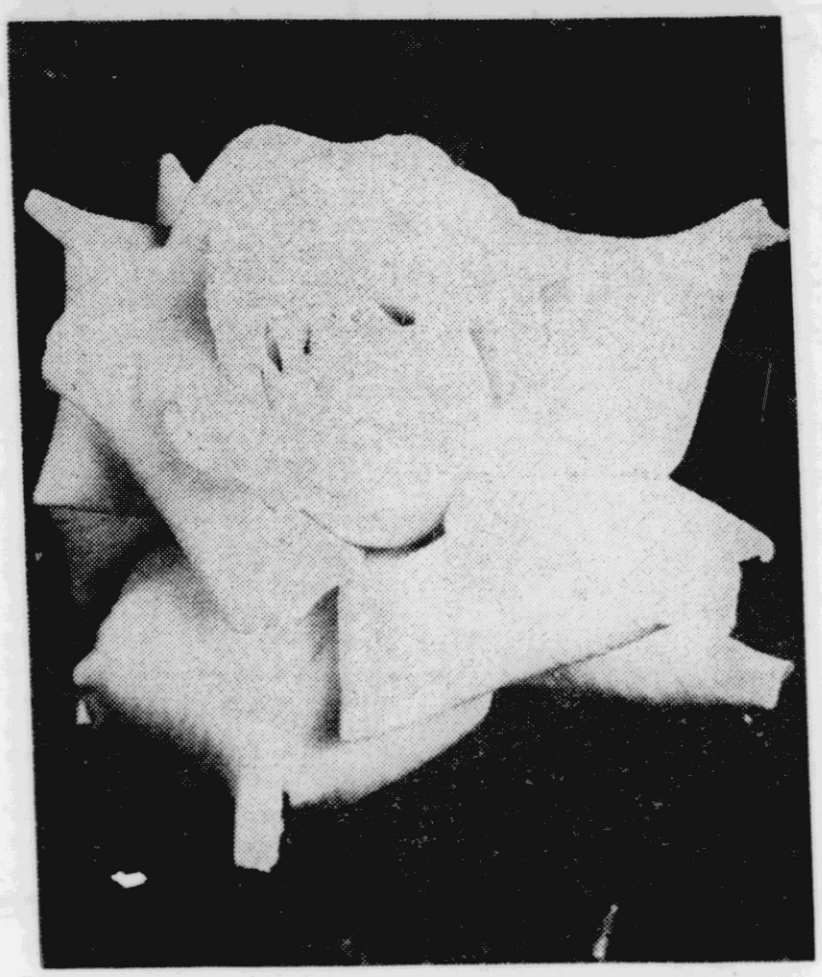
All-Star Roses For '69



PASCALI, WHITE HYBRID TEA

GENE BOERNER, PINK FLORIBUNDA

For 1969, there are four new roses so honored.

They were chosen from a huge field of candidates for their beauty, fragrance, shape and durability.

Expert rosarians rate the quartet the strongest All-America "team" to be produced by hybridizers in many years, and predict that they will dominate rose gardens in the U.S. in the years ahead.

PASCALI, THE whitest of white hybrid teas, produces a vigorous growing, erect, well shaped and well clothed plant, which is always a good start for any rose. The pristine flowers of this "Paschal" or Easter rose, are remarkably beautiful in form, regardless of the weather. The graceful urn-shaped buds open to medium - size blooms which hold their high, bud - like centers exceedingly well—even until the outer petals drop.

The flowers are usually made up of 35 to 40 petals and give forth just the slightest breath of fragrance.

Pascali, a hybrid of Louis Lens of Belgium, not only has won All-America honors, but in addition earned a gold medal at The Hague, a silver medal at Baden-Baden, first certificates at Rome and Paris and certificates of merit at Geneva, Madrid, London and Vienna. Its parentage is Queen Elizabeth by White Butterfly.

GENE BOERNER is an exceptionally free-flowering, clear pink floribunda. This new AARS award winner remains in bloom constantly from early spring until the late hard frosts of autumn.

The medium, long and pointed buds unfurl into clean, full flowers, usually about three and a half inches across and of about 35 petals. The blooms are borne in clusters and often on long (for a floribunda) cutting stems of 10 to 12 inches.

The deep, rich pink flowers of this rose are most attractively set off by a background of thick, bright green foliage. The handsome plant is upright, symmetrical, well branched and covered with blooms that even boast a light fragrance — a fringe benefit added to the many beauties of this rose.

This winner, the only pink rose to receive an All-America award for 1969, was named in honor of the late Eugene S. Boerner, longtime plant researcher and rose hybridizer. More than 160 of his originations have been patented and many have won All-America awards.

COMANCHE, SCARLET GRANDIFLORA

ANGEL FACE, LAVENDER FLORIBUNDA

COMANCHE is a bold, new grandiflora with large, high-centered blooms of brilliant scarlet. The long pointed buds unfold to fully double four-inch flowers, of 50 petals. The blooms are borne on long, strong stems on a tall, well branched plant.

Sometimes the large blooms are borne singly, but more often three or more occur in fiery candelabras of color on stems excellent for cutting. Comanche is almost continuously in bloom.

The plant is tall and strong, bushy and vigorous, reaching five feet in height and producing an abundance of colorful blooms for cutting and garden decoration. The bright green, leathery foliage, very resistant to disease, well covers the entire plant. As a striking contrast, the new leaves are a rich maroon.

The perfect buds, together with outstanding form and substance in the full open flowers provide exhibition material of the first order. For home use the combination of bold, scarlet blooms and a vigorous plant, makes Comanche a top choice for planting in all areas. This grandiflora will provide bright accents in the garden, showy ever-blooming hedges, brilliant scarlet splotches of color in home foundation planting against dark- or light-colored buildings and in rose garden beds, its fiery beauty will attract attention from afar.

Spartan and (Carrousel by Happiness) are the parents of this 1969 All-America award winner and their offspring is a rose that everyone will enjoy.

ANGEL FACE is new, unique, unusual and totally lovely—the first lavender rose ever to win an All-America award. Ruby buds with just a hint of lavender slowly unfurl their petals until, when about one - third open, they take the form of a lovely lavender chalice.

The flowers open to fully double, truly lavender roses of perfect form with petal edges curved, wavy, ruffled and touched by a suffusion of royal ruby.

The blooms of Angel Face are large, four inches or more, abundant, and come in clusters on medium-length stems, lasting for several days. As a finishing touch that spells perfection, the flowers are blessed with a rich, old-fashioned perfume that will fill a room with true rose fragrance.

The long-lasting, clear lavender flowers are an arranger's delight, as they provide an opportunity to create striking compositions in a totally new rose.

Medium to low growing and almost as broad as tall, the plants of Angel Face are evenly branched, well shaped bushes, deserving a place in the foreground of any garden. The plants are hardy, of good vigor and produce continuous bloom. The deep, firm green foliage is touched with copper, while the very new growth is an attractive contrast in maroon.

It's Time For Rose Planting And Pruning

The Newest Bareroot Stock Is In At The Nurseries

For Marin rosarians, it's the busiest time of the year.

If they aren't busy pruning those rose bushes already growing in their gardens, they are purchasing new bareroot stock and planting these for their future pleasure.

The California Association of Nurserymen has some suggestions, both as to buying and planting.

It pays, the nurserymen say, to select the best bareroot stock while you are at it. Roses are graded No. 1, No. 1½ and No. 2, with No. 1 being the best. A No. 2 grade rose is best ignored.

WHAT YOU should look for is a well-formed bush with at least three strong canes or branches. Only one strong cane is not enough.

Beware the shriveled looking rose bush as well as that with sickly-looking canes. Think twice, too, before purchasing a "bargain rose," especially if it is sold without a variety name.

There is always a lively demand for the new All-American roses — this year the Angel Face, the Gene Boerner, the Comanche and the Pascali. Consequently, they go fast. If you want one, then you had better shop early.

BUT KEEP in mind that there are many fine roses in addition to the 1969 All-Americans, both new and old, some of them past winners of All-American honors. Bewitched, for instance, is an utterly captivating award-winner of a couple of years ago.

As for planting: Select a site that offers good sunlight at least half the day. A well-drained location is another requisite, but this can be attained at planting time with the judicious use of soil conditioners and planter mixes.

The planting hole should be deeply cultivated and large enough to enable you to spread out the roots—about 18 inches across. Never jam or cram the roots into the ground.

IN THE HOLE, make a mound in the shape of a cone and spread the roots so that they settle over this mound.

At the base of the rose bush, where the canes bunch out from the shank, you will find a swelling that looks like a thumbnail. This is called the bud union. In planting, it should wind up about an inch above the final soil level.

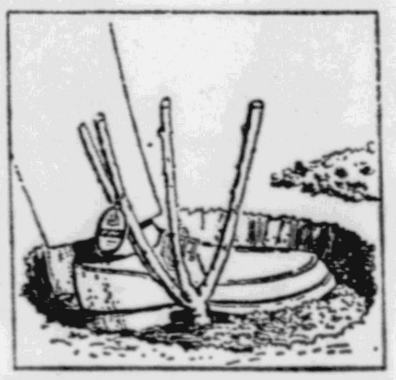
With the level determined, fill in around the roots with your mixture of soil and planting mix. After the hole is completely filled, use your feet to firm the soil so as to eliminate air pockets.

FINALLY, MAKE a basin around the bush. And if the bud union has been lowered during the planting, scrape the soil away from it while you are making the basin. This is for irrigating purposes. Fill the basin with water immediately, both to settle the soil and to keep the roots moist.

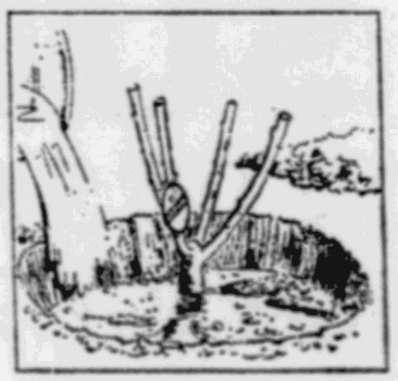
In some areas, rosarians mound the soil to cover the bud union temporarily, to prevent drying out and to protect against extreme cold.

Most Marin nurserymen, however, feel that this is an unnecessary precaution in our area, and that the bud union is best left exposed from the outset.

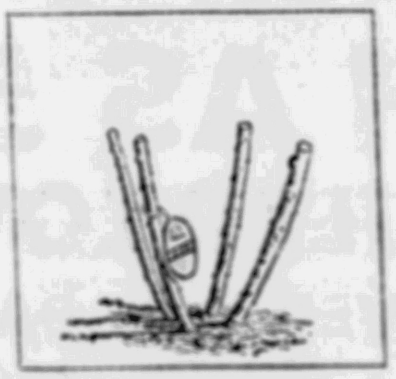
TO PLANT a rose, begin by preparing and fertilizing the bed. Dig a hole 15 to 18 inches wide and equally deep. Add quart of peat moss mixed with a half cup of fertilizer and mix well with soil. Form a mound in center and position rose on mound.



SEE THAT roots are spread naturally and that bud union is level with the ground. Scatter several inches of loose soil over roots and firm well with feet.



FILL remainder of the hole with water and allow to drain. See that bud union remains at ground level.



NOW, FILL remainder of hole with soil and tamp. Leave basin for irrigating, and apply the first watering.

Don't Neglect The Old Bushes In Your Garden

Now about that rose-pruning:

January is the month in Marin, and your purpose is to encourage your roses to produce their best, both as to quality and quantity.

Not all experts agree on all facets of pruning a rose. But they are unanimous in the opinion that the weaker the bush, the more severe the pruning. This forces new shoots from the base of the plant that should prove superior to the weak ones you have cut away.

Furthermore, shorter canes simplify later general rose care chores.

THE OLD IDEA that all rose bushes should be pruned to within a few inches of the ground has fallen into general disfavor, however, thanks largely to the development of stronger hybrid varieties.

Now the rules are less rigid. Generally, it is said, the length of the cane should be determined by the nature of the variety of the rose. For instance, one with a natural upright habit and unusually strong canes, such as Sutter's Gold, can be left with canes up to two feet in length.

The type of rose is another determining factor. Climbing roses, very popular in Marin, are only thinned. Most other roses are trimmed back to five or six canes of varying length.

SHOULD MORE severe pruning of climbing roses seem advisable, wait until after the heavy spring blooming period. This permits ample time for new growth to develop for the following season.

The experts generally agree, too, that center growth should be discouraged. An open center attained by eliminating shoots coming out from the middle of the plant allows the remaining canes to receive sufficient sunshine and air.

The pruner should practice great care in selecting the places for his cuts. Each cut should be made one-quarter of an inch above a bud that faces away from the shrub's center.

YET ANOTHER matter for consideration when pruning is that a rose bush cane generally will bear at its maximum anywhere from five to 10 years. After that, it has seen its day and should be removed in favor of younger canes with their best years still ahead of them.

If the grower has a cane that he knows is in its last year, he should pick as its replacement one of the strong young shoots coming up from the ground and tip it once to cause it to become yet more sturdy. Then, in his mid-winter pruning, he can eliminate the worn-out cane, and he will have a ready-made substitute to take over.

While generalities are possible in rose culture, it is also true that specific varieties have special needs. Your nurseryman is a good source for advice as to the special attention required for your particular varieties.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

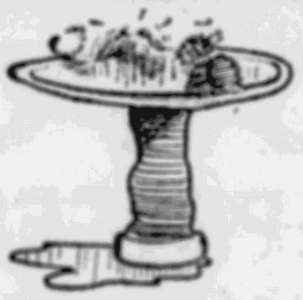
- Roses aren't the only shrub available now in the inexpensive bareroot form for easy planting. A wide variety of shrubs and fruit and shade trees await you in the nurseries in their easily-handled dormant state.

- With the passing of each week, new varieties of camellias come into bloom. Keep up with this parade of color at your nursery and select those whose flowers most appeal to you.

- Keep your Christmas gift plants well watered. Some like an occasional airing on the patio or before an open window.

- Winter-time dormancy enables plants to withstand a stronger spray that destroys mites, scales, aphis and other pests effectively without injury to trees or shrubs.

- Weigela is a good bet for garden color during the cooler months, and is available in nurseries now. You may also come upon the somewhat similar but less familiar Beauty Bush or Kolkwitzia with its white-pink flowers on long arching branches.



- Hold off on pruning your fuchsias, at least until sometime in February.

HARDLY SEEMS possible, does it, that Gladys Ormphby, left, the misbegotten old baggage of "The Rown and Martin Laugh-In" television show, and attractive and charming Ruth Buzzi, right, from Wequetequock, Conn., are one and the same person? But they are. No wonder Miss Buzzi sometimes frets at the thought that viewers might think the TV character is for real.

MEN VS. BULLDOZERS — Herbert Miller, bulldozer operator, heeds shouted order of Mario Ghilotti, his boss, to "shut it off" as Gate 5 houseboat and ark residents clamber aboard the machine to prevent its clearing undeveloped streets. This confrontation was the nearest to actual violence as the county moved in on the houseboat community yesterday afternoon.

WILLING HELPERS — After reaching an agreement with the county that their floating homes would be spared if they cleared debris from the streets, Gate 5 residents hove to with a will. Here, they carry off big timbers. Nearly 50 law officers who showed up to enforce county clearing orders stood by as threatened violence turned into cooperation.

HAYAKAWA'S PROBLEMS

Teachers Threaten To Strike Monday

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Plagued by violence and a student strike since last fall, San Francisco State College now faces a strike by the militant teachers union when Christmas vacation ends Monday morning.

Leaders of Local 1352 of the American Federation of Teachers agreed to meet over the weekend with representatives of the state college system's board of trustees, but warned if the talks fail a strike would "effectively close down" the campus.

The talks were in recess yesterday after the union charged the trustees refused to negotiate their demands, including educational reforms, a resolution of student grievances, a stronger voice for the faculty in college administration and a written contract.

LIKE STUDENTS?

"The trustees are doing exactly what they criticized the student groups for doing — refusing to negotiate," said union president Gary Hawkins. He said the refusal was "what may be the most hopeless negotiating situation in the history of this city."

But a spokesman for the trustees said state law required them only to "meet and confer" with faculty groups and contended some of the union demands could not be met unless the law were changed.

The union, representing about a quarter of the college's 1,100 faculty members, claimed "quite overwhelming" support from union and nonunion teachers after a union survey of the faculty.

HAYAKAWA ORDERS

Acting President S. I. Hayakawa, meanwhile, tightened restrictions on holding rallies and unauthorized outdoor meetings in hopes of preventing a renewal of violence between striking students and police.

He prepared a proclamation forbidding "rallies, parades, hootenanies, hoe-downs, chivarees and all other public events likely to disturb the studious in their reading or reflection."

The semanticist said the ban would apply to the large open quadrangle in the center of the crowded urban campus. He scheduled a news conference today to disclose further plans for reopening the school.

Students Stir New Tensions In Mideast

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Lebanon's 15,000 university students staged their first joint strike today, demanding mobilization for war and a tougher line against Israel.

They also vowed no return to classes until punishment is meted out to persons responsible for allowing Israel's commando raid against Beirut Airport a week ago.

In Jordan, where King Hussein long has taken a stronger vocal line against Israel, the government today hanged two men as spies. Jordanian officials said Zahran Youssef Ismail Kharroub, 49, and Zubei Abdul Hafiz Abdullash Kharroub, 39, were executed in Amman's central prison after admitting being paid spies for Israel since 1964.

Also in Amman, a military spokesman said Jordanian and Israeli troops fought a 45-minute heavy artillery and mortar duel last night in the area of the Damya Bridge along their Jordan River ceasefire line. The spokesman said there were no Jordanian casualties. He said fire was seen in some Israeli gun positions.

In Jerusalem, a military spokesman said today there had been no incidents "on all ceasefire lines during the past 24 hours."

BUDDHA LENDS A HAND — Henry Jefferson Sudduth IV, who as "Buddha" was kingpin of Marin's beatniks of yesteryear, carries away debris to set an example for fellow houseboat dwellers. Some in background were a bit slow to get enthusiastic.

Nixon Completes Top Bracket State Team

NEW YORK (AP) — President-elect Nixon rounded out his top level team for the State Department today, picking an administrator and two career diplomats. He also said he wants Ambassador Ellsworth Bunker to stay on for a time in Vietnam.

Nixon confirmed his choice for the No. 2 job in the State Department: Massachusetts Atty. Gen. Elliott L. Richardson, 48, a man who, like Secretary of State-designate William P. Rogers, has little foreign policy experience.

The president-elect said Richardson has demonstrated "an immense capability as an administrator" and has "a broad interest in foreign policy."

Rogers said Richardson, as undersecretary of state, will be his "alter ego" and as such will be involved in all foreign policy.

The president-elect picked U. Alexis Johnson, 60, now ambassador to Japan, as undersecretary of state for political affairs, and Richard E. Pedersen, 43, deputy U.S. representative at the United Nations Security Council, to be counselor at the State Department.

Ambassador Johnson will return to Japan, Nixon said, then stop off in Vietnam on returning to the U.S. to confer with Bunker, to see if he will stay on.

"We believe that at this time a change in ambassadors would not be wise," the president-elect told a news conference at the Hotel Pierre.

Houseboat Dwellers Turn Bulldozer's Wrath Aside

Cheerful Work Party Lowers The Barricades

By ANNE BARDWELL

A standoff confrontation between county officials and Gate 5 houseboat dwellers at Waldo Point resolved itself yesterday into a cooperative effort to clean county streets of debris.

A last-minute compromise prevented what threatened to be bloody conflict pitting California Highway Patrol officers and sheriff's deputies, called in by the county to remove persons blocking the way of a street-clearing bulldozer, against houseboat dwellers fearful that the county would take their homes along with the debris.

In the peace-saving move, houseboat residents agreed to remove the debris if county crews agreed not to set foot or equipment in the Arques Yacht Harbor.

Within minutes of the agreement, more than 30 waterfront residents were sloshing through the mud hauling out debris. Within a half hour, a third of Sonoma Street was essentially clear except for a large tin shed, and county crews were moving the debris into refuse trucks.

"This is beautiful," said one county official. "I only hope it continues."

Earlier in the day, 15 waterfront residents promised to oppose the county, but several backed off when they learned that Donlon J. Arques, owner of the property, had given the county the right of access via his private road to the three largely underwater streets — Sonoma and Monterey Streets and Humboldt Avenue — under cleanup orders.

The streets, which have never been developed, were covered with debris — old mattress springs, mirrors, tin sheds, lumber, trunks, a few cars and miscellaneous metal so corroded it was difficult to determine its original use.

Repeated reassurances by Michael King of the county public works department that the county meant only to clear the streets and not to touch any occupied dwellings, no matter how tattered, did not relieve the fears of the group.

From early in the morning, the group, headed by Henry Jefferson Sudduth IV (Buddha) and Piro Caro, waited in bitter cold for the county to finish its work at Gate 6 and come to Gate 5.

At Gate 6 there had been no opposition. In fact, most residents were satisfied with the county's efforts, noting that

Table To Be Round, But Split How?

PARIS (UPI)—Western diplomats said today all four sides had agreed on a round table for the expanded Vietnam war talks but still disagreed whether the table would be divided.

Diplomats close to the stalled talks expressed optimism the long hassle over procedures for the opening of the conference may be reaching its final stage.

The Communists yesterday announced their willingness to drop all remaining procedural issues deadlocking the talks, including officially calling the conference a "four-party" meeting, if the allies would agree to a solid circular table.

And with both sides willing to sit at a circular table, the only issue that remained was whether it will be symbolically marked off or divided to

WHO IS THAT JUST HANGING AROUND TREE?

Somebody was hanged in effigy near the Civic Center yesterday, but investigating sheriff's officers couldn't say who it was.

Whoever it was intended to be, the dummy, suspended from an oak tree, was so lifelike that it brought a rash of calls to the sheriff's office from commuters who were startled as they passed by on Highway 101.

Ex-Prisoner Green Beret Comes Home

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. (AP) — Maj. James A. Rowe, who escaped from the Viet Cong after five years' captivity, says he can hardly believe he is back in the United States.

"I'm still back on the chopper," Rowe said yesterday, referring to the helicopter that rescued him. "I haven't really caught up with what's happening.

"It's like being alive again," the Special Forces officer said on his arrival at Kelly Air Force Base in his native Texas. After a news conference, he was taken to Brooke Army Medical Center where doctors will examine him.

The 5-foot-8½ officer said he weighed about 165 pounds when captured along with two other American soldiers on Oct. 29, 1963. He said he now weighs about 140 pounds but his weight

Picket Lines Begin At Oil Refineries

DENVER, Colo. (AP) — Some 60,000 workers at oil refineries from coast-to-coast walked off of their jobs today in a dispute over wages.

A. F. Grospiron, president of the Denver-based Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union, said no incidents have been reported in the strike which was called after negotiations on a proposed 23-month contract failed to reach an agreement.

UNION GOALS

The union is asking an increase of 72 cents an hour, plus a variety of fringe benefits and improved working conditions. Oil workers now earn an average of $3.80 an hour. A two-year contract between the union and 435 oil industry units expired Tuesday.

A union spokesman said it would be several days before the strike's effectiveness could be analyzed and added that it might be a month before it would be felt by consumers.

EFFECT DENIED

Meanwhile, spokesmen for major oil companies denied that the strike would create any gasoline or fuel oil shortages, contending that most refineries would be kept producing by supervisory and non-union personnel. They pointed out that operations had been highly automated in recent years.

Pickets appeared at refineries on Puget Sound, Washington, along the California coast and at vast Texas oil centers, in southern Michigan where temperatures hovered near zero and at refineries clustered along the Eastern Coast, particularly in New Jersey and Pennsylvania.

Gets Congress seat back

COMBINED AP & UPI

WASHINGTON (AP) — The 91st Congress gets down to business in earnest Monday with Adam Clayton Powell back in the House, a more liberalized Senate leadership and enough immediate work to possibly provide clues on the mood that will greet the new President.

After a joint session with the Senate to certify presidential election returns, the House is expected to take up Monday the question of pay raises for congressmen, cabinet members and the President.

The Senate faces the biennial effort to gut the filibuster rule, plus debate on the nuclear nonproliferation treaty that President Johnson wants ratified before he turns over the White House to Richard M. Nixon Jan. 20.

ASTRONAUTS TO VISIT

The Apollo 8 astronauts Thursday will tell a joint session of their lunar-girdling trip.

Capping a day of party caucuses and swearing-in ceremonies yesterday the House voted after five hours of debate and preliminary balloting to seat the ousted Powell if he agreed to pay a $25,000 fine and accept loss of seniority.

Powell, banished from the 90th Congress after being accused of misusing federal funds, accepted the conditions, was sworn in and took the seat that represents half a million predominantly black voters in New York's Harlem.

"Maybe I'm an emancipated slave," said the Negro congressman. "It might be a good idea if everybody had to pay $25,000 to get in here."

CELLER FOR POWELL

The resolution to seat Powell was supported by Rep. Emanuel Celler, D-N.Y., chairman of the special committee that investigated Powell in 1967 after charges that included misusing travel funds and putting his nonworking wife on his payroll.

"He who is without sin in this chamber, let him cast the first stone," said Celler. "Judge not that ye be not judged—especially in regard to loved ones on the payroll and travel."

Final vote on the resolution was 252 to 160. Powell, who lost his chairmanship of the Education and Labor Committee, will have the fine deducted from his paycheck.

For a man of Powell's past high-stepping style the punishment might have seemed too humiliating. But he swallowed it, and came forward at once to be sworn into office by speaker John W. McCormack, apparently reconciled to punishment after sitting out most of the past two years of the 90th Congress on a Caribbean island without pay and with very little attention.

Still, some of the old Adam flashed at a news conference after the long day of debate and voting. He called the punishment "racist" and said he wanted to talk to his lawyers before deciding to accept it without a fight.

"Do you plan to behave any differently?" he was asked at a news conference after his seating.

"That's like asking me if I plan to stop beating my wife," he replied. "I'll behave the same as I always did."

WORK AHEAD

Yesterday's sessions of the 91st Congress' two chambers marked only their preliminary organization, which will take several weeks. They will meet in joint session noon Monday to count the electoral votes and declare Richard M. Nixon officially elected President. Legislation to give him a pay raise as chief executive will also be taken up.

Standing behind a railing and smoking a little cigar, Powell watched five hours of bitter wrangling as the 434 members who took their oaths earlier debated whether to let him take his.

He was asked if he would put his wife back on his House payroll.

"I haven't picked my staff yet," Powell replied.

"Do you feel chastened?"

How They Voted

Cold Wave Grips Nation

By U.P. INTERNATIONAL

Cold wave warnings were up today for Missouri, Arkansas, Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Indiana and Ohio as winter refused to release its icy grip on the nation.

Light snow was reported in Atlanta, Ga., early today as the temperature hovered around freezing.

Heavy snow was forecast in northeastern Ohio, prompting travelers warnings. Snow already was on the ground in parts of western New York and Michigan.

Below zero readings were common from eastern Montana to Wisconsin and from Kansas to Indiana and scattered areas of New england.

Travelers warnings also were up in parts of Washington and Idaho where freezing rain and snow glazed roads. That combination continued to harass the upper elevations of the Pacific Northwest.

Pueblo's Crewmen Muster For Purple Heart Awards

The 11th man wounded when the Communists seized the Navy electronic monitoring ship last Jan. 23 did not live to get his decoration.

The Purple Heart due Fireman Duane Hodges of Creswell, Ore., will be awarded to his family at a later date. Hodges died shortly after the Pueblo was attacked, in what the Navy says was an illegal action carried out in international waters.

The question of whether other members of the Pueblo's 81-man crew are eligible for Purple Hearts on the basis of beatings inflicted during their 11 month imprisonment in North Korea is still open, a Navy spokesman said.

He explained that official criteria for the Purple Heart state it can be awarded to a serviceman injured "as the result of maltreatment by his captors while a prisoner of war."

"I'm sure it's under discussion," the Navy spokesman said.

The list of men receiving Purple Hearts today reflected the Pueblo's mission as a monitor of North Korean radio and radar traffic. Three of those decorated were electronic technicians, an unusual number for such a small vessel. A fourth was a radio operator.

Coming into the ceremony, Bucher was the only member of the 82-man Pueblo complement who had not been released by doctors to go on liberty.

The Pueblo's skipper still is recovering from a respiratory ailment and general nervous fatigue. He still is confined to the officers' quarters at the hospital.

The other 81 men are eligible to go on liberty three nights out of four, the Navy said.

Debriefings of the Pueblo officers and crew continue on a regular schedule every day. No date has been set for a court of inquiry into Bucher's handling of the Pueblo and the conduct of his men while in North Korean captivity.

The sailors learned yesterday they will be able to keep the one physical souvenir they brought from North Korea—their prison clothing and tennis shoes.

Communications Technician Ralph McClintock, of Milton, Mass., said the clothing was important to him. "This experience is something we should always remember even though there are parts of it that are best forgotten," McClintock said.

"Every time we look at these clothes its a reminder of how good we live in America," said Fireman John A. Mitchell of Dixon, Calif.

Victims Return After Black Power Hijacking

MIAMI (AP) — The victims of the year's first gunpoint airliner ride to Cuba returned to American soil yesterday, leaving behind a Black Power advocate who appeared a little awed by his own act.

The crew of the Eastern Airlines jet returned with 15 ill passengers yesterday morning and the other 122 passengers came later in two other planes sent from Miami.

The passengers said a Negro gunman—accompanied by a woman and an infant—grabbed a white 2-year-old boy, Alan Levy, as a hostage before dashing to the cockpit to take over the flight.

A passenger, Larry Wenzel, 18, of Hollywood, Fla., said the man shouted "Black Power Black Power!" as he ran up the aisle, dangling young Levy by one arm.

Capt. Dennis Vanhuss, the plane's pilot, said the gunman was almost hysterical when he pushed into the cabin on the New York to Miami flight Thursday night and said: "You're not the captain any longer. I am. You're a lieutenant."

"He constantly threatened to kill us and the child if we didn't take him to Cuba," Vanhuss reported to newsmen on his return. "He calmed down later and seemed a little awed by what he was doing."

MOTHER GIVES CHASE

The mother of the hostage, Beverly Levy, 25, of Massapequa, N.Y., ran after the hijacker when he grabbed her son.

"You have my baby! You have my baby!" she screamed.

"My thoughts were that they were going to shoot him," Mrs. Levy—seven months pregnant—said after returning to Miami.

Bob Piccinni, a 21-year-old New Yorker attending the University of Miami, said the hijacker entered the tourist section of the jet burdened with luggage, extra clothing and a baby carriage.

The hijacker sat across the aisle from Piccinni, but seldom spoke. Piccinni said the man read Ebony, a Negro magazine, before going to a washroom to change clothes. He emerged wearing a gaudy, African-style shirt and a beanie. His woman companion, yelling and carrying an infant papoose-style on her back, ran forward with the man toward the cockpit, passengers said.

Once inside the cockpit, Vanhuss said, the gunman let a stewardess take the screaming hostage.

Illness of several passengers apparently was the reason 15 were permitted to return on the hijacked craft, a departure from custom.

BEAUTY ON FLIGHT

Among the early returnees was Countess Cristina Paolozzi Bellin, an Italian beauty who was dropped from the New York Social Register after posing semi-nude for a 1962 Harper's Bazaar advertisement and later played in the film "La Dolce Vita." Her two children and their nurse accompanied her.

The incident was strikingly similar to a Nov. 4 hijacking in which a Negro took over a jet carrying 57 other passengers and a crew of seven.

Morris Bedlin, a Miami Beach taxi driver, reported that the man told passengers, "You've got a new captain." Bedlin said the hijacker claimed the seizure was part of a black nationalist movement. "He said: 'We're going to take over a new ship every day for 10 days,'" Bedlin related. The gunman also changed aboard the plane from conservative dress to garb associated with black militant groups.

CONGRESS MOVES

Before the bulk of the passengers returned yesterday, a bill was introduced in Congress to provide a $30,000 reward for apprehension and conviction of sky pirates. The measure, presented by Rep. Louis C. Wyman (R-N.H.), also calls for the arming of plane crews and installation of a bullet-proof door between the passengers and the flight deck.

Twenty American planes were hijacked to Cuba in 1968. Several other attempts were thwarted.

Judge Studies Politics Claim In Draft Case

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — U.S. District Judge George B. Harris had under study today a defense motion that the draft refusal charge against Eric Whitehorn was politically motivated and should be dismissed.

Whitehorn, 18, charged with failure to register for the draft when he became 18 in October, contends he made his decision on the basis of the moral teachings of his mother.

The mother, Evelyn Whitehorn, a Palo Alto real estate agent, has asked to be prosecuted instead of her son, because he was merely following her advice.

Aubrey Grossman, attorney for Whitehorn, asked Harris to dismiss the charge, contending it was politically motivated because of the large number of draft refusals in the San Francisco federal district.

He said this was also apparent in the "incredible haste" with which the indictment was returned.

Grossman also argued it was "dire, dangerous and deadly" to prosecute the youth in view of his mother's teachings.

Mrs. Whitehorn contends that her son was legally too young to sign a legal contract or marry without her consent, so he could not submit to the draft without her permission.

Sophia Loren Presents Son

GENEVA (AP) — "I feel like a new person," Sophia Loren said today as she presented her baby son, Carlo Jr. at a news conference. "I have never possessed anything so beautiful."

Fatigue and a slight fever failed to prevent the 34-year-old Italian movie star from attending the one premiere she has dreamed of for 11 years.

She showed the baby in a cramped lecture hall at the maternity clinic of Geneva's Cantonal Hospital. The baby, her first, was born at the hospital Dec. 29.

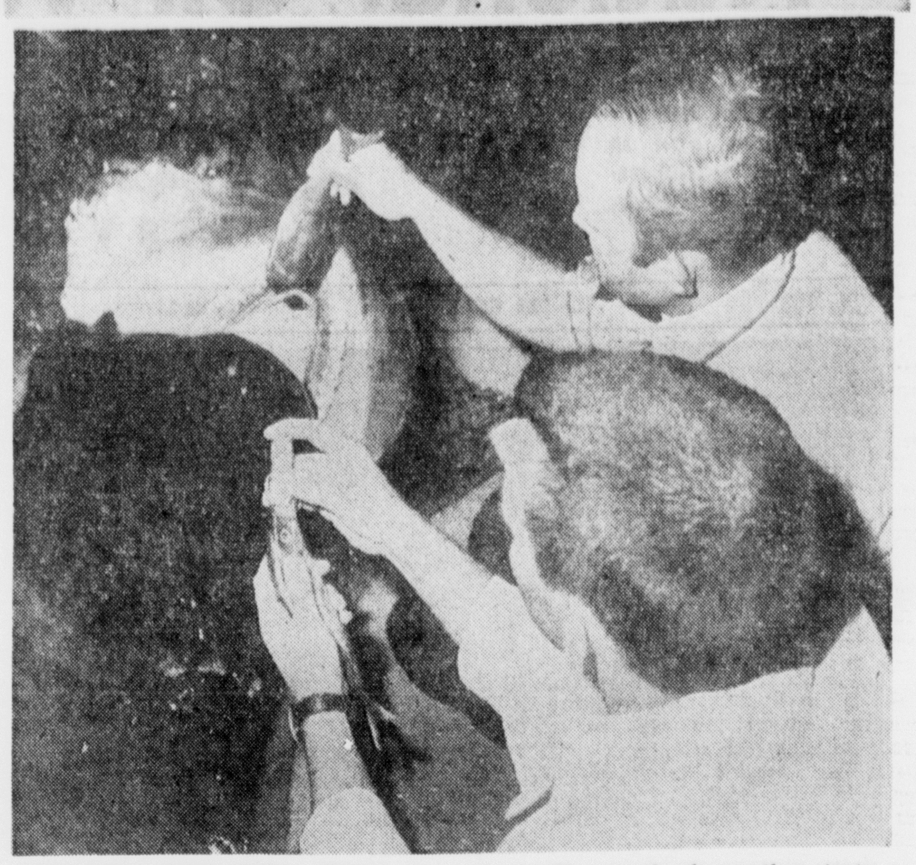
WORLD NEWS IN BRIEF



WHALES GET FLU, TOO — Trainer Jim Richards shoves a medicinal fish into the mouth of San Diego's killer whale Shamu at Sea World park, while veterinarian David Kenney loads another tasty mackeral with antibiotic pills. Twin Peaks Crash

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Thirty-three passengers were injured yesterday when a streetcar jumped its tracks at 60 miles per hour on busy Market Street shortly after exiting the Twin Peaks tunnel, out of control.

The streetcar, carrying a full load of passengers, collided with a delivery van, spun wildly around an intersection and then smashed into two parked cars.

After the initial smashup halted streetcar traffic, another crash occurred when one streetcar rear-ended a stalled car inside the tunnel. Several persons were injured in that crash but, again, none seriously.

Rumor Denied

UMUAHIA, Biafra (AP) — International Red Cross sources here denied today reports that the government of Equatorial Guinea has stopped relief flights from Santa Isabel to Biafra. They said three planes came into Biafra from Santa Isabel last night carrying 30 tons of food.

Nigerian Protests

LAGOS, Nigeria (AP)—About 500 demonstrators in Ibadan stoned the U.S. cultural center and the British High Commission offices today, burning the Union Jack and tearing down the American flag.

It started as an announced protest by University of Ibadan students and faculty members against foreign intervention in the Nigerian civil war. Western diplomats said it was spearheaded by members of a left-wing student organization.

Shots Stop Ship

PORTO EMPEDOCLE, Sicily (AP) — Italian customs police chased a Greek ship, the 10,000-ton Maria, early today and forced it to a stop with machine-gun fire that wounded the skipper.

Police said they seized the ship and found 10 tons of illegal cigarettes aboard.

Nasser Kin Hurt

CAIRO (AP) — President Gamal Abdel Nasser's younger brother was seriouly injured in a car accident on the Cairo-Alexandria highway, a hospital report said today.

Shah Speaks Up

NEW DELHI, India (AP) — The Shah of Iran, in what he said was his first official statement on the Bahrein dispute, declared today that his country would not use force to take over the Persian Gulf sheikdom "without the consent of its people."

"I won't go into details now," he said when asked whether he favored a plebiscite for the British protectorate. Iran's relations with Saudi Arabia have been clouded by Iranian claims to Behrein.

Thailand Bus Holdup

BANGKOK (AP) — Police said a gang of 50 bandits opened fire on a bus yesterday, killing one passenger and wounding the driver, because the bus company had refused an extortion demand for $10,000.

A police patrol caught up with the fleeing gunmen as they were crossing the Pattani River in sampans and reported four of the robbers were shot. Their bodies were not recovered.

Mummers Parade

PHILADELPHIA (AP)—Some 16,000 fancy-dressed Mummers strutted and cakewalked up Broad Street today in a belated salute to the New Year.

The participants didn't allow 17 degree temperatures and brisk winds to postpone their parade for a second time, as it had New Year's Day.

Bombs Hunted

RED BLUFF (AP)—A search for highly dangerous fragmentation bombs continued today along California Highway 36 east of Red Bluff.

The hunt was touched off by discovery of eight 20-pound bombs scattered by an truck explosion during World War II.

Authorities said the bombs were spread when a truck carrying Army explosives caught fire near Paynes Creek and exploded in 1942. Army personnel thought at the time that they had recovered all the bombs.

New Job For Chief

Panther Dislaimer

OAKLAND (UPI) — The Black Panther Party wants to disassociate itself from persons who rob gas stations and taverns using the militant organization as a base.

National Panther chairman Bobby Seale said yesterday that a number of persons have been expelled from the organization for getting involved as criminal suspects.

The Panther leader said that "conspirators and opportunists" have joined the party to take advantage of it for their own private excursions into crime. He said such persons were "counter-revolutionaries." The party has a rule forbidding members from stealing "even a needle or a piece of bread," he said.

Siamese Twins

MADRID (AP) — Siamese twin sisters born here Jan. 1 have a common heart and liver and doctors said today surgical separation would be "doubtful and difficult."

The girls, Manuela and Maria, are linked by the thorax and abdomen. Dr. Julio Monereo, chief surgeon at the La Paz Clinic, said the girls are doing well and their physiological functions are normal.

Swedish Quad Dies

STOCKHOLM (AP) — One of the Swedish quadruplets born on New Years Day, a boy, died here early today.

The remaining infants, two boys and a girl, and the mother, Mrs. Ulla-Britt Jansson, all were reported in good condition.

Spain Cedes Land

The enclave of 741 square miles on Morocca's Atlantia coast was was turned over to Morocco in a formal treaty signing in the Palais Du Batha.

Oil Well Sealed

GRANADA HILLS (AP) — Oil workers say they have finally sealed a troublesome well that leaked natural gas for a week after firemen extinguished a five-day fire.

The workers dumped water and mud down the well's 8,000-foot shaft yesterday in a field leased by the Getty Oil Co. in the foothills north of here.

They said 500,000 cubic feet of natural gas had been escaping from the well daily.

At 69, Fred Astaire Isn't Even About To Quit Show Business

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

NEW YORK (UPI) — "Astaire, Fred. Actor. Absolutely no screen personality. Also dances."

If it's any comfort to the judge of that 1932 screen test, all is forgiven.

"I didn't like very much what I saw at the time myself," said the 69-year-old smoothie with a grin. "I looked like a stick."

And with 62 years of show business, 35 movies and two generations of dancing partners behind him, Fred Astaire still isn't ready to call it quits.

"RETIREMENT IS not my world," he said in an interview, leaning back in his chair, relaxed, cheerful and looking 20 years younger. "I tried it once for two years and was just plain bored. I want to keep busy."

Astaire recently completed his 35th movie, "Finian's Rainbow" with Petula Clark for Warner Bros.-Seven Arts, and certainly shows no sign of creaky joints.

"I don't know how long I'll keep on performing," he said, "or how long I'll want to. When the desire stops, then I'll stop. I haven't had any physical signal to stop, so as long as I want to keep on performing I will."

The brother-sister act went on to appear in several Broadway musicals and broke up in 1932 after the closing of "The Band Wagon" when Adele retired to marry Lord Charles Cavendish.

When the partnership dissolved Astaire overcame that bad screen test and was teamed with Ginger Rogers in their unforgettable musicals of the 1930s and '40s, including "Top Hat" and "The Barkleys of Broadway."

HIS DANCING partners have always been the day's screen darlings — Eleanor Powell, Rita Hayworth, Judy Garland, Leslie Caron, Audrey Hepburn, Cyd Charisse, to name but a few.

Astaire, a perfectionist, recalled that he often was enraged by his partners' costumes. But he survived dancers who sewed lead weights into their flowing sleeves to make them stand out and nearly kayoed him, wore four-inch-high stiletto heeled shoes that cut his chins, ostrich feathered gowns that shed and made him sneeze and long full skirts he could trip on.

"Oh well," he sighed, "perfection is something you can only try for and very seldom get. I'm never satisfied."

BUT FRED THE hoofer is still nagged by Fred the actor who's like more straight dramatic roles.

"It's a challenge," he noted. "I was very proud of 'On the Beach.' " That first dramatic part also won critics' praise.

"Of course I won't give up dancing roles," he said. "I can't dance something unless I really want to. I don't beg a director to 'please let me dance, I want to dance.' I just wait for a great vehicle to do my dancing in. 'Finian' is like that. It's a nice picture without being icky."

WHEN NOT TRAVELING, Astaire lives in the Los Angeles home he shared with his wife, Phyllis, who died of cancer in 1954. He has a son, Fred Jr., and a daughter, Ava.

He relaxes by golfing, playing the piano or drums and raising race horses.

FRED ASTAIRE
"I'm never satisfied"

"Horses are my favorite topic," he said. "Mention horses and I'm off and running."

He has three horses now, including a filly named Sharp Curve which he hopes will be as successful as an earlier Astaire horse named Triplicate that won $245,000.

ALTHOUGH HE has tripped across the world's movie screens for more than 30 years and is chairman of the board of a chain of 100 dancing schools bearing his name, he claims he loathes social dancing.

"Ballroom dancing bores me," he said. "I just don't dance for an evening's entertainment. I just don't go out dancing socially and I avoid parties. I got tired of that a long, long time ago."

workmen even helped move valuable timbers and other salvageable material off the rights-of-way so that it would not be hauled away.

A few were disgruntled, and they appeared at Gate 5 in the afternoon, warning residents there that there would not be time to save anything off the streets.

One, Peter Day, an artist, claimed the workmen had hauled off four tons of valuable marble he owned although he had asked for only two hours in which to move it.

"This will happen here. Don't believe them," he warned.

Still the hard core waited. Blocking the private Arques Road was a truck with a three-decker shake shingle camper superstructure.

Shortly after 1 p.m. the bulldozer appeared. As it approached the harbor entrance, David Wolf, a Gate 6 resident, lay down in front of it, placing his head under its blade. As the bulldozer stopped, the blade grazed Wolf's head, leaving a dirty smudge.

Three others immediately leaped on the bulldozer and sat on top of its bucket, daring the driver to continue.

"Turn it off, turn it off," shouted Mario M. Ghilotti, project contractor. "We dont want anybody hurt here."

Then came the wait. Protestors surrounded and sat on the bulldozer while county officials conferred.

Lawmen were called. First came the highway patrol, then the sheriff's deputies. More conferences, and then the first warning — five minutes to leave peacefully or the demonstrators would be removed by force.

The five minutes became 10 and then 20 as county officials tried to avoid bloodshed. The demonstrators warned they would fight before they would allow the bulldozers to come in.

A larger crowd gathered as passers-by were attracted by the confrontation.

Deputy County Counsel Joseph A. Forest was called for a legal opinion. He appeared and said to give the protesters five minutes and then move them out.

Then T. J. Nelsen, a Gate 6 boatbuilder, offered the compromise. Would the county stay out of the yacht harbor if the houseboat residents hauled the debris out to the trucks?

Yes, said Forest. Nelsen approached the other side.

"Sure, if we get to choose our own debris," yelled one man. Then, with laughter, the work began. Out came the mattress springs, the lumber, the old mirrors.

Groups of men carried heavy frames, perhaps once parts of sailing vessels. Others began to tear down a tin shed. The pile of debris at the foot of the bulldozer grew higher.

At dusk the work was still continuing, less than one-third finished. Sonoma Street, 60 by 330 feet, was partially cleared. Still untouched was one block of Humboldt Avenue and a portion of Monterey Street.

Whether the cooperation continues on Monday was a question upon which no one, county and waterfront resident alike, was willing to speculate. But yesterday afternoon no one really cared.

any picketing on the quadrangle but permit "reasonable informational picketing" in other places. Such picketing, however, "is expected to be silent."

Groups seeking to picket near the campus "must have arrangements with city officials to utilize sidewalks and streets" on the edge of campus, located in a crowded residential area at the southern edge of the city.

Hayakawa said the speakers platform on the quadrangle may not be used and that "no substitute locations on the central campus are authorized" for rallies.

The new rulings were imposed for the period from Jan. 6, when classes reopen, nutil Jan. 31.

Leaders of the rebellious students also plotted their own strategy for the return of the school's 18,000 students to the campus. They said nothing had been settled during the holiday break despite the efforts of several outside groups at mediation.

Used Car Stolen

Theft of a 1964 blue Chevrolet Malibu, license VLL-984, from a used car lot at 269 Jacoby Street, San Rafael, was reported Thursday by an employee, Darrel D. Altermatt, police said.

WANTED — Ruth Eisemann Schier, 26, charged with participating in the abduction of Barbara Jane Mackle, 20, of Coral Gables, Fla., has been added to the Federal Bureau of Investigation's list of "Ten Most Wanted Fugitives." She is the first woman ever to make the list.

Storm Cuts Audubon's Census List

Heavy rain and winds kept Marin bird watchers from spotting as many species of birds as last year during the Christmas season bird count sponsored nationally by the Audubon Society.

Raymond Higgs of San Francisco, who tallied the results, today said that about 190 species were counted at Tomales Bay last Saturday and about 165 at Drake's Bay on Sunday. Last year the totals were 194 and 182.

Higgs said the Coast Guard would not allow the bird watchers to take out an ocean boat because of high winds, and counters were hindered also by rain-swollen streams.

Although no rare bird was spotted last week, "some interesting birds, including white-tailed kites, old squaw and harlequin ducks and several kinds of owls" were seen, Higgs said.

About 70 persons from over Northern California participated in the first day's count and 60 persons on the second day, according to Higgs.

Mobile Homes Denial Appealed

Petaluma City Council, meeting Monday at 7:30 p.m., will be asked to overturn planning commission refusal of rezoning to permit a mobile home park on Corona Road between Highway 101 and North McDowell Boulevard.

David D. Young, a Novato developer, had requested his 80 acres be changed from limited industrial to multiple family residential to permit the mobile home park. The planning commission on Dec. 17 split 2-to-2 on the rezoning, automatically defeating it.

The council will also consider an ordinance to establish sewer connection fees for mobile homes, requested by Vice Mayor Kenneth C. Colin.

Adult Classes Will Begin Monday Night

Courses in arts and crafts, including one on film viewing, will be offered starting Monday at the Redwood High Adult School.

The film course will include the movies "The Loneliness of the Long Distance Runner," "The Organizer" and "The Blue Angel" and starts at 7:30 p.m. Other courses include beginning jewelry, advanced jewelry, advanced knitting, beginning knitting, beginning and intermediate clothing, and tailoring.

Cluster Housing Plan Due Review

A public hearing of a zoning ordinance amendment to allow cluster housing development is scheduled before the Larkspur City Council at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

The council also will hear a progress report on widening of Magnolia Avenue.

Driver Injured

A 42-year-old Oakland man suffered minor injuries when his car struck a utility pole on East Sir Francis Drake Boulevard near Highway 17 at 4:30 a.m. today. Richard H. C. Chun was treated at Marin General Hospital for bruises.

Permit Due Study

An application by the Tri-State Development Co. to operate a service station and car wash at 111 Red Hill Avenue will be discussed at a public hearing at 8 p.m. Monday before the San Anselmo Planning Commission at city hall.

Man, Woman Face Varied Charges

A San Rafael woman was booked into Marin County Jail today on suspicion of possession of dangerous drugs and narcotics paraphernalia, but was subsequently released on her own recognizance.

Shirley Jean Fabian, 23, of 18 Crestwood Drive, and a companion, Robert Edney, 25, who gave his address at 1567 Fourth Street, San Rafael, were also booked for investigation of possession of stolen property and false evidence of automobile registration.

Police reported they noticed the two sitting in a car at 14 Sentinel Court, the scene of multiple drug arrests Dec. 3, about 5 a.m. today. A check on the car revealed it bore license plates stolen in San Francisco, they said.

While the two were being booked, a syringe, hypodermic needles and a substance believed to be methamphethmine were found in Miss Fabian's purse.

Edney was also released on his own recognizance. Both were scheduled to appear in Marin Municipal Court Tuesday.

Edney was also involved in a report to San Rafael police Thursday.

Gunther Hagel of 161 Grannlee Road reported his men were cleaning Edney's former apartment at 1567 Fourth Street when Edney appeared and asked where his belongings were, police said. He was told they had been placed in storage, Hagel told police.

Edney became angry and kicked walls, doors and cupboards, causing about $150 damage, Hagel told police.

Larkspur Requests Quarry Property Within Limits

The City of Larkspur's request to annex the 75-acre Hutchinson Quarry east of Highway 101 north of Corte Madera Creek will be considered by the Local Agency Formation Commission at 8 p.m. Thursday in the supervisors' chambers at the Civic Center.

In other business, the Novato Sanitary District seeks to annex the 6.7-acre Pioneer Memorial Park adjoining Simmons Lane at the intersection with Virginia Avenue, the City of San Rafael wants to absorb 1.5 acres owned by Joseph Arrighi near the intersection of Jacoby Street and Bellam Boulevard at San Quentin Wye, and the Tiburon Sanitary District seeks to annex the Raymond E. Weeks property, a 1.82-acre lot at 949 Tiburon Boulevard.

State College Expands Offering

Sonoma State College will offer Marin residents a greater number of extension courses during the spring semester, according to Dr. Carroll Mjelde, dean of educational services.

Courses, which begin the week of Feb. 10, will include history, education, physical science, art, music and physical education. Classes will be located in San Rafael, Novato, Kentfield, Larkspur, Corte Madera, San Anselmo, Mill Valley and Tiburon.

County Jail Inmate Injured By Tumble

An 18-year-old inmate of the Marin County Jail, awaiting sentencing on a joy-riding charge, fell while climbing into the top bunk in his cell yesterday and was hospitalized with a concussion.

Meeting Not Held

The Inverness Improvement Association did not meet last night due to lack of a quorum, according to Allan D. Talford, president. The meeting was tentatively rescheduled for 8 p.m. Jan. 17 at Vladimir's Moravian Restaurant, Inverness.

Mill Valley Youth Accused Of Shoplift

Dennis A. Brown, 21, of 111 Nelson Avenue, Mill Valley, was arrested by the security guard at Montgomery Ward and Co. in the Corte Madera Shopping Center yesterday on suspicion of taking a $15 sweater, Corte Madera police reported.

Brown was booked into Marin County jail on suspicion of petty theft, with bail set at $315.

He said his diet for the five years primarily was rice and fish twice a day. He said "There were never any overt threats" on his life.

The 1960 West Point graduate would not go into details about his escape. "The guard became unconscious," he said. Then he ran to a helicopter he heard near where he was being held in the Mekong Delta and was whisked away.

"I celebrated Christmas, New Year's and everything else on the 31st when I got away," he said.

Rowe said he already has asked to be returned to Vietnam.

"I feel that the experience I have gained over the past five years would be beneficial and would enable me to do something of benefit in the effort which is being made in South Vietnam," he said.

"I've gained a wealth of knowledge which I never would have had and never could have gained in any other manner."

He never heard any news that wasn't propaganda. Radio Hanoi, the Viet Cong's "Radio Liberation" and the Viet Cong cadre constantly reported Communist victories. There was never any word of Communist defeats, he said, adding that he never believed any of the propaganda.

He told how the Communists call President Johnson "the No. 1 bad man" and how the Red Cross is considered "an evil lackey of the U.S. imperialists."

He said he did learn of President John F. Kennedy's assassination soon after it happened from Viet Cong cadre. But he never was told that President Johnson was elected, although he knew that he was, because of repeated Communist broadcasts criticizing the U.S. President.

preserve U.S. and South Vietnamese demands the conference be "two party" negotiations.

The diplomats said there had been such progress toward breaking the deadlock that has held up the start of the talks since Nov. 6 that a final agreement could come as early as next week.

The closest the two sides have come to final agreement on the table issue is a proposal by the United States, approved by South Vietnam, to meet around a solid circular table divided by a thin stripe of green baize.

Hanoi and the Viet Cong have rejected that proposal and five others presented by the United States for a divided round table.

Yesterday, the Viet Cong offered to drop calling the conference a four-party affair and any further arguments about labels, flags, name plates and speaking order. Diplomats interpreted the offer as a sign of Viet Cong willingness to bargain.

Fairfax Council Creates New Job

The Fairfax City Council last night created the position of stenographer clerk for Fairfax and set Jan. 17 as the deadline for applications, according to Mayor Robert R. Souza.

Mayor Souza said only three persons attended the special public hearing held to formally establish the post and the council approved it unanimously.

The steno-clerk will replace Mrs. Dell Blodgett, administrative secretary, who resigned.

Women Supporting Strikers At State

The Marin County Chapter of the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom today announced its backing of striking students at San Francisco State College. (See story on page 1.)

Marie Ingerman, president, said the chapter passed a resolution at its Dec. 18 meeting endorsing the strike aims and urging that the campus be closed to avert further bloodshed, that all police be kept off campus, that "meaningful discussion" be conducted with all parties concerned, and ways sought "to meet the justified demands of minority students."

OBITUARIES

James E. Brady Dies At 59

James Edward Brady, a lifelong resident of San Rafael, died yesterday at his home at 320 D Street. He had suffered from a heart condition for some time and Richard W. Madigan, deputy coroner, said death was apparently due to natural causes.

Brady, 59, was retired from Langendorf United Bakeries.

He was a past president of San Rafael Council 10 of the Young Men's Institute and a member of Mount Tamalpais Parlor, Native Sons of the Golden West.

Survivors are two sisters, Miss Ann Brady, with whom he made his home, and Mrs. Alice Pasini of Los Angeles.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 10:30 a.m. Monday in the mission chapel of St. Raphael's Church, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery. Rosary will be recited at 8:15 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary, San Rafael.

JOHN AITKEN

John Anthony Aitken, 40, of 12 Tyler Street, Novato, died today at a local hospital after a brief illness.

A native of San Rafael, Aitken had lived in Novato for four years. Prior to that he lived in Phoenix, Ariz. He was an operation supervisor for Greyhound Bus Lines in San Francisco.

Survivors are his wife, Jacquelyn Aitken; three children, Robin, Steve and Lori Aitken, all of the home; his parents, Mr. and Mrs. John C. Aitken of Cambria, San Luis Obispo County, and a brother, Richard Aitken of Los Angeles.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Keaton's Chapel of Marin, Novato.

Nature Writer Sued For Divorce

Conservationist author Francois Leydet of Belvedere was sued for divorce in Marin Superior Court yesterday by his wife of 13 years, Patience Leydet.

Mrs. Laydet accused her husband, author of Sierra Club books, of cruelty and causing her "grievous mental and physical suffering." She asked $200 a month support and that the court divide their household furniture between them and award her their Volkswagen bus and her husband their Triumph sports car.

Leydet filed notice with the court that he will not contest his wife's suit.

Leydet has written "Time and the River Flowing: Grand Canyon" and "The Last Redwoods."

Pavilion Painting Discussion Set

The Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission will meet at 8 p.m. Tuesday to discuss specifications prepared for painting the inside of Fairfax Pavilion.

At the last meeting the commission approved the suggestion of architect D. Hugh Coleman for a variety of light, warm tones.

Also included in the meeting will be reports from the various standing committees of the commission.

Private Sanitation Plan Is Due Study

A proposal that the Corte Madera Sanitary District operate the combined private sanitation system of Redwood High School and the Fifer industrial tract is scheduled for consideration by the Tamalpais High School District board at 8 p.m. Monday.

Sanitary district officials said the proposal does not involve annexation. The board will meet in the Redwood High School faculty lounge, rather than as usual at district offices.

MILDRED BRODIE

Private funeral was held yesterday for Mildred T. Brodie, 63, of 2441 Paradise Drive, Tiburon, a retired bookkeeper, at Russell and Gooch Funeral Chapel in Mill Valley.

Miss Brodie was found dead in her home yesterday by her sister, Mrs. Majorie Amos of Tiburon. She died of natural causes after being hospitalized for two months recently, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan.

A native of Oregon, she had lived in Marin County for 45 years, working as a bookkeeper for Diamond National Corp. in San Francisco until retiring about three months ago.

In addition to Mrs. Amos, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Carolyn Brodie of Campbell, Santa Clara County, and two other sisters, Mrs. Roberta Jorgensen of Campbell, and Mrs. Sharon Dragner of Sunnyvale.

Burial was in Cypress Lawn Cemetery, Colma.

LAURA HARRINGTON

Laura E. Harrington, 97, of Novato, died yesterday at a local hospital after a short illness.

Mrs. Harrington lived with her sister, Mrs. Eva Alderman, at 655 Canyon Road.

A native of Black River Falls, Wis., she came to California 45 years ago. She worked as a secretary for a San Luis Obispo real estate firm until she retired in 1946.

Eighteen years ago she moved to Marin County, living in the Larkspur-Corte Madera area until five years ago when she moved to Novato.

Mrs. Harrington was a widow.

In addition to her sister, she is survived by a brother, J. P. June of Viroqua, Wis., and a niece, Mrs. Katherine Scott of Novato, whom she reared.

Funeral will be at 11 a.m. Monday at Chapel of the Chimes, Oakland. Friends may call at the Redwood Chapel Funeral Home, Novato, through tomorrow evening.

LEILA HAWLEY

Private funeral for Leila M. Hawley of Sonoma, a resident of Marin County for 17 years through 1966, will be held at 2:30 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton's Mortuary Chapel in San Rafael.

Mrs. Hawley, 65, died Thursday in a local hospital after long illness. She was the wife of Edwin E. Hawley, an engineer. They moved to Sonoma two years ago.

She was born in Nebraska and had resided in California for 40 years.

MRS. GEORGIA W. LAWRENCE

Funeral for Georgia W. Lawrence, wife of former Fairfax Mayor Frank L. Lawrence, will be held Monday at 11 a.m. at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

Mrs. Lawrence died Thursday at a local hospital after a short illness. She was 62.

Her husband, a retired Army man, served on both the Fairfax City Council and Fairfax Park and Recreation Commission. They had been Fairfax residents since 1947. The home is at 334 Cascade Drive.

Mrs. Lawrence was born in Montana and had resided in California 50 years.

Besides her husband, she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Sadie Johnsen of Sacramento; three sons, Frank L. Lawrence Jr. of Novato, Merle W. Lawrence of San Anselmo, and Robert W. Lawrence of Sacramento; a daughter, Mrs. Irene Nienkark of Fairfax; three sisters, Helen Johnsen, Roberta W. B. Johnsen, and Mrs. May Stribling, all of Sacramento, and eight grandchildren.

Burial will be in Mount Tamalpais Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Chapel of the Hills.

MARY LUNDQUIST

Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Lundquist, 56, of 8 Elm Court, San Anselmo, died yesterday after a long illness.

She was found dead in bed at 7:20 p.m. by her husband, Erik C. Lundquist, an engineer with United Fruit Co. in San Francisco. An autopsy will be performed, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan.

A native of Chicago, Ill., Mrs. Lundquist had lived in Marin County for 19 years.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by a son, John, and twin daughters, Alice and Addie, all of the home; her mother, Mrs. F. G. Dillard of St. Louis, Mo., and two sisters, Mrs. M. A. Shanklin of Ferguson, Mo., and Mrs. William Nierhoff of Lombard, Ill.

Funeral arrangements are pending at Chapel of the Hills in San Anselmo.

BEATRICE McGRATH

Beatrice McGrath of San Rafael, a Marin County resident 18 years, died yesterday in a local hospital after long illness.

Mrs. McGrath, a nurse, was the wife of Edward C. McGrath, an engineer with the California Department of Water Resources. They resided at 41 Coleman Drive.

Mrs. McGrath was office nurse for Dr. Brooks Pringle of San Rafael for 12 years, and most recently a general duty nurse at Marin General Hospital.

She was born in Nelson, B.C., Canada, and graduated from Royal Jubilee Hospital Nursing College in Victoria, B.C. She came to California from Canada in 1948.

Surviving are her husband; her mother, Frances Staples of Vancouver, B.C.; a brother, Tanner Staples of Edmonton, Alta., Canada, and a sister, Audrey Staples of Vancouver.

Requiem Mass will be offered at 9:30 a.m. Monday at St. Raphael's Mission Chapel, San Rafael. Burial will be in Mount Olivet Cemetery, San Rafael. Rosary will be recited at 8 p.m. tomorrow at Keaton Chapel, San Rafael.

PATRICIA REYNOLDS

Mrs. Patricia W. Reynolds, 38, of 6C Circle Drive, Tiburon, a self-emplyed advertising agent, was found dead today at her home.

She was taken by ambulance to Marin General Hospital but was pronounced dead on arrival, according to Deputy Coroner Richard W. Madigan. An autopsy was scheduled.

A native of New York state, she worked for several years in the advertising department of the Ebb Tide, Tiburon weekly newpaper, prior to establishing her own advertising agency. This business, Pat Reynolds and Associates, was declared bankrupt on Dec. 18.

She is survived by a daughter, Melind, 13 and a son, Kevin, 15.

Office Center Again On Planner's Agenda

El Marinero office and commercial center, to be built directly across North San Pedro Road from the Civic Center, will come up for another review by the Marin County Planning Commission Monday at 2 p.m.

The all-day meeting of the planning commission will begin on the third floor of the Civic Center at 9 a.m.

The master plan for the $6 million El Marinero project ran into a snag last month because planning commissioners wanted more parking spaces. Charlton Investment Co. of San Francisco plans two underground parking levels plus four stories for offices and retail stores on 5.2 acres. Architect Gilbert Oliver showed plans for 398 parking spaces, about one per 420 square feet of office space. Commissioners asked him to bring the ratio closer to one per 300 square feet of floor space.

During the morning, the commission will consider a 55-unit apartment project by Western Hosts Inc. on two acres in Santa Venetia, just east of Cala Market. On Dec. 9, residents in the area protested that more apartments there would be unsightly, cause congestion, and overcrowd schools.

Other items on the agenda include:

William Wright's request for rezoning about 48 acres at Black John Slough, south of Gnoss Field, from planned industrial to resort and commercial recreation. Wright plans a boatel, mobile home park, houseboat marina, and repair shops.

Johngold Corp.'s request for a change in plans for the Howard Johnson restaurant and motor lodge on Richardson Bay, to delete an indoor tennis club and add a service station and boat storage facility.

A tentative map for a 52-lot subdivision on 25 acres next to Tamalpais Valley School in Tamalpais Valley, by Allan-Marin Co. Access would be from Tennessee Valley Road to Marin Avenue, and into Bell Lane.

Amendments to Los Robles Mobile Homes master plan for 200 mobile homes on 30 acres on Bel Marin Keys Boulevard between Highway 101 and Hamilton Drive. Developer Paul Goldstone wants to relocate the main entrance and the recreation building, and re-route traffic.

Louisiana's Lake Ponchartrain, covering 630 square miles, is the largest lake wholly within the United States.

One Marinite Left On State Utility Board

I-J Special Report

SACRAMENTO — Two of three Marin County members of the California Public Utilities Commission were replaced yesterday, making four of the commission's five members appointees of Gov. Ronald Reagan.

Sole holdover, and the only Edmund G. Brown appointee remaining on the commission, is A. W. Gatov of Kentfield, whose term expires Dec. 31, 1970.

Reagan named Thomas Moran of San Diego and John P. Vukasin of Oakland, both attorneys, as commissioners, to replace Peter E. Mitchell of Ross and William M. Bennett of Kentfield, whose terms expired Tuesday.

Other Reagan appointees on the PUC board, named in 1967, are Fred B. Morrissey of Berkeley and William Symons Jr. of Bishop.

Bennett has served one term on the board after being its legal counsel. Mitchell was appointed in 1951 by Gov. Earl Warren and reappointed by Governors Goodwin J. Knight and Brown.

Tree Burning

Twelfth Night tree burning ceremonies, sponsored by the Belvedere and Tiburon parks and recreation commissions, will be held at 6:30 p.m. Monday in a vacant lot on Tiburon Boulevard, adjacent to the Safeway market.

Court Refuses To Throw Out Murder Charges

I-J Special Report

SAN FRANCISCO — A Superior Court judge refused yesterday to dismiss murder charges against a Tiburon man and his mother, accused of killing an elderly San Francisco woman.

Judge Bernard Glickfeld said a date for the trial of Daniel Nyhan, 43, and his mother, Mrs. Elsie F. Nyhan, 72, would be set Jan. 22.

The Nyhans are accused of murdering Genevieve Dolan, 61, who was found dead of head injuries in Mrs. Nyhan's San Francisco apartment Oct. 25.

The mother entered a plea of innocent yesterday. The son had pleaded innocent earlier. Both sought dismissal on grounds of insufficient evidence.

Police claim that Nyhan struck Mrs. Dolan, a legal secretary and longtime family friend, while he was intoxicated. His mother's attorney argued that she was not actually involved in the incident but made statements to protect her son.

Mrs. Nyhan is free on $4,000 bail and her son on $5,000.

Play Next Saturday

"Katya, the Wonder Girl," a San Francisco Players Guild production, will be presented by the Junior Theater of Marin at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. next Saturday, not today, as incorrectly reported in yesterday's Independent-Journal. Both performances will be at San Rafael High School auditorium.

No Marijuana Charge Filed Against Pair

Barbara Gail Portnoy, 30, and Gary Edmund Shaeffer, 23, both of Forest Knolls, were freed in Marin Municipal Court yesterday when the district attorney announced he would not file charges as a result of their arrest earlier in the day on suspicion of possessing marijuana.

Sailor Was Civilian Before Apollo Flight

The Independent-Journal on Dec. 28 incorrectly reported that Radarman 3c James Reed Jr. of 45 Bolinas Avenue, San Anselmo, was aboard the guided missile destroyer Cochrane, secondary recovery ship for the Apollo 8 lunar flight.

The error was based on incorrect information supplied by the Navy. Reed had already been discharged from the Navy when the story appeared.

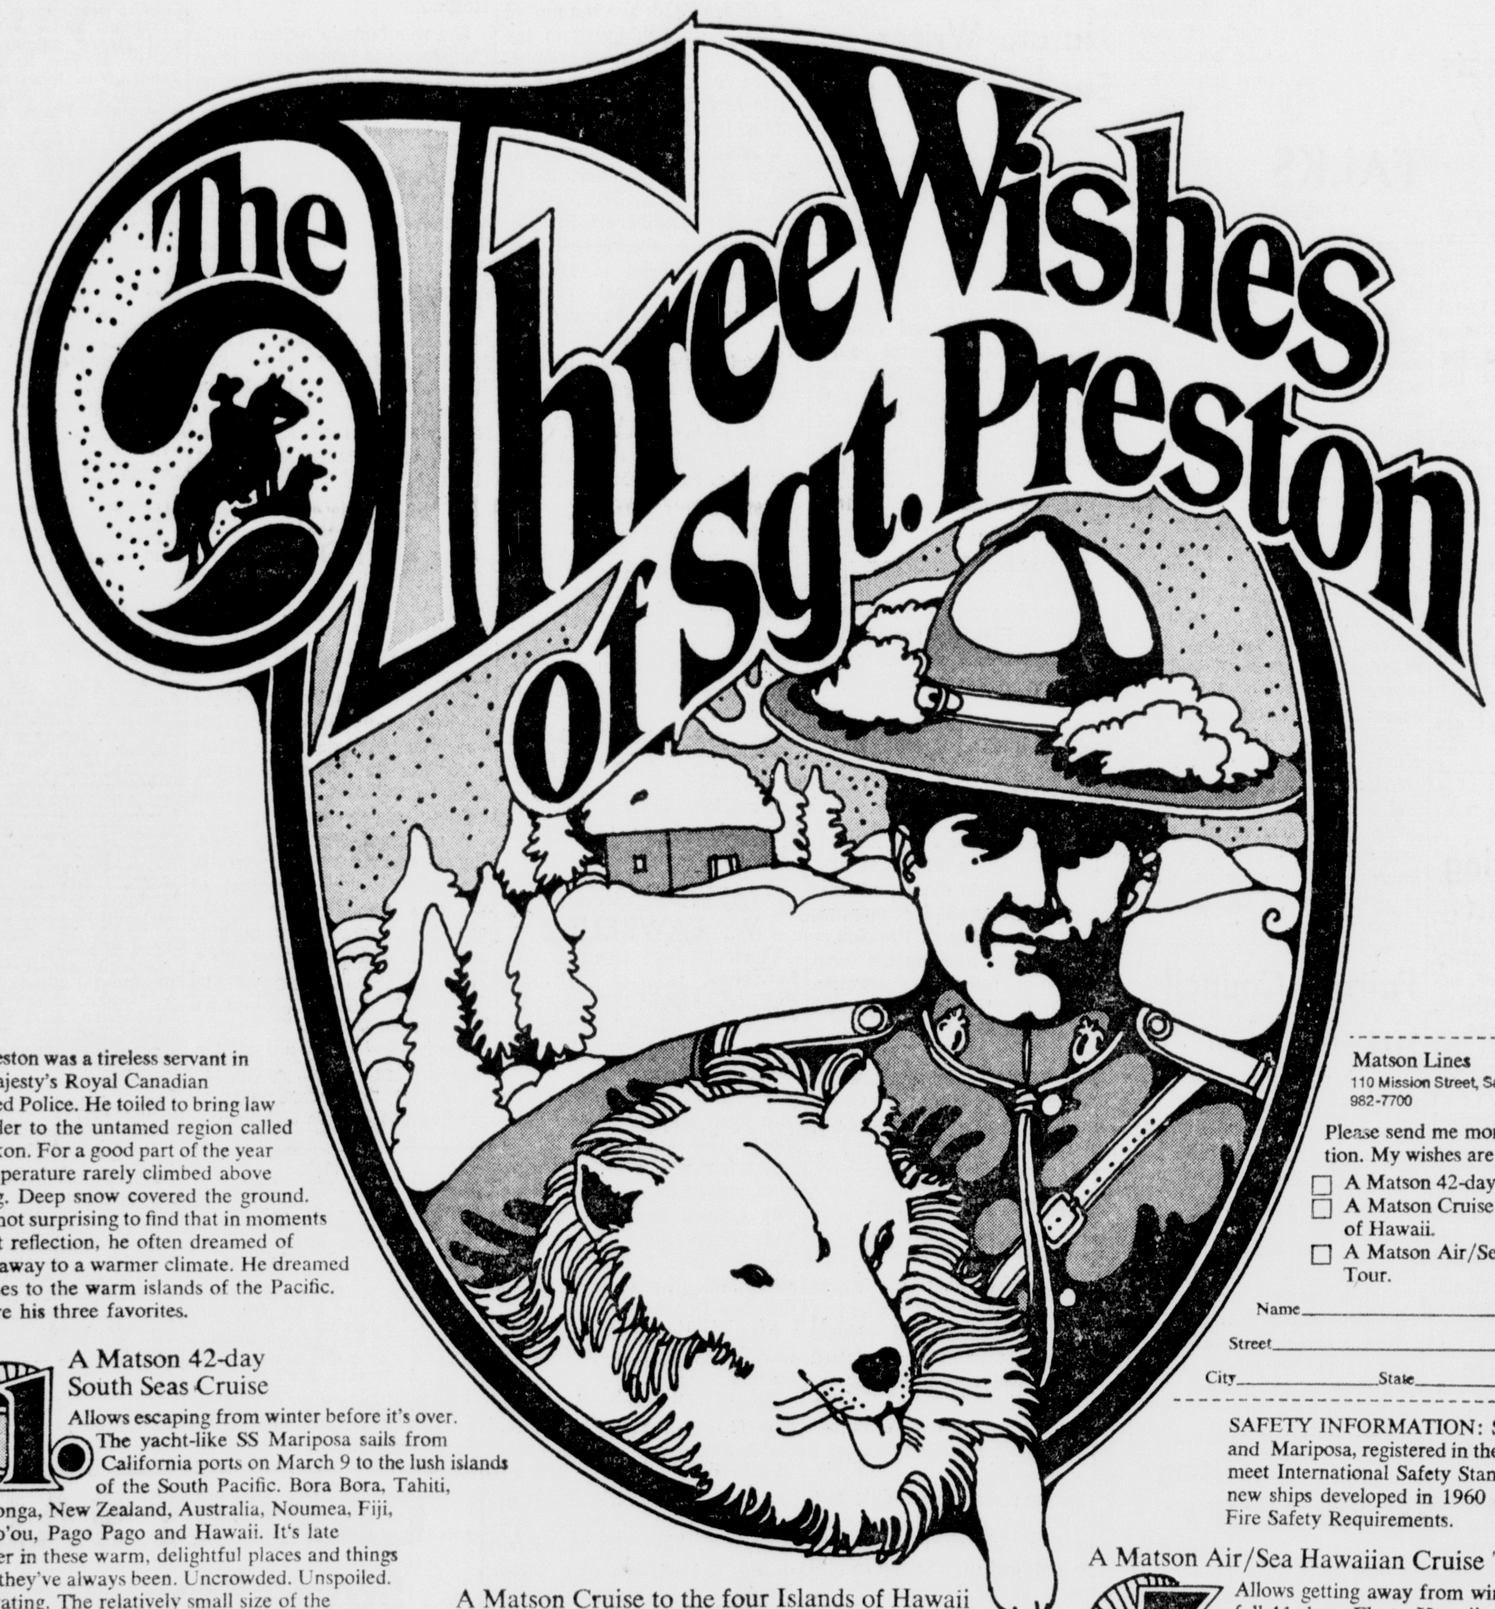
The Tree Wishes of Sgt. Preston



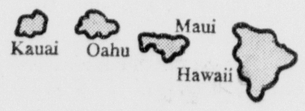
Sgt. Preston was a tireless servant in Her Majesty's Royal Canadian Mounted Police. He toiled to bring law and order to the untamed region called the Yukon. For a good part of the year the temperature rarely climbed above freezing. Deep snow covered the ground. So it is not surprising to find that in moments of quiet reflection, he often dreamed of getting away to a warmer climate. He dreamed of cruises to the warm islands of the Pacific. Here are his three favorites.

1. A Matson 42-day South Seas Cruise

Allows escaping from winter before it's over. The yacht-like SS Mariposa sails from California ports on March 9 to the lush islands of the South Pacific. Bora Bora, Tahiti, Rarotonga, New Zealand, Australia, Noumea, Fiji, Niuafo'ou, Pago Pago and Hawaii. It's late summer in these warm, delightful places and things are as they've always been. Uncrowded. Unspoiled. Captivating. The relatively small size of the Mariposa creates a very congenial atmosphere for her 365 guests. The service, the cuisine, the marvelous parties are like those of a great mainland country club. But, perhaps a little nicer because of the sea. Fares for the 42-day South Seas Cruise begin at $1,595.00.

2. A Matson Cruise to the four Islands of Hawaii

Allows cutting 15 days out of the dead of winter. It's called the Winter Paradise Cruise. Sail from California on January 28 aboard the luxurious SS Lurline. Enjoy all the amenities of ship travel. Have breakfast in bed. Sing old favorites at the piano bar. Dance the night away. Wind leisurely around the four biggest islands of Hawaii, before heading back to California. Visit Honolulu and sunny Waikiki Beach on the island of Oahu. Nawiliwili on the "Garden Island" of Kauai. The old whaling port of Lahaina on the island of Maui. And Hilo, on the "Orchid Island" of Hawaii. Pack just once. The Lurline is your exotic Polynesian Hotel in port throughout the voyage. Also on this cruise, golfers may enter a special 72-hole handicap tournament and play on each island's most famous golf course. All-expense, four-island cruise fares start at $630.00.



3. A Matson Air/Sea Hawaiian Cruise Tour

Allows getting away from winter for a full 11 days. Fly to Hawaii. Spend six days and five nights at the Holiday Isle Hotel. Shop. Hula. Tour around the islands. And bask in the sun on world-famous Waikiki Beach. Then, come aboard the beautiful SS Lurline and sail back to California across the sparkling Pacific. Enjoy five days of attentive service and marvelous food and lots of great parties. Everything is included for $399.00. If you prefer, there are also Sea/Air Cruise Tours, where you can sail over, then fly back to California.

ON THE AGENDA

Volunteers Donate 'Gift Of Life' To Marin General Hospital

The Marin General Hospital Volunteers gave the hospital a $10,700 New Year's present to enable it to purchase equipment for the heart unit and the pediatric department.

The Volunteers voted to allocate $8,000 for the Heart Unit, to re-equip two "crash carts" used to save the lives of persons suffering from an emergency cardiac condition and to add a third cart.

In addition, the Jack and Jill Branch of the Volunteers, who devote all their energies to the hospital's pediatric department, voted to purchase four electric beds for a total of $2,700 from the funds raised through an "auto premiere" held last fall in Marin.

The "crash carts" will be placed in the Marin General Heart Unit, in surgery, and in the emergency department.

Each of the re-equipped carts will contain a cardioscope, a defibrillator, and a direct electrocardiograph writer. The heart unit cart will also include a heart rate meter and equipment called a "synchro-trigger with reversible polarity."

The allocations of the $10,700 has been approved by the hospital board of directors, and administrator Ray K. Bolinger has already begun to order the equipment, according to Mrs. Peter Behr, chairman of the council of the Volunteers.

ROLAND FENZ of San Rafael is chairman for the San Francisco alumni and parents gathering of Lawrence University on Wednesday at the Presidio Officers Club in San Francisco. The annual meeting is set from 5:30 to 7:30 p.m. for associates of the Appleton, Wis., univeristy.

NEW OFFICERS of the St. Vincent's Branch 127, Italian Catholic Federation, in Petaluma have been elected. Mrs. Olga Lavio is the new president and the other officers are Mmes. Maria Molinoli, first vice president; Lucy Rosa, second vice president; Mary Solari, financial secretary; Clementina Musso, treasurer; Victor Albertini, orator, and Mmes. Emilia Miligia, Margaret Leone and Anne Casazza, trustees. Installation will be held with Sonoma Branch on Jan. 18, with a dinner to follow.

THE UNITED Presbyterian Women of the San Rafael Presbyterian Church will hold a luncheon in Canoles Hall at noon Thursday. It will be given by the Ladies' luncheon League.

Tickets should be purchased in advance if possible.

MARIN TOASTMISTRESS 651 will discuss "U.S. Today" at a 7 p.m. dinner meeting Thursday at The Kettle Restaurant in San Rafael. Purpose of the meeting has been designated "To Improve Your Notes." Mrs. Wilfred Castle will be toastmistress.

Miss Roberts Will Be Wed

A Valentine Day wedding date has been set by Judith Lynn Roberts, whose engagement to Nicholas John Lederer of San Francisco has been announced by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. William T. Roberts of San Rafael.

The sister of William Lee Roberts, serving with the Navy aboard the USS Enterprise, Judy is a Terra Linda High School graduate and will receive a degree in psychology from Sonoma State College this month. She has been active in the Volunteer Bureau of Marin and Community Involvement Project at Sonoma State.

Nicholas is the son of Mrs Ruth Lederer and Walther Lederer of Alexandria, Va., and the brother of Thomas C. Lederer, a graduate student at Princeton University. He is a graduate of Mount Vernon High School in Alexandria and Hiram College in Ohio and University of Michigan. He is employed with the Involvement Corps in San Francisco.

The wedding is planned at Glide Memorial Methodist Church in San Francisco.

William Sarm To Wed Christine Rapetti

The engagement of their daughter, Christine Rapetti, to William Geoffrey Sarm of Tiburon has been announced by Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Rapetti of Fox Chapel, Pa.

CHRISTINE RAPETTI

Christine is the sister of Edward, Paul, Barbara and Jeanne Rapetti of Fox Chapel. She is a graduate of St. Agnes Cathedral High School in Rockville Center, N.Y., and of St. Mary's College, Notre Dame, Ind. She is teaching in Verona, Pa.

The future bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. William I. Sarm of Tiburon. He was graduated from North Reading High School in North Reading, Mass., and the University of Notre Dame. He is employed with the Del Monte Corporation in San Francisco.

Plans are being made for an April 19 wedding in Pittsburgh.

THE SUBURBAN SCENE

Paris Family Visits Ross

By MOLLY MARIN

A holiday reunion in Ross brought Comte and Comtesse de Morelos and their son, Carlos de Morelos, 9, from their home in Paris. The Comtesse is the former Brenda Helser. The family stayed with Brenda's mother and stepfather, Adm. and Mrs. M. C. Cheek of Ross.

The Comtesse, who has lived in France 19 years, frequently stayed in Belvedere with her grandparents, Col. and Mrs. Benjamin Pope, as a child. She attended the Katherine Delmar Burke School in San Francisco and was graduated from Stanford University.

An outstanding American swimmer, she trained for both the 1940 and 1944 Olympics, which were cancelled because of World War II, and was a gold medal winner in the 1948 Olympic Games in London. She is the former holder of five world and 27 American records in free-style swimming events. A friend and competitor of Anne Curtis Cuneo, Brenda had hoped for a visit with the Marin swimmer, but Mrs. Cuneo was out of town during the visit of the Parisians.

In Paris she wrote a column for the Paris edition of the Herald-Tribune and was French correspondent for "The Diplomat".

The Cheeks had a series of small dinners for close friends and family members during the stay of the de Morelos family. Before coming to the Bay Area Brenda and her husband and son visited relatives in Portland, Ore. They also stopped in Los Angeles for a brief visit with family members before returning to France.

MARRIED LAST Saturday at St. Mary the Virgin Episcopal Church in San Francisco were Alison Plummer and Dennis Slattery of West Covina. Alison, who is the daughter of the Harold Pierson Plummers of San Francisco, bowed at the first Marin Debutante Ball in 1962 and has been a member of the Spinsters. She is a graduate of the Katharine Branson School in Ross and the University of Southern California. Her husband is attending law school in San Francisco, where the couple will make their home.

SPENDING THE holidays with their parents, Brig. Gen. (ret.) and Mrs. Jack A. Gibbs of the Marin Country Club Estates, were Jack A. Gibbs Jr. of Oxon Hill, Md., and James Gibbs, a second lieutenant in the Air Force stationed at Griffiss Air Force Base near Rome, N.Y.

LEAVING MARIN, where they have lived since 1937, are Mr. and Mrs. Charles Robinson of San Rafael. The Robinsons will make their home in the Palm Springs area where they have bought a home at La Quinta golf course and plan to leave Marin about the middle of the month.

WAWONA WAS a Belvedere outpost over the New Year holiday when the Warren Finkes, Edward R. Russells III, John Hoefers, G. M. Howards and members of the Robbert Bagnall family, took adjoining cabins for fun in the snow. The Joseph Royers of Belvedere had been at Wawona for Christmas but returned before the New Year festivities.

FIVE GENERATIONS visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Machado in Novato Monday. They were Mrs. Alma Malloy of Santa Rosa, Mrs. Machado's grandmother; Mrs. E. O. Madsen of Orland, her mother; Mrs. William Residinger of North Sacramento, her sister; and Mrs. Phillip Christian, her niece and her husband and children, Anita and Brian Christian of Reedstown, Wis.

MRS. GORDON B. TELLER of San Rafael was honored at a surprise baby luncheon shower Dec. 27 at the Iron Horse Restaurant in San Francisco. Among the guests were Mmes. Alfred R. Thatcher, James L. Murray, Stewart L. McDonald, Alan J. Gibbons and Miss Alberta Moore.

THEIR FIRST child, a son, was welcomed by Mr. and Mrs. Christopher Sawyer of Oakland on Dec. 30. The baby is the first grandchild of Mrs. Richard Finnie of Belvedere and Dr. Lester Sawyer of Washington, D. C. Mr. and Mrs. Harold Ashton of Walnut Creek are the baby's maternal grandparents. Mrs. Lloyd Ackerman of San Francisco is his great-grandmother. The infant has been named Scott Patrick Sawyer. His mother is the former Lorraine Ashton of Walnut Creek, and his father, Chris Sawyer is a former Belvedere resident.

SAILING ABOARD the Lurline on the Aloha Mexico cruise from Los Angeles harbor will be Mrs. Estella M. House of San Rafael. Ports of call include Acapulco, Puerto Vallarta and Mazatlan during the 11-day cruise.

MR. AND MRS. Harold F. Davis of Tamalpais Valley will be honored tonight in celebration of their 50th wedding anniversary at a dinner party given by their children, Mrs. Robert Martin of Mill Valley and Robert F. Davis of San Francisco.

About 100 guests are expected to attend the dinner to be given at 5:30 p.m. at the Fox Hostess House in San Francisco.

The Davises were married on Jan. 4, 1919, in Omaha, Neb.

THE EIGHTH annual tree burning ceremony was held at the Marin Country Club Estates on New Year's Day. The Gordon Walkers and the Arthur Lindauers were hosts and served gin fizzes to the homeowners, with the admittance fee being one Christmas tree to burn.

MR. AND MRS. Harry Flachs and Mrs. Frederick Goette of the Marin Country Club Estates have just returned from a Christmas cruise on the Greek liner, Jason. They visited Acapulco, Mazatlan and Puerto Vallarta on their 10-day cruise.

AFTER A TRIP to Hawaii Mrs. F. I. Clary of Baltimore, Md., joined her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William I. Sarm for a holiday family reunion in Tiburon.

SEW SIMPLE

By EUNICE FARMER

DEAR EUNICE,

Please give me any information you have on sewing with velvet, since I have several bridesmaids dresses to make.

MRS. W. T. L.

DEAR MRS. W. T. L.:

To you, and all the other home sewers who try to work on very difficult fabrics such as velvets and chiffons — don't! At least, don't work on them for the very first time as a beginner when the occasion calls for a professional. I can't tell you in a few words how to handle velvet or any other unusual fabric since there are pressing techniques, length of stitch, lining, pinning etc. that are so completely different than working with the more average fabric.

If you know ahead of time that you will have to use a certain type of fabric that you have never used before, please purchase an extra half yard and play with it; practice the length of stitch, tension, pressing and general handling. The results will more than pay off in the finished product. It's much better to do a great job with a more basic type of fabric than to do a poor job with an unusual one. No I don't mean to discourage you, I just want to erase the problems that make you nervous and keep you from enjoying the real pleasures of doing your own sewing.

I'd like to tell all you readers about an apron I made to wear while sewing; it works great for me and I think others would love it too!

I made mine out of plastic fabric, it is easier to clean the surface when it's slick. Turn the hem up to the right side instead of the wrong side and machine stitch vertically at the width of the hem in at least 4 places, including both ends. This forms a deep and generous pocket and will serve you faithfully while you are sewing. It's a collector of cuttings from seam trimmings, thread, small supplies, etc. Keeps everything within easy reach too!

JUDY S. says:

If you are stuck with a lot of very short mini dresses with the A-line shape, just belt them in and add a nifty pair of slacks, preferably the loose, full ones, and you will have one of the sharpest looks of the year. Be sure the dress is short enough for a balanced effect.

Another great use for those sleeveless A-line dresses which we all have many of is to make a lower neckline and a slightly larger armhole and use them for jumpers. You can add the newest shirt blouses with the long full sleeves, either a roll collar or the Peter Pan collar in a contrasting fabric and you will have another "new look" of the year.

DEAR EUNICE,

Just exactly what is the correct width of a waistband on a skirt, shorts and slacks? I have seen them anywhere from 3 inches wide to no waistband at all; just grosgrain ribbon on the inside of the skirt.

MRS. S. E. R.

DEAR MRS. S. E. R.

There doesn't seem to be much conformity today when it comes to the width of the waistband. For the average person, the waistband should be from 1 inch to 1¼ inches wide. A waistband that is 3 inches wide is for a very youthful figure when fashion calls for a wide belt. One must be extremely thin to be able to wear this type of waistband comfortably.

Upon examining the waistband on some designer suits, I noticed that the waistband is often made of a bias strip of fabric that more or less binds the seam allowance of the skirt, making it approximately ⅝ inches wide. The more narrow waistband works beautifully with the type of panty girdle most women wear today; the more narrow it is, the less apt it is to double over.

Many skirts also have the grosgrain ribbon on the inside of the skirt; this too, would be most comfortable to the wearer if her waistline isn't too trim.

HELEN HELP US!

Wisest Way Not Always Best 'Not Prejudiced' Learns

DEAR HELEN:

I am an honor student and have always been brought up with the idea that it didn't matter who you were but what you accomplished that counts.

Isn't it funny how your parents can say one thing and mean another? I've known a certain boy for five years and we were always good friends. He's on student council and is aiming for a scholarship. But he's a different nationality, or I should say, race.

Recently he asked me for a date and I accepted, not even thinking my folks would object. We aren't serious, just get along well together. But I am more comfortable with him and can talk with him better than I can with any other boy.

Well, my parents tried to be kind, but they wouldn't let me go out with him. And he feels it's best that way too. That's what bothers me, Helen. He just gave up without even trying to prove himself. Is it best? I feel so mean and low about it all. — NOT PREJUDICED

DEAR NOT:

It isn't the best way, but it may be the wisest way — and the boy realizes this, though the hurt runs deep. Why not discuss the situation thoroughly with your parents? Perhaps you'll all gain a great deal through a deep-down examination of a problem which is becoming quite common these days. (But frankly, there is no perfect answer. No matter which way you decide, someone is bound to suffer. I hope it won't always be so.)—H.

DEAR HELEN:

I have a friend I'll call "A." She was engaged to "B," whom I've know for eight years.

They broke up and "B" went into the service. I write to him. Meanwhile, "A" got engaged to another fellow.

Now, "B" has asked me out when he gets home. My mother seems to think I would be betraying "A" if I went with "B," as old loves die hard, and maybe she only got engaged out of spite or something. Could this be? — UNDECIDED.

DEAR UN:

Your mother worries too much. "A" minus "B" equals "You." Date him!—H.

DEAR HELEN:

A year ago I met a very nice gentleman. My folks like him and treat him almost like a brother. He is at our house a lot, and sometimes takes trips with us.

We were in the back yard playing ball when I got hit with a bat. He came over and picked me up. Afterwards he told me it came to him all of a sudden that he loved me, and so he had better not come around any more.

I am only 15, but I think I love him too. So why should he stop coming to see us? — YOUNG BUT SURE

DEAR Y BUT S:

You didn't mention the man's age, marital status, or much of anything else except that he feels loving you is wrong. I can only assume he's right: You aren't mature enough for this gentleman's affection.—H.

HEIDEE BORGESON

August Rite Set By Pair

Lt. Col. (ret.) and Mrs. Ralph Borgeson announced the engagement oftheir daughter, Heidee Lynne, to David Alan Lenzi Sunday at a party given in their San Rafael home.

Heidee, who is a senior at San Jose State College, is the sister of Philip Borgeson of San Rafael and the granddaughter of Mrs. Hazel Mayhood and Mrs. Sarah Borgeson, both of San Francisco. She is a graduate of Terra Linda High School and is a member of Delta Zeta sorority.

David is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Lenzi of San Anselmo. Vicki Lenzi is his sister. He is a graduate of Marin Catholic High School and is in his senior year at San Francisco State College.

The couple plan an August wedding.

Baked Hash

You can bake corned beef hash. Just pack the hash from a couple of one-pound cans into a baking dish, a glass one that is 10 by 6 by 1¾ inches will be fine. Brush with melted butter or margarine and bake in a moderate oven until piping hot. This may take half an hour.

Lyda Yohner Bride Of Ronald G. Harley

St. Francis Episcopal Church in Novato was the setting Dec. 28 for the wedding of Lyda Jeanne Yohner and Ronald Godfrey LeVatte Harley.

The bride is the daughter of Sgt. and Mrs. Herman J. Yohner of Hamilton Air Force Base, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. Borden Harley of Novato.

Donald Phillips of Novato was best man, and the bride's brother, Larry J. Yohner of Sacramento, and the bridegroom's brother, Christopher Harley of Novato, ushered guests to their seats.

A reception at the Non-Commissioned Officers Club at Hamilton followed the ceremony.

Lyda is a graduate of George Washington High School in Denver, Colo. She attended College of Marin and is employed by Tele-Vue Systems in San Rafael.

Ronald is a graduate of Novato High School. He attended College of Marin and is employed by Standard Oil Company in Greenbrae. Mrs. Gertrude Stocker of Novato is his grandmother, and he is the brother of Christopher, Donald and Cynthia Harley.

The couple will live in Novato following a wedding trip to Carmel.

Ward Off Heart Attacks Through Jogging, Activity

Jogging and other physical exercise may help ward off heart attacks by taking cholesterol out of the body.

This finding comes from rats made to exercise on a treadmill after being fed cholesterol containing radioactive carbon. Exercised rats had more radioactive carbon in their breath, reflecting faster removal of cholesterol, than animals not taking exercise, a team of researchers from the University of Oregon Medical School reports. Cholesterol is a fatty material blamed for clogging arteries and bringing on heart attacks.

America: Land Embracing Virtually All The Faiths

(EDITOR'S NOTE: America is a land of many religions embracing virtually all known faiths. Many of us have only the vaguest ideas of what religions other than our own are all about, some of us are even a little vague about what we profess as our own religion. The dispatch that follows is the first of a series by a noted writer on religion describing the faiths of Americans — their origins, their teachings and the people who follow them.)

By LOUIS CASSELS
United Press International

Baptists are America's largest Protestant family. There are more than 25 million of them in 90,000 local congregations.

The Baptist movement originated in Holland in the early 17th Century. Its first adherents were Puritan fugitives from England. They got the name "Baptist" from their insistence that baptism should be administered only to persons old enough to make a personal "Decision for Christ." This was a radical break with the tradition of infant baptism, then practiced almost universally by Protestants as well as Catholics.

Baptists also believed—and still believe—that baptism must be total immersion of the body, rather than by pouring or sprinkling.

Although the Baptist movement grew slowly in Holland, and gained a foothold across the channel in England, it was in America that it finally found fertile soil. The first Baptist church in the new world was founded in 1639 by Rev. Roger Williams, a Church of England priest who had cast his lot with the Puritans and fled to Massachusetts under threat of imprisonment.

The Baptist movement remained relatively small throughout the colonial era. But with the coming of independence, and especially with the opening of the western frontier, it began to grow explosively.

The local Baptist church, governed by its own members, free to elect and ordain its own pastor, totally independent of any ecclesiastical organization, proved highly attractive to the freedom-loving men of the frontier.

The preaching in Baptist churches was often more fiery than profound, since a congregation could ordain to the ministry any man who felt he had a divine call to preach, however little education or preparation he might have had.

But Baptists were not greatly troubled by a lack of learning among their pastors. They were convinced that the Bible itself contained all the "saving truth" that any man needed to know, and that each man was required to "work out his own salvation" by reading the scriptures and making a personal commitment of faith in Jesus Christ.

The emphasis on personal faith led, inevitably, to a preoccupation with a felt experience of conversion. And this led, in turn, to emotion-filled "revival meetings" and to the tradition of concluding each Sunday service with an "invitation" to repentant sinners to come forward and declare their faith in Christ.

Today, there are 28 different Baptists' associations, conferences, or conventions in America.

The largest Baptist body, and the largest single Protestant organization in America, is the Southern Baptist Convention. There are now "Southern" Baptist churches in all 50 states. California, for example, has nearly a thousand. Nationwide, the Southern Baptist Convention has more than 11 million members.

Southern Baptists are uncompromising fundamentalists in theology. They will fire a seminary professor who suggests that the creation story in Genesis is a religious parable, and is not meant to be read as a literal scientific account of what took place during the first seven days of the world's creation.

Their rigorous conservatism in doctrine has made them wary of contacts with other denominations (including other Baptist groups), which are, in their view, gravely tainted with liberalism. They have accordingly remained aloof from such cooperative organizations as the National and World Council of Churches, and have refused even to discuss possible mergers.

The American Baptist Convention, which used to be called the Northern Baptist Convention, is considerably smaller, with slightly more than 1.5 million members. Some of its churches are fundamentalist, but many are receptive to more liberal theological viewpoints. American Baptists are very active in the National Council of Churches and other cooperative Protestant bodies.

Two other large Baptist bodies are predominantly Negro in their membership. The National Baptist Convention of the U.S.A., Inc., has 5 million members. The National Baptist Convention of America has 2.7 million.

In addition to these four giants, which account for more than 90 per cent of the nation's Baptists, there are Seventh-Day Baptists, who worship on Saturday instead of Sunday; Primitive Baptists, who conduct foot-washing ceremonies as part of each celebration of the Lord's Supper; Free-will (or Free) Baptists, who stress man's freedom to choose salvation or perdition; Predestinarian Baptists, who cling to Calvin's doctrine of the double election, and many other varieties.

Baptists are great supporters of foreign mission. The Southern Baptist Convention alone maintains more than 1,500 full-time missionaries abroad. They also are zealous evangelizers at home, conducting house-to-house visitation drives to reach unchurched families. The greatest practitioner of mass evangelism of our time, Rev. Billy Graham, is a Baptist.

In recent years, Baptists have made a mighty effort to upgrade the educational level of their clergy. You may still encounter an "ordained amateur" in the pulpit of a small-town or rural Baptist church, but elsewhere today you are much more likely to find seminary-educated ministers.

Baptist worship is traditionally informal. A typical service includes spontaneous prayers, scripture reading, hymn-singing, and the sermon, followed by the pastor's invitation for converts to come forward.

The Lord's Supper is observed at least four times a year, with grape juice instead of wine, and small cubes of ordinary loaf bread instead of the flat communion wafers familiar to Catholics, Lutherans, and others.

The elements are passed around the pews by deacons, and members of the congregation receive them while remaining in their seats instead of coming forward to kneel at an altar rail. To Baptists, the observance is strictly an "ordinance"—that is, a memorial to Jesus — rather than a sacrament with mystical power to convey grace.

Patriarch Of Moscow Asks Continued Faithful Service

MOSCOW (AP) — Alexius, patriarch of Moscow and all Russia, sent a Christmas message this week to members of the Russian Orthodox Church, calling upon them to "serve mankind zealously."

"Making steps toward disarmament — this is what we must devote all our powers to," he said.

The message will be read in all Orthodox churches in this country Tuesday, which is Christmas according to the calendar used here before the Communist revolution. There are an estimated 50 million adherents of Russian Orthodoxy in the Soviet Union.

The Christmas message was reported by the government news agency Tass. The patriarch has supported the Kremlin on various international issues and enjoys official favor.

Elder To Address Stake Session Set In Petaluma

Elder Henry D. Taylor, an assistant to the Council of Twelve of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints will speak at the Marin Stake (diocese) Conference tomorrow in Petaluma.

Elder Taylor was a Provo, Utah, businessman before being called to his full-time church position in 1958. He also is a former Californian mission president. He serves as managing director of the church's vast welfare program.

The session will begin at 10 a.m. in the Petaluma Chapel. Stake president is Weston L. Roe, of Novato.

Security Is Called Major Church Role

VALLEY FORGE, Pa. (UPI) —Church is a place where the average American middle class layman seeks security and reassurance, according to the Rev. Dr. Culbert G. Rutenber, president of the American Baptist Convention.

"Evidence multiplies that an uprooted middle class seeks through the church to 'find' itself," Rutenber writes in Crusader, American Baptist newsmagazine.

January Session

PITTSBURGH (UPI) — The 55th annual convention of the Lutheran Educational Conference of North America will be held at the Pittsburgh Hilton Hotel Jan. 11-13.

BRIDGE—NOT A CHURCH

An ancient Gothic cathedral? If it is, it's the first with a street sign inside it. Recently a Portland, Ore., cameraman found that a telephoto lens and the proper approach gave St. John's Bridge, across the Columbia River a real look in keeping with its name. He titles it, "St. John's Cathedral." (UPI Telephoto)

Texans Finish First In Quiz

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)— A team from Bethel Assembly of God, Arlington, Tex., took the national championship in the sixth annual Assemblies of Christ's Ambassadors (youth) Bible quiz held here by the Assemblies of God.

Young people from 55 Assemblies of God churches in 35 districts competed for trophies and scholarships in the quiz, which was held in conjunction with the denomination's fifth annual teen talent search.

Closing Gap

EAST LANSING, Mich. (UPI) —A five-year program of communication workshops for blacks in an attempt to bridge the gap between the races has been announuced.

50,000 At Rosary Service At Coliseum

LOS ANGELES (UPI) — A Roman Catholic service dedicated to greater recitation of the rosary and peace in Vietnam was attended by about 50,000 persons in Memorial Coliseum here.

The service, the 20th annual Mary's Hour, was presided over by Cardinal James Francis McIntyre, Archbishop of Los Angeles.

The Oldest Church

United Methodist Bishop To Address Redwood Units

Bishop Charles F. Golden, recently appointed head of the United Methodist Church in Northern California and Nevada, will hold his first major conferences in the church's Redwood Empire District on Thursday and Friday.

BISHOP GOLDEN
Schedules area visits

District Supt. Joyce W. Farr of Santa Rosa said Bishop Golden will speak for two "Reconciliation Dinners," Thursday at 6:30 p.m. at the Arcata United Methodist Church, and Friday at 6:30 p.m. at the First United Methodist Church in Santa Rosa.

Rev. Warren R. Walker, host pastor, will be master of ceremonies at the Arcata dinner. Presiding at Santa Rosa will be Rev. Howard B. Daulton, minister of First Methodist Church.

Churches of the United Methodist Redwood Empire district are scattered in eight California counties — Marin, Solano, Sonoma, Napa, Mendocino, Lake, Humboldt, and Del Norte. The dinners are part of a series of 11 in Northern California and Nevada, all to be addressed by Bishop Golden.

In his addresses the bishop will discuss a national program outlined for the first four years of the new United Methodist Church, formed last April by union of the Methodist and the Evangelical United Brethren denominations.

Under the theme, "a new church for a new world," the program aims to contribute to reconciliation of the divisions in society caused by poverty, lack of power among racial minorities, and the alienation of youth. The program calls for intensive, church-wide study of the Sermon on the Mount as the Biblical basis for a ministry of reconciliation.

Bishop Golden is a member of the national committee of 50 steering these efforts. He was sent to California in July after serving for eight years in Nashville, Tenn., as the bishop for several Methodist conferences in the former Central Jurisdiction. He is president of the National United Methodist Board of Christian Social Concerns.

Earlier in his church career Golden had been a local pastor, college teacher, and U. S. Army chaplain during World War II. Before his election as a bishop in 1960 he was for 13 years on the staff of the Methodist Board of Missions, first as director of field services in the department of Negro work, and finally as director of the division of national (USA) missions.

Christian Unity Week Theme Set

NEW YORK (UPI) — The theme of the 1969 Week of Prayer for Christian Unity, to be observed Jan. 18-25, is "Called to Freedom."

Unity Week, now an international tradition, is sponsored in the United States by the National Council of Churches' Department of Faith and Order and is recommended by the Roman Catholic Bishops' Committee for Ecumenical and Interreligious Affairs.

Sports-Loving Vatican Official To Become Bishop Of Church

VATICAN CITY (AP) — The big talk during warmups for the 16th World Cup golf tournament in Rome last October was that the Vatican had been invited to enter.

The long-driving, cigar-chomping monsignor who could have helped carry the Vatican colors was Paul Marcinkus, 46, of Cicero, Ill. But the Vatican thanked cup organizers for the invitation—and turned it down.

On Monday Msgr. Marcinkus is to be consecrated a bishop. The step up came as recognition for his 17 years in the Vatican diplomatic corps, capped by his service as a translator, troubleshooter and travel organizer for Pope Paul VI.

The bishop's robes also go with Marcinkus' new post as second-in-command—but effective head— of the Vatican Bank. As such he is responsible for the accounting and distributing of vast sums used to administer farflung missions, poor parishes and special charity projects, such as the Vatican-sponsored food drop in Biafra.

Bishop-designate Marcinkus' golf game—reportedly in the five-handicap range—symbolizes the American imprint he has made in high Vatican circles.

He also admits to enjoying a fast game of tennis and "loves to read westerns and mystery stories" along with historical and theological fare.

At various times since he came to Rome 19 years ago the 6 foot 3 prelate has hankered for home, but he now seems to be a Vatican fixture.

REV. PAUL MARCINKUS
Vatican troubleshooter

"Let's say I have taken out a longer lease on my apartment," he says.

He is a distinct loyalist to the Paulist view of things. He appears to disdain much of the dissent in the church today as the product of "bad theology" —that which takes little stock of the past.

Through his service to three popes, beginning with Pius XII, he has come a long way from his boyhood days in Cicero, a suburb west of Chicago.

He studied for the priesthood at Chicago's Quigley Seminary and was ordained in 1946. His first and only parish assignment was to St. Christina's on the city's far South Side.

He arrived in Rome in 1950 to study canon law at the Jesuit-run Gregorian University and soon began taking on special assignments for the Vatican. When he earned his degree in 1953 he was asked to stay and work full time.

The young priest went through the Vatican's two-year diplomatic school, then was dispatched to Bolivia in 1955 and to Canada in 1959. In both countries he was secretary in the Vatican Nunciature, which corresponds to first secretary in a U.S. embassy.

The Vatican called him back to Rome in December 1959 for deskwork in the Secretariat of State. He sharpened his Italian enough to be able to translate occasionally for Pope John XXIII.

When Pope Paul took charge Msgr. Marcinkus became the No. 1 English translator and the man who arranged the last five of the pontiff's six trips overseas.

Because of his imposing height, the monsignor took it upon himself to be an unofficial bodyguard. He often shielded the slightly built pontiff from the crush of excited crowds.

A distinct departure from the prosaic run-of-the-mill home. Presenting a residence with a charm and character of its very own. Roughed hand-hewn beams in two-storied living room with mahogany dunnage paneling over used brick fireplace. Formal dining room, separate family room, 3 bedrooms, all good sized, 1½ baths with plumbing all roughed in for third bath. The view is spectacular. Maintenance at a minimum. All in a prime residential area with all conveniences within walking distance.

69,500 EXPLOSION

It shouldn't take an explosion to bring an intelligent investor to recognize the potential value here. However, as our population continues to explode, this fine property should alert such an investor. Located directly across the street from Ross Hospital, this R-3 zoned property consists of approx. 21,000 sq. ft. of valuable ground. One-half of which contains a fine single family residence (easily convertible), & the other half a Von Rotz-built duplex. Let us show you how the rents from these two improvements will enable you to acquire this valuable site. The Hospital, Medical Centers, Convalescent Homes, Apts. & the College are pressing in on this outstanding location. Excellent financing available. Exclusive.

Police Not Attending Workshops?

The major problem facing the police community relations committee of the Marin County Human Rights Commission in 1969 is how to get more police departments interested, according to Bella Aaron, committee chairman.

Mrs. Aaron said several police departments have never attended a meeting, despite repeated invitations.

She said a basic premise of the police community relations program in Marin is that police can help prevent crime.

Those who refuse to recognize that prevention is part of their work are not attending meetings, she said in a review of work during 1968.

Mill Valley and Sausalito police, the sheriff's office and the California Highway Patrol attend regularly and San Anselmo has attended once, she reported.

Corte Madera, Larkspur, San Rafael and Novato have been invited but have not responded, she said. Other departments have not been invited yet.

Mrs. Aaron criticized some police for taking advantage of the current support for law and order. "Police have begun to think each can use as much of whatever is needed," she contended. "They feel absolutely omnipotent."

A discussion of how law enforcement officers can help young people stay out of trouble, begun at the last meeting, will continue as a topic in 1969.

So far, the committee has established a grievance procedure, a firearms policy, a citation procedure, a police community relations division within the sheriff's department, rules for the use of Mace and has expanded community participation in the committee, Mrs. Aaron said.

Health Advisers To Study Report

The Marin County Mental Health Advisory Board will continue its discussion on a citizen's committee report on the proposed county mental health planning project at 8 p.m. Thursday at the Coral Room in Marin General Hospital.

Dr. Clyde G. Miller will make a progress report on overall county mental health programs during the last two months and Dr. Donald P. Wilson on the operation of the mental health center at Marin General Hospital.

The board, which usually meets only once a month, also will meet at 8 p.m. Jan. 30 in Room 400, Marin Civic Center.

DIXIELAND JAZZ SENDOFF

Oscar (Chicken) Henry, who will be 81 in June, blows a farewell note at the New Orleans funeral of clarinetist Gearge Lewis. Several bands took part in the traditional Dixieland funeral for Lewis yesterday, after he died of pneumonia and Hong Kong flu at the age of 68.

MARIN NAMES

Sailors In Welcome At Apollo Landing

Two Marin County sailors were aboard the aircraft carrier USS Yorktown when it served as the primary recovery vessel for the Apollo 8 lunar flight.

Navy Electronics T/3C Robert J. Hansen, son of Mrs. Robert J. Hansen of 350 Oak Manor Drive, Fairfax, was aboard the carrier for special duty to work on the telephone call between President Lyndon B. Johnson and astronauts William Anders, Frank Borman and James Lovell.

Navy Fireman/4C Kenneth Kondratieff, son of Mrs. Anna Mae Kondratieff of Spring Avenue, Lagunitas, is serving in the oil and water laboratory aboard the carrier.

SERVING — Navy Lt. (j.g.) Michael L. Williams, son of Mrs. Irene Williams of 909 Blithedale Avenue, Mill Valley, is a combat pilot and the communications officer with Attack Squadron 164 aboard the aircraft carrier USS Hancock in the Gulf of Tonkin.

DONOR — Alfred R. Rodriguez of 47 Driftwood Court, San Rafael, has received a plaque from Irwin Memorial Blood Bank of the San Francisco Medical Society for donating blood 45 times. Rodriguez is a Bank of America assistant teller.

ASSIGNED — Army Capt. Michael G. Ball, son of Wilbur G. Ball of 196 Lucas Park Drive, San Rafael, has been assigned to the 74th Reconnaissance Airplane Co. near Phu Loi, Vietnam.

AWARD — Lloyd H. Sisson of 344 Woodland Avenue, San Rafael, received a plaque from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for donating blood 43 times. Sisson is welder-mechanic with the Marin County Fire Department.

HOME LEAVE — Airman Machinist Mate Thomas Anderson, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter J. Anderson of San Anselmo, was home on leave for the Christmas holidays. He is attached to the Pacific Missile Range Facility, Hawaii.

DONOR — Frank H. Conrad of Sausalito received a plaque from the Irwin Memorial Blood Bank for donating blood 85 times. Conrad is a civilian engineer at Hamilton Air Force Base, Novato.

PROMOTED — George C. Howie, 23, son of Wallace N. Howie of 4579 Paradise Dirve, Tiburon, has been promoted to Army specialist five in Vietnam, where he is serving as an avionics technician with the 121st Assault Helicopter Co. He is a graduate of Tamalpais High School.

IN VIETNAM — Robert L. Montgomery, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Murrel Montgomery of 132 The Alameda, San Anselmo, was promoted to Army specialist four in Vietnam while assigned as a personnel management specialist at the 93rd Military Police Battalion headquarters. He attended Sir Francis Drake High School.

ENLISTED — Steven P. Accomazzo, 18, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Accomazzo of 11 Birch Way, San Rafael, is in recruit training at the U.S. Naval Training Center, San Diego.

PROMOTED Thomas R. Brickman, 20, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd F. Brickman of 1495 Casa Buena Drive, Corte Madera, was promoted to Army specialist five while serving as a computer chief for the Third Armored Division in Germany.

ENLISTED — Paul C. Martin, 18, son of Mrs. Gwendolynn Martin of 169 Deepstone Drive, San Rafael, is in recruit training at the U.S. Naval Training Center, San Diego.

FEARS, HOPES—Congressional decision to create a Redwoods National Park of part of the old timber similar to the Avenue of the Giants scene above has worried Eureka area lumbering interests—and the loggers face loss of jobs, precarious at best. Two hopes for the future are Eureka's fishing industry (albeit menaced by hungry Russian trawlers) and the pulp mill in background (right photo). (AP Wirephotos)

REDWOODS, INDUSTRY THE KEYS

Eureka's Fortunes Shaky

EUREKA (AP)—The visitor's nostrils recoil at the foul chemical smell spewing from the towering stacks of the two big wood pulp mills across Humboldt Bay.

A Eureka businessman steps into the street, sniffs the breeze coming in from the Pacific Ocean outside the bay and smiles: "That odor you smell isn't odor. It's money."

There is money in Eureka this holiday season. Perhaps not a lot, but more than last year. Enough for a few more toys under the Christmas tree; a bottle of better wine on the holiday table; maybe a new car, or a $62.50 trip in a chartered jet down to Sacramento to watch the Humboldt State Lumberjacks play in the Camellia Bowl.

FEWER JOBLESS

Not so many lumber and mill men will be filing down to the unemployment office on K Street to pick up their state checks this winter, or waiting for the welfare payment to arrive in the mail.

What about next Christmas? Or Christmas five years hence?

That industry is lumbering, the giant coast redwoods which grow only along a narrow fog and rain belt on California's northern coast and a tip of neighboring Oregon.

Leaf through the Yellow Pages of the telephone book. There are 24 logging companies, 21 listed under logging equipment and supplies, and 29 lumber manufacturers.

LOPSIDED ECONOMY

These firms, and others directly dependent on them, account for an estimated 80 per cent of the North Coast economy.

The lumber business is good this year. The mill hands are on 10-hour shifts six days a week. But when business is bad, the lines lengthen at the unemployment office.

In general, times have been rough during the 1960s.

The mills were busy in the post-World War II days, particularly with a boom in lumbering of heavy stands of Douglas fir in Humboldt County. Hundreds of sawmills sprang up, cashed in and then gradually were swallowed up by the giant firms.

Prices plummeted in the late 1950s and early 60s as home construction leveled off and some big markets, such as the Los Angeles region, became overbuilt.

ON WAY UP?

"We feel we've hit bottom and are on the way up," said Mike Johnston, publisher of the Eureka Times-Standard. "We're building on a solid base now."

Eureka's population was 28,137 in 1960. A rough estimate now is about 30,000. Humboldt County has 106,000 residents, only a thousand or so more than in 1960.

But there's a new courthouse, city hall and the Times-Standard is moving into a new $2 million plant.

Some of the smaller downtown stores have gone under. One reason was the poor retail market last year. Another is the influx of chain stores in residential area shopping centers.

HIGHWAYS, PARKS

Nearby highway and bridge construction is expected to keep the unemployment rate —which often runs to 15 per cent in winter— down this coming year.

But the biggest question mark in the future is the effect of the new Redwood National Park —a subject of years-long emotional dispute in Humboldt County and its sparsely populated neighbor to the north, Del Norte County.

A sticker on the Eureka Chamber of Commerce door reads: "Don't PARK my job —Support the Sensible Redwood Park and Recreation Plan."

LOGGERS STUNNED

After years of telltale signs, lumber company executives became resigned to the fact of a national park. They were stunned this fall, however, when Congress created a park of 58,000 acres of prime "old growth" redwood, including about 30,000 acres of company lands. The rest is existing state parkland.

"That hit the companies much harder than they expected," said one timber firm official, who asked not to be identified. "If it wasn't for Vietnam, we'd be dead."

What he meant was: except for war expenses, Congress might have voted more money for a larger park and taken even more land.

Worst hit was Arcata Redwood Co., which hires about 350 men out of the more than 8,000 directly employed by the lumber industry in Humboldt County. About 70 per cent of the firm's potential timber volume was taken. ARCO officials say they are quitting, phasing their operations out over a period of 10 years or less.

Sone park proponents contend ARCO had planned to liquidade in the near future anyway. It is a subsidary of a giant publishing firm headquartered near San Francisco.

Officials of the other major firms involved decline to say how their operations will be affected or how many jobs may be cut, if any.

TOURIST BOOM?

Meanwhile, park proponents from the outside forecast an almost immediate tourist boom which — they contend — will far offsets any loss to the economy through logging cutbacks.

Eurekans, even those in the tourist trade, are skeptical and cautious.

Stanton Elliott, owner of seven restaurants in the region, sees a gradual increase. But it will come only as the park is developed and roads are improved.

"It will take some considerable time even to survey what they've got," Elliott said.

"Like all of us up here, I have some mixed feelings. In order to survive, the food service industry is very dependent on the local economy. We really don't know yet the effect from the standpoint of lost jobs in the lumber industry."

He adds, "I feel perhaps there will be a business upsurge. I don't really know why. But we must be close to the point of being attractive to industries other than lumber."

Diversification is the semi-magic word here, just as it is in other one-industry towns across the nation.

"We've been trying to diversify," said Sero Maffia, vice president of the Bank of America in Eureka. "But it never seems to come."

"It's nearly 300 miles from the nearest major metropolitan center — San Francisco, Portland, Ore., is 440 miles away, Seattle 600 and Los Angeles 720.

'EVEN THE BIRDS'

Most Eureka residents you talk to just can't fathom the need for an expanded park. Nearly 30,000 acres of the best trees already were preserved in the state parks, they say.

"Hell, you walk back into those trees and there's nothing to see," said a barber who runs a two-chair shop next door to the Greyhound depot. "Even the birds don't go back there."

Down on the bayfront, a knot of commercial fishermen considered the issue for a moment, and agreed, "There doesn't seem to be much point in it."

RUSS TRAWLERS

Their big concern is the fishing being done by modern, sophisticated Russian trawlers off the California and Oregon coasts, traditional grounds of the Eureka - based commercial fleet.

Dean Randall was fitting fresh redwood rails on the bow of his 52-foot boat, "Azalea." Randall is better off than most of the Eureka fishermen. His boat, which he values at $45,000, is paid for. He and his two-man crew split expenses and profits.

"It's been a good year," said Randall, a husky man with graying hair. "It takes a lot of money to get into business and stay in business." In all he said, his 22 years at sea "has worked out pretty good for me."

IGNORE LIMIT

But he said the Russians "are going to run us out of business" if they continue to sweep the nearby coast area of fish. The Russians ignore the conservation practices Randall and his weathered colleagues must obey. The foreign boats aren't supposed to fish within the 12-mile limit, but do, he adds.

"The Fish and Game Department talks conservation, which is fine if those Russian bastards weren't out there taking the goodies," Randall said bitterly.

"It seems like the federal government is doing nothing about it. The government has sold us down the river."

Over Randall's shoulder, a freighter took aboard redwood lumber. Across the bay, on the narrow Samoa Peninsula, the Georgia-Pacific and Crown Simson mills churned and boiled wood chips into pulp that will be shipped abroad or to paper finishing plants in this country.

In a Eureka motel room, the wrapper on a roll of toilet tissue reads: "Georgia-Pacific industrial tissue division. Franklin Park, Ill., Portland, Ore."

Eureka officials hope that someday such products will say, "Manufactured in Eureka, Calif."

Establishment of the pulp mills in the mid-1960s was a start toward putting the logging industry on a more stable and permanent basis, they say. Their work force of several hundred is year around, levelling off the employment graphs.

NEW DAM

Now, Congress has authorized construction of the $37.5 million Butler Valley Dam 35 miles upstream from Eureka on the Mad River.

This will provide the millions of gallons of fresh water needed to allow planned expansion of the pulp plants. It will take eight years to complete the dam providing appropriation of construction money isn't delayed.

Donald Falk, a prominent local attorney, and publisher Johnston hope the next step will be location of finishing plants in Eureka — paper, cardboard cartons and the like.

These byproduct operations can use the smaller second generation redwoods that have grown since the logging began a century ago, while the best cut lumber comes only from the dimishing supply of "old growth" trees.

END IN SIGHT

Economists and forestry experts say the old growth lumber will last only another 15 years or so, at present cutting rates — the park notwithstanding.

The transition to an industry based on younger and smaller timber is no longer in the distant future," said a recent study by the Pacific Northwest Forest and Range Experiment Station in Portland.

Where will production and employment level off during the next 15 or 20 years?

"Today's tree-farming practices assure a permanent supply of raw material," a Redwood Association official told a legislative hearing recently.

But the same committee was told by a Georgia-Pacific executive, "Any significant government acquisition of our timberlands (for a park) would certainly destroy our sustained yield program."

Meanwhile, a new generation of Eurekans is gradually emerging into positions of influence in the community—seeking new economic goals for their region and less dependence on the big timber companies.

As one professional man expressed it: "The question is not whether they are raping the landscape, but are they committed to a permanent operation? Or will they come in for 20 or 30 years, cut all the trees and leave? That is the burning question."

And as Christmas approaches, the big lumber trucks rumble down Fifth Street on their way to the mills, where the saws are cutting on overtime. Business is good—this year.

Congress Spotlights Two New Englanders

By UNITED PRESS INTERNATIONAL

Two men from Massachusetts who represent different points of view within the same political party were the focus of attention as the 91st Congress convened, each striving to lead a divided Democratic majority in the separate houses in which they sit.

Sen. Edward M. Kennedy, 36, of the eastern liberal wing, successfully challenged Sen. Russell B. Long of Louisiana, a powerful member of the conservative Senate establishment, for the post of assistant Democratic leader in the upper chamber. The vote was 31 to 26.

Rep. John McCormick, 77, three-time speaker of the House, and a conservative whom young Democratic liberals say provides "uninspired" leadership, easily beat back a challenge from Rep. Morris K. Udall of Arizona, 178 to 58.

Behind The News

Around The World; Around The Clock:

BEIRUT — Numerous violations of a cease-fire agreement between Israeli and Jordanian troops were reported during the week and in Cairo the semi-official newspaper Al Ahram predicted another full-scale war in the Mideast before the end of the year.

SAIGON — As Vietnam fighting continued, the Viet Cong guerrillas freed three American prisoners after representatives of the Viet Cong met American officers in an isolated truce zone 59 miles northwest of Saigon.

PARIS — Hope faded for getting the expanded Vietnam War talks underway before President Johnson leaves office after negotiators for the United States and North Vietnam failed to agree on the issue that has been keeping the South Vietnamese and Viet Cong from taking part — the shape of the conference table.

Demos' Senate Majority Trimmed

By CARL P. LEUBSDORF

WASHINGTON (AP) — Republicans gained a net total of five Senate seats in the 1968 election, leaving Democrats with a 58-42 majority that is their smallest in 10 years.

During the second Eisenhower administration, Democrats held a bare two-seat majority, before a 15-seat pickup in 1958 gave them 64 senators. Republicans have not controlled the Senate since the first two years of the Eisenhower administration, 1953-55, when they held a 48-46 edge.

But this year's GOP gains put Republicans in position to make an all-out drive to win Senate control in 1970, when 26 Democrats and just seven Republicans are up for re-election.

Republicans won seven seats from the Democrats this year, but Democrats gained two which had been held by Republicans.

These were in Iowa, where Democratic Gov. Harold E. Hughes defeated David H. Stanley for the seat of retiring GOP Sen. Bourke B. Hickenlooper, and in California, where Democrat Alan B. Cranston defeated Max Rafferty, who had unseated Sen. Thomas H. Kuchel in a hotly fought GOP primary.

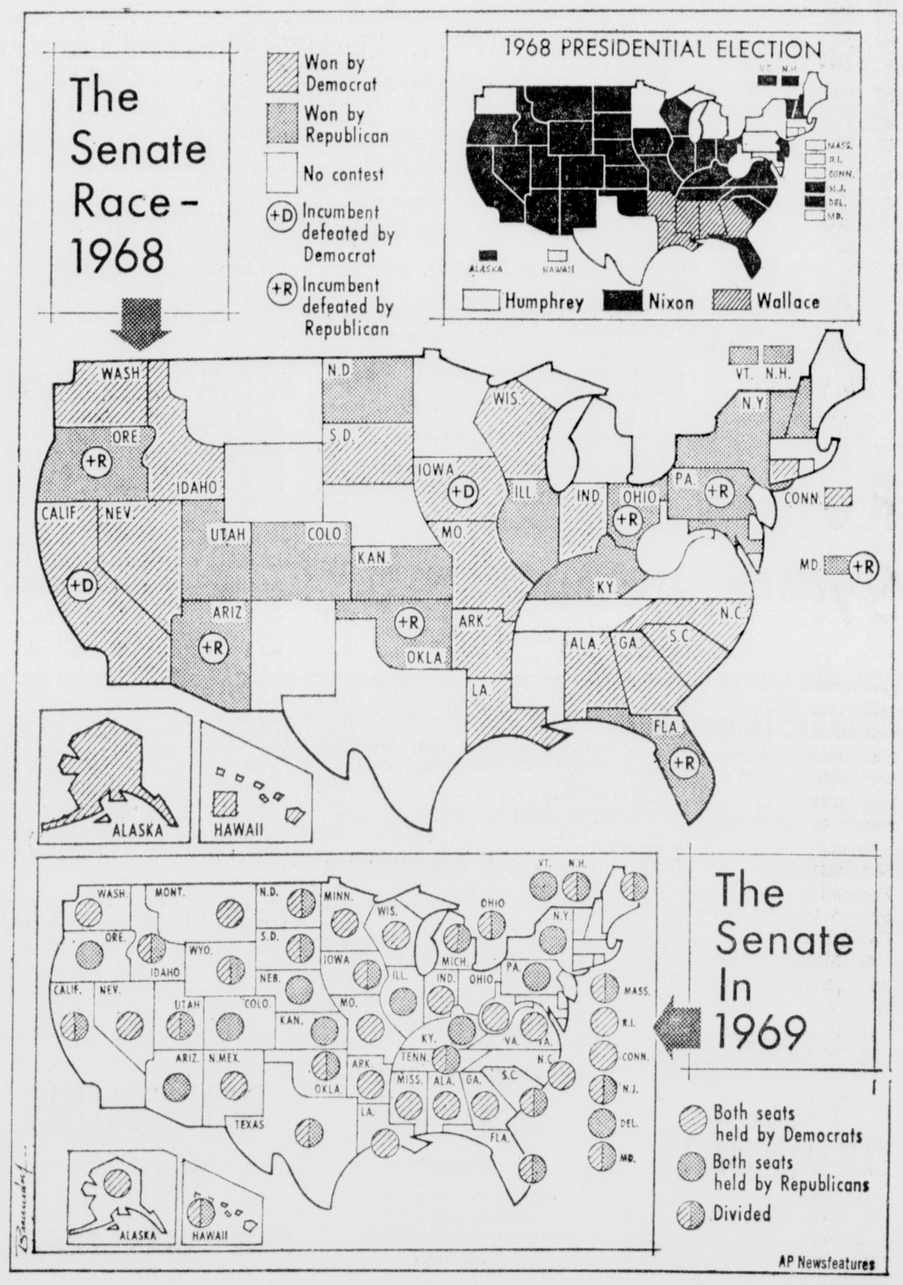
In Florida, Rep. Edward Gurney defeated former Gov. Leroy Collins for the seat of retiring Democrat George A. Smathers. In Ohio, Republican Atty. Gen. William Saxbe defeated former Rep. John J. Gilligan, who had unseated Sen. Frank Lausche in last May's Democratic primary. In Arizona, former Sen. Barry Goldwater won the seat of retiring Sen. Carl Hayden by defeating Roy Elson, Hayden's longtime assistant.

The following Democratic senators were re-elected: J. W. Fulbright of Arkansas, Abraham A. Ribicoff of Connecticut, Herman E. Talmadge of Georgia, Daniel K. Inouye of Hawaii, Frank Church of Idaho, Birch E. Bayh of Indiana, Russell B. Long of Louisiana, Alan Bible of Nevada, Sam J. Ervin Jr. of North Carolina, Ernest Hollings of South Carolina, George S. McGovern of South Dakota, Warren G. Magnuson of Washington and Gaylord Nelson of Wisconsin.

Republican senators re-elected were Peter H. Dominick of Colorado, Everett M. Dirksen of Illinois, Norris Cotton of New Hampshire, Jacob K. Javits of New York, Milton R. Young of North Dakota, Wallace F. Bennett of Utah and George D. Aiken of Vermont.

New senators elected to fill seats previously held by their parties, included Democrats Mike Gravel of Alaska and Thomas Eagleton of Missouri, and Republicans Robert Dole of Kansas and Marlow Cook of Kentucky.



Things Are Looking Up For Marin Prep Cagers

The New Year seems to have agreed with Marin County Athletic League basketball teams as they came out even in six forays against non-league competition last night — an improvement over 1968 results.

Redwood and Novato high schools further bolstered their already fat records, Redwood sweeping aside El Camino of South San Francisco, 71-44 in Larkspur and Novato handing Napa a 51-41 loss.

Tamalpais of Mill Valley was a surprise winner, coming from behind to dump Vallejo, 51-46, at Vallejo.

On the losing side, San Rafael gave once-beaten Montgomery a struggle before bowing, 81-69, at San Rafael. The College of Marin frosh drubbed cold Drake, 59-41, at San Anselmo, and Healdsburg waltzed by San Marin, 92-51, in Novato.

Thirteen Redwood players hit the scoreboard in the easy win over El Camino as the Giants picked up a 38-21 halftime lead and were never headed. Jerry Piro and Roger Smith were high with 11 points apiece as the Giants upped their won-lost record to 9-3.

The Hornets, now 10-4, led by only 39-36 at the end of three periods but a final quarter advantage of 12-5 put it away. Napa's top, player Kirk Schultz, was checked with a two-point output.

Tamalpais struggled for three quarters with a dismal 28-point showing, trailing by 10 points before blasting Vallejo, 21-8, in the final period to pull the game out. The win was the Indians' second against eight losses.

Ken Gommeringer and Dave Larsen led the way with 14 points each and Ron Smith added 11 points.

San Rafael, now 4-6, stayed close almost all the way, leading 31-27 at one point against Montgomery, but hot shooting by Vikings Tom Fitchie and a

Allen Wants New Terms From Rams

LOS ANGELES (AP) — George Allen's wife says he has been offered his job back—that of head coach of the Los Angeles Rams. But she says he won't accept unless he gets a new contract.

"George is one of the world's great coaches," Etty Allen said yesterday. "He is now between jobs because the Rams wanted it that way. To get one of the world's greatest coaches, they should make an appropriate offer."

Allen, fired Dec. 26 by club president Dan Reeves because of what Reeves called a personality conflict, has been unavailable for comment on the firing since a Dec. 27 news conference. Reeves also has remained mum.

The Associated Press learned last night that no decision would be made by Allen or the Rams before early next week.

Etty said her husband had been offered his old job back on New Year's Day. But she said no decision had been made, especially in light of offers Allen has received from other teams.

The Buffalo Bills of the American Football League said soon after the firing they were interested in Allen. Mrs. Allen said a National Football League team is also interested, but declined to name the team.

"His decision will not be made on the size of the offer," she said. "But on other things. He does have to give some thought to the future—not for himself but because he has a wife and four children."

DOWN TO THE SEA IN MOTORCYCLES

Four of the 250 motorcycle riders who started in Wednesday's "Hare Scrambles" race sponsored by the Marin Motorcycle Association at China Camp east of San Rafael churned down a hill and into one of the course's many puddles.

(Independent-Journal photos by Jim Kean)

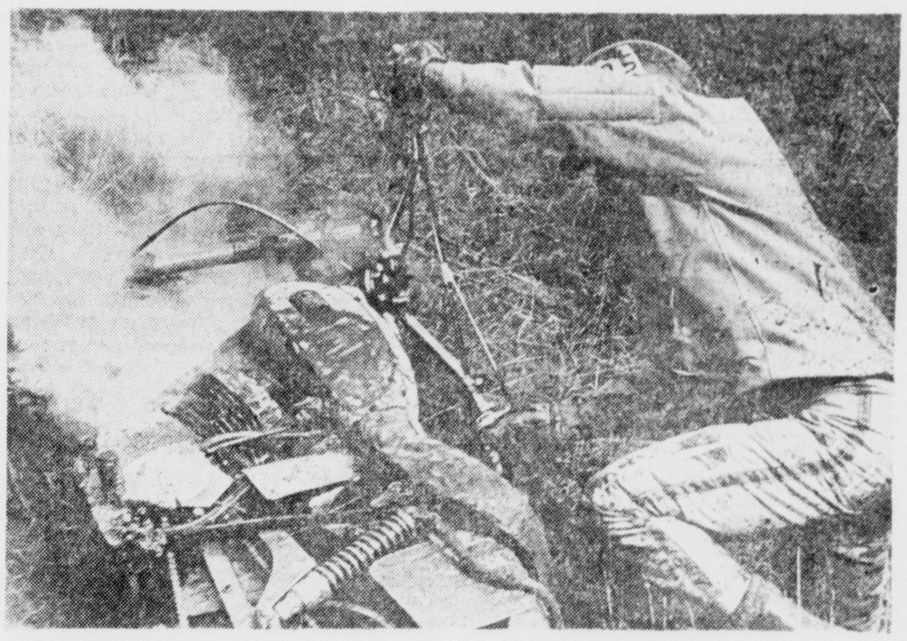
UP PERISCOPE — A rider eyes the dim view ahead as he hits a deep puddle coming down an incline. Dick Mann of Richmond won the harrowing race with 11 laps.



STEAMING BISCUITS—The motorcycle of Bill "Biscuits" Verbiscio of San Rafael steams after landing in a ditch. "Biscuits" failed to make a muddy rut in the course of the Hare Scrambles, but got up to finish third in the race.

HOT AND COLD MARIN TARS OPEN LEAGUE

College of Marin's up-and-down, mostly down, basketball team opens Camino Norte Conference play tonight when the Tars travel to Cupertino to take on a good DeAnza Junior College team at 8 o'clock.

The Tars, topped by the scoring of guard Andre Horn and forward Pat Schafer, bring a 4-8 won-lost record into the contest. Host DeAnza is 8-5.

Pre-season favorite Contra Costra has the best non-league record among Camino Norte teams with an 11-3 mark.

AUCKLAND, New Zealand (AP) — Bob Charles of New Zealand, former British Open champ, put together final rounds of 69 and 63 to win the New Zealand Master's golf tournament by 10 strokes today.

Return To The One-Platoon System Pondered By NCAA

LOS ANGELES (AP) — Worried over rising costs of intercollegiate football which override increased attendance, the National Collegiate Athletic Association today studies countermeasures which could include a return to the one-platoon game.

Chairman John Waldorf and Secretary David Nelson of the Football Rules Committee were invited to meet with the NCAA Council to discuss the situation.

On Monday, when the 63rd annual convention of the NCAA officially opens, a round table discussion takes a look at "the rising costs of intercollegiate athletics."

Any return to one-platoon remains the perogative of the Rules Committee which meets later this month in Palm Springs, but the convention also has power.

It could virtually issue a mandate through limiting the size of squads or the number of grants-in-aid.

Many football coaches have violently opposed a change in the present two-platoon system with different teams for offense and defense and some are sure to be heard.

Walter Byers, executive director of the NCAA, told newsmen, "The NCAA Council has expressed concern on the costs." He pointed out the monetary problem was not one of declining receipts with the 1968 attendance of 27,025,000, an increase of 2.25 per cent.

It seemed possible there could be a resolution on the question at Monday's round table discussion which would be put before the general meeting on Wednesday.

NCAA President Marcus L. Plant of Michigan told newsmen he felt a commission system may be a solution to the continuing amateur sports controversy between the Amateur Athletic Union and the various federations, the latter backed by the NCAA.

He pointed out that at Mexico City during the Olympics, the United States Gymnastics Federation and the AAU signed an agreement for a National Gymnastics Commission.

A majority vote controls and if a tie vote results, Arthur Gander of Switzerland, head of the International Gymnastics Federation, will suggest a solution.

Plant, however, said the knotty problem of conciliating differences between the U.S. Track and Field Federation and the AAU continues.

"It seems to us that the gymnastics commission set up a pattern which could be used in working out differences in other sports," the NCAA president said.

Blues Keep Magic Spell Over Seals

OAKLAND (AP) — The St. Louis Blues, runaway leaders in the National Hockey League's West Division, clipped the Oakland Seals, 3-1, last night before a crowd of 6,695 to keep alive the most one-sided series in the league.

Paced by goalie Glenn Hall's fine performance, the Blues picked up their fourth straight win this season over Oakland and remained undefeated in 14 games over a season and a half of play against the Seals.

Doug Harvey and Frank St. Marseille put the Blues ahead in the first period and they were never headed.

Oakland closed the gap when Jerry Ehman rammed in a rebound at 3:49 of the second period. St. Louis defenseman Ray Fortin scored his first goal in NHL play to put the game out of reach.

FINAL FOOTBALL POLL

No Doubt, Buckeyes No. 1

By ASSOCIATED PRESS

Ohio State's potent young Buckeyes, firmly entrenched atop the college football world after their Rose Bowl triumph over Southern California, looked forward today to a year . . . or possibly two . . . of continued dominance.

The Buckeyes, named national champions by a wide margin yesterday in the final Associated Press poll of sports writers and sportscasters, will return all but four of the 22 starters who paved the way to a 10-0 finish capped by a 27-16 conquest of then No. 2 Southern Cal.

Thirteen of the 22, including quarterback Rex Kern, are sophomores, making the future brighter than ever for Coach Woody Hayes.

"We've got kids capable of making the big play," Hayes said in Pasadena yesterday before sending the Buckeyes back home to Columbus, Ohio, and then heading for Vietnam, where he'll show Rose Bowl films to the troops.

Ohio State, which last won the national championship 15 years ago, received 44 of the 49 first place votes cast in the final AP ballot. The Buckeyes got 968 points, to 782 for runner-up Penn State, the only other unbeaten, untied major team.

The 11-0 Nittany Lions, who edged Kansas 15-14 in the Orange Bowl New Year's night, moved up from the No. 3 spot they held in the next-to-last poll, conducted at the close of the regular season. Texas, 9-1-1 after trouncing Tennessee 36-13 in the Cotton Bowl, nailed the third spot, with Southern California, 9-1-1, falling to fourth.

The final Top 20, with first place vote in parentheses, season records including bowl games, and total points. (Points awarded for first 15 picks on basis of 20-18-16-14-12-10-9-8-7-6-5-4-3-2-1):

1. Ohio State (44)	10-0	968

MINI-OLYMPICS TONIGHT

Assault On World Marks

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—The "Mini Olympic" All-American Games, first of 31 indoor track and field meets this winter, kick off the 1969 season at the Cow Palace tonight at 7:30 with world records possible in a number of events.

"I wouldn't be the least bit surprised to see several world records set in this meet," observed Payton Jordan of Stanford, the man who led America's men's track and field team to victory at the 1968 Olympic Games in Mexico City.

"Most of the boys are still in peak form," added Jordan, "so world records are a distinct possibility in the pole vault, 60-yard dash, 60-yard hurdles and several of the other short races."

Bob Beamon, the man who leaped a fantastic 29-2½ at Mexico City to improve the world long jump record by almost two feet, heads a field of 30 Olympians, 10 of them gold medal winners, in the All-American.

Beamon has set 30 feet as his goal this year and said he could just as easily do it indoors as out, "provided the conditions are perfect."

There are any number of observers who rate his 29-2½ as the single greatest achievement in the history of track and field and who agree almost as emphatically that the record will stand longer than any other mark on the books.

Beamon disagrees.

"I'll get to 30 feet," he said. "Maybe I won't do it at the Cow Palace but I'm sure I'll do it one of these days."

While Beamon's mark stands out like a beam of light on a dark night, he has to share laurels in this meet with Bob Seagren, who holds the world outdoor pole vault mark at 17-9, Lee Evans, the world's top man at 400 meters who plans to move up to the middle distances this year, hurdler Dave Hemery of Great Britain and high jumper Dick Fosbury.

All will be in action tonight in a meet which may not be matched anywhere on the indoor circuit this season as to the number of Olympic stars entered.

Because track and field now has become an around the year sport, few of any of tonight's contestants will be competing much below their best form.

About the only exception will be Gerry Lindgren, the gritty little long distance runner who failed to win an Olympic berth and has been resting since last September's Olympic Trials at South Lake Tahoe. Lindgren ran in the Trials with stomach problems created by an ulcer and a sore achilles tendon. He begins his "comeback" tonight in the two-mile run.

The pole vault field, headed by Seagren, includes six men who have cleared 17 feet. Seagren holds the indoor mark at 17-4¼.

The 60-yard dash is strictly an indoor event and with such as Charlie Greene, John Carlos and Ronnie Ray Smith, all Olympic medalists, in the field Greene's world record 5.9 could be in danger of falling.

Willie Davenport, who won the high hurdles gold medal at Mexico City, tops a crack field in the 60-highs. He holds the world records of 5.4 for 45 yards and 5.9 for 50. His chief competition should come from Hemery, who startled Olympics fans with a world record 48.1 victory in the 400 meter intermediate hurdles.

Carlos, who ran 200 meters in the pending world record time of 19.7 at the U. S. Trials and finished third in the Olympics, also will run in the 300 meter dash. Mike Larrabee, the 1964 400 meter gold medalist, also is in the field.

Evans, who won two Olympic gold medals, will go in the 440-yard dash; Fosbury, who won at Mexico City with a jump of 7-4¼, resumes his rivalry with Ed Caruthers (Mexico silver medalist) in the high jump, and Bill Toomey, Olympic decathlon champ, will compete in the 440 and long jump.

RAMS

"I'm not a coach, I'm just a wife and mother. George will decide as a football coach what to do," she said.

"But how," she asked, "can they possibly expect him to go back under the same old contract conditions? In any arrangement between two human beings, the most important things to consider are their intentions. I think anyone can see the same old contract doesn't protect him enough."

By firing Allen, she said, "They certainly have left him in doubt as to their future intentions."

At his Dec. 27 news conference, Allen was flanked by many Ram stars. Some said they would retire if Allen didn't come back. Others said they would ask to be traded to the team that hires Allen.

"The firing ... hasn't changed his feelings for the players," Etty said. "That love affair is still on, and those are the players he wants to lead to a championship ..."

As for the other offers, Mrs. Allen said only that her husband's decision wouldn't be based solely on monetary considerations. She said she believes Allen wants to coach the Rams.

"He still wants to come back. That's what he wants most," she said.

Allen built a losing NFL team into a winner (8-6) in his first season in Los Angeles. The next year, 1967, the Rams were 11-1-2 and won the Coastal Division title. Last season, Los Angeles lost its last two ball games and wound up 10-3-1.

NFL PLAYOFF BOWL

Stunned Cowboys Seek Solace Against Vikings

MIAMI (AP) — Lee Roy Jordan says he has to prove something to himself. He says the Dallas Cowboys have to prove something to themselves.

Jordan, a 225-pound linebacker for the Cowboys, figures tomorrow against the Minnesota Vikings in the National Football League's playoff game is as good a time as any to find some answers. (The game will be nationally televised by CBS at 10:30 a.m., PST.)

The 27-year-old Jordan, in his sixth year of professional football, admits he still is a little numb from losing the Eastern Conference title playoff to Cleveland two weeks ago.

"We've got to win this one (the Playoff Bowl) to prove to ourselves and other people we have what it takes to come back."

CAN'T WAIT

Jordan has heard that the Cowboys can't win the big ones. He says Dallas has to start its comeback now. "We can't wait until next season. That's too far away."

Dallas won the NFL's Capitol Division with a 12-2 record. The Cowboys were favored to beat Cleveland but lost 31-20.

"It took quite a while," said Jordan, "for me to get over it. It was hard to live with. I was moody, didn't want to talk to anybody or see anyone. I didn't want to entertain in my home."

Jordan said that finally he decided there was nothing he could do about it, so he went out and played some golf. "My golf was so terrible that I forgot about football," he said.

The 6-foot-1 linebacker, who played for Alabama before turning pro, expects the Cowboys to win big before an expected 50,000 fans at the Orange Bowl.

"It really boils down to pride," he said.

Minnesota Coach Bud Grant has said that his Central Division champions—they lost the Western title to Baltimore—also are in good spirits and he expects them to play a fine game. Minnesota and Dallas met earlier in the season, with the Cowboys winning a hard-fought game 20-7.

Sonoma State Cage Squad Wins, 108-96

Sonoma State College's basketball team proved to be an unkind host last night, dumping visiting Southern Oregon of Ashland, Ore., 108-96, at Rancho Cotate High School in Rohnert Park.

Six-foot nine-inch center John Thornton, averaging 13 points going into last night's game, exploded for 37 points. Sonoma State, now 4-3, plays Southern Oregon again tonight at 8 o'clock.

MARIN COUNTY BOWLING NOTES

Happy Holiday For The Distaffers

By RALPH CHATOIAN

Christmas and New Year's holidays must bring out the best in women bowlers.

Big scores over the holidays came from Penny Conti and Sylvia Knutson at Country Club Bowl in San Rafael, and Anne Gildersleeve at Nave Lanes near Ignacio.

Penny rolled a 616 three-game series in the Hi-Lo's League, a 587 in the Toppers, and a 570 in the TGIF League, and Sylvia, treasurer of the Marin County Woman's Bowling Association, blasted out a 610 in the Mixed Travel League. Penny's 616 consisted of 194, 214 and 208 games. Sylvia's series was topped by a 238.

Anne had best score at Nave Lanes both in line and series. She banged out a 267 game and went on to a 614 series in the Novato Unified Bowlers League. Those scores even beat out the men at Nave Lanes.

THIS AND THAT — High scores from Country Club came from Jim Simmons, 675; Rich Curry, 667; Tom Amiral, 657; Steve Pieser, 647, and Bill Raudio, 640. (That 675 by Simmons was paced by a 265 and Curry's 667 had a 259 on top of it.) ... Lou Pfaff opened the eyes of the bowlers in the Nite Owls League at Country Club when he rolled a 276 game and 630 series ... Don Vattuone rolled a 111 triplicate in the Boozers League (now that's a league name for you) ... Marg Nelson, 132 average, rolled a 205-528 in the Striking Trios at Nave Lanes ... Agnes Johnson led the Women's Scratch League at Nave Lanes with a 234 game and 568 series ... Barbara Denay, 125 avg., rolled a 205 in the Novato Unified Bowlers, first time over the 200 mark.

PICKIN' 'EM UP — While Sylvia Knutson was rolling that 238 in the Mixed Travel at Country Club, Larry Asay rolled a 247 to help the Al Villa Builders team to an 819 team game ... Sam Ferry led scores in the Hawaiian League at Nave Lanes, 612 ... Helene Frederick almost had a 156 triplicate in the Classy Lassie League at Nave Lanes but fell four pins short in the final game ... In the Merry Mixers at Country Club, George Wigner picked up the 6-7-10 split on his way to a 226 game and Al Giambra converted the 4-7-10 leave ... That 31-game winning streak by Bert's and Johnnie's Auto Wrecking team in the Hi-Lo's League at Country Club was wrecked by the Office Kitchen bowlers ... The 1969 Woman's International Bowling Congress national tournament is scheduled for April 3 through May 25 in San Diego. Entry deadline is Jan. 24. For information, call either Marin association secretary Marilyn Epidendio or treasurer Sylvia Knutson.

Fitchie pumped in 27 points and Steve Tiedeman added 21 points and 16 rebounds.

San Rafael missed 26 of 49 free-throw attempts. The Bulldogs got a 24-point splurge from Bill Sleezer and 21 points from junior guard Bruce Nave, who hit on 16 of 19 free throw tries.

San Marin ace Gary Howard poured in 21 points but the first-year club from Novato couldn't cope with Healdsburg, falling behind 44-25 at the half.

Drake failed to get a player in the double-figure column as the Pirates managed only 13 points in the first half, trailing 35-13. Dave Alvarado was high for the losers with nine points.

Nate Sparks Warriors Past Boston

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — The return of towering Nate Thurmond from the injury list has turned the San Francisco Warriors into National Basketball Association contenders again.

Thurmond sparked a powerful second half rally that gave the Warriors a 104-102 victory over the world champion Boston Celtics last night at the Cow Palace.

The win was iced by a three-point play — a free throw and a field goal — both by Thurmond, with 52 seconds to play.

Boston's playing coach, Bill Russell, made it close by hitting a basket with 14 seconds left, but San Francisco stalled it out and made an additional point on a free throw by Al Attles.

Stanford '5' Loses Debut In New Gym

STANFORD (AP) — Brigham Young spoiled the opening of Stanford's new $3.5 million Roscoe B. Maples Pavilion last night by handing the Indians a 95-39 basketball defeat.

Stanford jumped to an early 16-6 lead, but BYU used its height advantage to control the boards from that point and grab a 48-45 lead at the half.

Kari Liimo, a forward, scored 14 points in the first half to lead the Cougar first half surge. Marty Lithgoe, with 20 points, 12 in the second half, led BYU scorers.

Stanford Mal McElwain kept the Indians in contention with 20 points.

Stanford's two Negro players, co-captain Don Griffin and Bill Barber, who had threatened to boycott the game because of alleged racial policy of the Mormon church wich operates BYU, both played. Griffin scored 19 points while Barber had six.

Prices Are Royal, Too, For Nixon's 'Coronation'

THE INAUGURATION OF an American president is, unhappily, beginning to assume dimensions of pageantry comparable to the coronation of an European monarch.

The Nixon inaugural will begin with an "inaugural all-American gala" one week from next Thursday. This is described as "an evening of entertainment by stage and television stars." It will be held at the National Guard Armory in Washington.

If you are invited, you can get a peanut gallery ticket for as little as $25. If you want a box seat, you must take the entire 10-seat box for $1,000.

Curiously, the address of the "1969 Inaugural Committee" to which you must mail your reservation order and check is "The Pension Building, Washington, D.C. 20025."

THE DAY FOLLOWING the gala, the "inaugural concert" is to be held at Constitution Hall in the nation's capital.

It is to be hoped that there is no omen in the circumstance which finds the least expensive ticket to the concert selling for only a fifth the price of the cheapest ticket to the stage and TV gala. You can get into the inaugural concert for as little as $5. Better seats cost $7.50, $10, $25 or $35. If you want a box, you must take five seats for a total of $500.

One might therefore deduce that the prestige of sitting in a box at the concert is the equal of sitting in a box at the gala.

But sitting in the peanut gallery or "cloth coat" section of the concert would seem far lower in prestige than a similar seat at the gala.

ON INAUGURATION DAY, two weeks from today, you can get a bleacher seat to watch the inaugural parade for $4 to $25. The latter is the price of a box seat and you don't have to buy an entire box just to get one seat.

Whether you pay $4, $5, $8, $12 or $18 for a bleacher seat to watch the parade depends, not on how well you can see the parade from your seat, but on how close your seat is to the White House.

Whether the $4 tickets are even in the corporate limits of Washington is not specified.

To repeat, any and all of the foregoing tickets must be ordered from the same address, the Pension Building.

(If the connection between inaugural pageantry and pensions escapes you, welcome to the club.)

WHERE DO YOU FIND a hotel room in Washington during the inaugural period? You guessed it. You write to the Inaugural Housing Committee, 1632 K Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20025.

How do you get to Washington?

Easiest way would be to fly on the "Inaugural Charter Flight" arranged by the 1969 California Inaugural Committee.

It will leave San Francisco International Airport at 1 p.m. Jan. 17 — in time to get to Washington to attend the Inaugural Gala. The charter will return Jan. 22, allowing you a day to rest after the four-day orgy of pageantry.

The charter flight will provide, of course, "first class service throughout," at $180 per person, round trip, including taxes.

The check for the flight goes to the California Inaugural Committee in San Francisco and must be in by Monday.

IF YOU DECIDE TO GO and expect that the first class service on the charter will "spoil" you into wanting first class for everything — gala, concert and parade — you can do it for only about $400 plus hotel and meals, if you don't take the wife.

If you scrimped, you could take your wife and the whole tab, including hotel and meals, might be scarcely more than $1,000.

Wonder what the founding fathers who thought they were doing away with the trappings of royalty would think of that?

Cure Worse Than Disease?

The Bay Area Air Pollution Control District Board next Wednesday will consider imposing a ban on backyard burning as a means toward reducing smog.

Wonder if the board members have considered the possiblity that the air pollution created by exhaust fumes from cars and trucks making all those extra trips to dumps with the refuse that could not be burned would create more air pollution than the backyard burning?

Bouquets And No Brickbat

The biggest of BOUQUETS to Col. Frank A. Borman, Capt. James A. Lovell Jr., Lt. Col. Van A. Anders, and all the many others who made possible their breath-taking, fantastic and successful flight around the moon and back to earth.

BOUQUETS to all those Marinites who welcomed the New Year sensibly rather than adding to the perils of highways by celebrating too liquidly and then getting behind the steering wheels of automobiles.

We swore off brickbats for one week as a New Year's resolution.

Garbage Pickups Skipped Nobody

On Saturday, Dec. 28, your newspaper printed a photo and news story which caused ill will towards Marin Sanitary Service. Although you did not mention the company by name, the area mentioned was serviced by Marin Sanitary Service.

Obviously you failed to read the front page ad in your own newspaper Saturday, Dec. 21, which clearly stated that Monday's garbage would be picked up on Sunday, Tuesdays on Monday, and Wednesday's on Tuesday, so that no one customer's service would be "postponed." Never in the history of Marin Sanitary Service, has anyone's garbage been "postponed" for any reason. If a miss occurs, it is picked up the following day.

I hope that next year, you will send a reporter and photographer to report and photograph the 18,000 accounts that we service, so that they may report to you the 18,000 eyesores we face the week after Christmas. Even though no one was missed, I'm sure it will be a site to remember.

I am very proud of my service and I am equally proud of the men who gave up their Sundays with their families so that "holiday hazards" and "eye sores" would be cleaned up as best as it would be humanly possible.

LINES ON LIVING

By Rabbi HAIM KEMELMAN

Three courageous men blazed the longest path ever taken by human beings. They broke the shackles of earth's gravitational pull and set out gliding on a voyage to the stars.

And on that silent night, Dec. 24, human voices began emerging from the dark side of the moon, laconically informing earthbound creatures: "We got it; we've got it; Apollo 8 now in lunar orbit." And as they beamed their first television pictures from the realm of mystery and dream, we in our living rooms became witnesses anew to the miracle called man.

It was all so breath-taking and wonderous and glorious: human voices emitting sounds in bottomless space, a quarter-million miles deep; human hands navigating their tile neighbors to respond in spaceship in the void of other worlds; human eyes scanning the surface of another planet unaided by telescope; earth's people invading heaven's confines, celestial terrain.

TO SAY THAT this is testimony to man's virility of strength and endurance is an understatement. It testifies, above all, to his indomitable spirit and faith.

That the Columbuses of humanity, bestirred by charts and maps, have navigated to newer and wider shores of promise in the oceans of water, air and space, is no small miracle. But the greater miracle is their human stamina and fortitude to be guided and sustained by dreams that were first merely an opinion of faith, only to persist and prevail long enough to realization and triumph. The greater wonder is man's ability to see visions and look at things, not as they are, but as they ought to be.

Our ascent to the moon, therefore, proves more than the mere fact that we are master technicians, builders and scientists. It proves, more than anything else, that we are dreamers and believers. All that man thinks and believes and dreams is real and true, if he sets his mind long enough to prayer, to work and to perseverance, so as to witness realization.

THE FACT that man's thoughts turn to God, that he craves for immortality, that he dreams dreams and sees visions — isn't all this sufficient reason for a claim on divine prospects and superhuman qualities?

We know God is: our thoughts and visions of Him prove it. But we also know that God is with us and favors us — our good earth with its living and hospitable conditions prove it. From the heights of 200,000 space miles, our world looks puny at the edge of a stupendous universe. Yet, from atop Apollo's nose cone in the valleys of moon's shadow, the real heaven and dreamlike paradise is this earth. Moon's beauty is a myth of earthlings, an optical illusion of poets.

To the eyes of the first men who gazed upon the lunar expanse, it all seemed so plainly bleak and uninviting and colorless, with "a very whitish gray, like dirty beach sand with lots of footprints on it." Certainly no human footprints.

Navigating through the airless and waterless desolation of lunar's eerie silence, the three courageous men came out from the moon's shadow wiser men. Their longing urge to go back home to earth, was a sobering experience to all humanity, a reminder that the only oasis of life, of green and growth, of water, wind and color, is here on earth (as far as we know).

To us the living, it is still the best of all possible worlds, if we learn to live in it together as friendly and cooperative co-pilots that are bound together in a common voyage in an eternal ocean of time and space.

Israel, Fighting For Life, Can Be Forgiven Excesses

(Marquis Childs is on vacation.)

WASHINGTON — All this breast-beating condemnation of Israel by "world opinion" for the Israelis' reprisal attack upon the airport in Lebanon needs some cool re-examination and some factual perspective.

It is true that Israel's action, in retaliation for a terrorist Arab assault upon an Israeli aircraft in Athens in which an Israeli lost his life, was unwise and excessive — if judged in isolation. Lebanon has been a moderate force within the Arab bloc and has thus far joined only by words in the "holy war" being conducted against Israel by more vehement — and Communist-oriented — states such as Nasser's Egypt.

Still, this business cannot be understood out of its whole context. When all the facts, and not just some of them, are seen without prejudice, Israel comes off incomparably better than it is coming off in the excited indictments now being flung about inside and outside the United Nations.

FIRST OF ALL, Israel's commandos at any rate took the greatest care in Lebanon to take no man's life. But the essential points are vastly deeper. Here is a nation dug out of the hard, arid earth that for all its life has been tirelessly menaced by extremist Arabs from every side.

Week after week, month after month, year after year the Israelis have been drenched by the poisonous hatred of Cairo Radio. Eternally threatened, they have lived in a stockade state, much as did the American pioneers. Endlessly attacked along their frontiers, they have responded with a courage and an elan rarely seen in contemporary times.

Explicitly and repeatedly told by Arabs that they are going to be destroyed by Arabs, it is perhaps not too surprising that after two decades it is growing difficult for them to see that "big picture" which statesmen far from the scene are pleased to paint for them.

Is it very surprising, then, that finally they react with undue violence, considering the further point that never once have they been granted elementary justice by a U. N. presently headed by the openly prejudiced Secretary General U Thant?

THE SIMPLE, historic reality is that the Israelis have never stood a chance in the U.N., where the Russians and their tinpot and sometimes crypto-Communist allies, among the African and Asian states have used this tough and tiny western outpost as a kind of badminton shuttlecock in the cold war.

But there is an even more fundamental truth, and it is this: It is no longer liberally chic to be pro-Israel, where once it was too liberally chic altogether. Twenty years ago "elite" American opinion sentimentalized Israel out of all reason. Today, "elite" American opinion can hardly find anything good about the Israelis.

It would require a book fully to explore this turnabout; this columnist's opinion is that Israel has fallen out of grace not because of its considerable faults but rather because of its old-fashioned virtues.

For the Israelis oddly cling to certain outmoded concepts which in a shorthand way are more conservative than otherwise, to wit:

THEY DO NOT happily embrace any and all "revolutions," such as Col. Abdel Gamal Nasser's exported "revolutions" in places like Yemen. They feel no shame in being patriots. They love their country; they will unhesitatingly fight for it. And they will not be talked out of their right — and duty — of self-defense.

They do not accept the new isolationism, the new peacenikism, of the New Left now so popular in quarters here and abroad. Having been told several thousand times that pro-Communist Arabs intend the literal destruction of their way of life, they have come to believe it.

It's Easier To Get To Moon —You Don't Need To Buy Ticket

WASHINGTON — Although it doesn't seem to be much of a problem to get a man from the earth to the moon, it's still almost impossible to develop a fast train from New York to Washington. While some probes have been made by unmanned pullmans, rail-space officials said it was still too dangerous to send men to Washington in one of the new craft.

The head of the rail-space program, Werner von Penncentral, said that despite setbacks he felt the United States could get man from New York to Washington in three hours, by 1972.

"WHAT'S BEEN holding up the program?" I asked him.

"Train travel is a journey into the unknown. There are so many things that we have to know before we can put men on rails."

"What are some of te hazards to rail-space travel?"

"The first of course is the lift-off. In order to get a man from New York to Washington he must have a ticket. So far we have not perfected the ticket system that would make it possible for a manned trip."

"YOU MEAN the ticket problem is holding up the race in the capital?"

Werner von Penncentral said indignantly, "If Borman, Lovell and Anders had to buy tickets for their moon shot at Penn Station they wouldn't have made it either."

"What other hazards are you faced with?"

"We still don't know what effects a fast train ride will have on the human body. Of course we've put dogs and chimpanzees on trains, and they've given us some medical data.

"But as far as man is concerned, we'd only be guessing. We don't know for example what happens to the human body when it goes through Trenton or Philadelphia, not to mention Wilmington, Del. And then there is the Baltimore Belt. Can man live in the tunnels that run under Baltimore at 200 miles an hour? These are photographs of the New York to Washington road bed, taken by Borman from the moon. Notice the craters and pits. We have to know more about them before we risk a human life on a trip."

"I ADMIT that you must be cautious," I said. "But isn't the rail-space program being criticized for the slow progress that is being made in rail travel?"

"When you're dealing with something as new as passenger trains, you have to expect disappointments. We've had engine trouble, capsule setbacks, lavatory failures. But we're learning all the time. The research gained from the rail-space program will no only benefit transportation but mankind as well."

"What would speed up the program?"

"The only thing that would speed up the program is if the Soviets announced that they were going to build a railroad from New York to Washington. Then Congress would allot us the money for a crash program. There is no pressure to do anything in this country unless we think the Soviets are going to do it first."

"SOME PEOPLE say we're spending too much money on our rail-space program. What is your answer to that?"

"It's true that there has been this criticism, particularly since many people say there is no life in Washington.

"But we must consider the New York to Washington run the first step in a giant exploration. Who knows but someday man will go to Richmond or Atlanta on a fast train? So we can't say that just because we're not going to get much out of going to Washington from New York that we're wasting our money."

"YOU THINK if man ever finds a way of sending a fast train from New York to the nation's capital he will open a whole new world?"

"I'll go farther than than. I predict that we may not see it, but your children and my children will someday be able to travel as far away as Miami on a train with the same ease and comfort that it now takes man to go to the moon."

Today is Saturday, Jan. 4, the fourth day of 1968 with 361 to follow.

The moon is between its full phase and last quarter. The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter. The evening stars are Venus and Saturn.

On this day in history:

In 1885 Dr. William Grant of Davenport, Iowa, performed the first appendectomy. The patient made a complete recovery.

In 1937 about 10,000 Italian troops landed in Spain to bolster nationalist forces in the Spanish Civil War.

In 1948 Burma became an independent nation.

In 1967 Donald Campbell died when his jet-powered speedboat exploded.

How Stayman Convention Aids After An Opening Two No-Trump

In an expert game, a response of two clubs to partner's opening bid of one no-trump is the Stayman Convention, asking partner to show a major suit of four or more cards if he can. You can make the same kind of bid if your partner opens with two no-trump. You bid three clubs to prove for a fit in a major suit.

SPADE SUIT

In today's hand North's response of three clubs is the Stayman Convention, and South obediently shows his four-card spade suit. North raises to four spades, and South must subside. North already knows about South's 22 to 24 points, but South doesn't know about North's hand. If there is any chance for a slam, the first move must come from North.

As it happens, North has no interest in a slam. In fact, North would not bet the family jewels that his side can make even a game.

West opens the seven of diamonds, and East wins with the ace. East fires back the queen of diamonds, and South must show what kind of head he has on his shoulders.

KEY PLAY

A chuckleheaded South will play the king of diamonds on East's queen. West ruffs, and South must eventually lose two more diamond tricks. Down one.

If South is level-headed, he plays a low diamond at the second trick. If the five missing diamonds happen to break 3-2, South can lose the first three tricks but will make the rest. The real danger lies in a 4-1 diamond break.

SITUATION CLEAR

After South has ducked the second diamond, West's discard makes the situation clear. If East continues with a low diamond, South can play low; and if East leads the jack of diamonds, South can cover with the king. Either way the defenders can take only three diamond tricks, and South easily wins the rest.

DAILY QUESTION

Partner opens with two no-trump (22 to 24 points), and the next player passes.

You hold:

♠ 8 5 2
♥ Q 10 6 3

♣ Q 10 8 7 3

What do you say?

ANSWER: Bid three clubs, the Stayman Convention.

If partner bids three hearts, you will raise to four hearts; if he bids anything else, you will bid three no-trump.

See Page M2

WITH THE WIND in his hair, but warmly garbed against the brisk sea air, Mike Shea is happiest at the tiller of his Lively Lady, whether on a pleasure or practice sail, or engaged in racing competition with the best available challengers.

THE LIVELY LADY

Bay Area's Winningest Yacht Takes On Eastern Challengers

He's the bay's winningest skipper: Pacific Coast champion in 1962; San Francisco Bay champ in '62, '65, '66 and '68; one-man ocean racing champ for three years, and three-time winner of the bay classic known as th "Midnight Moonlight Marathon" in which some 70 to 80 competitiors enter.

The rest of the time he leads an interesting if less competitive workaday life as a jet captain for American Airlines. And spends as much time as he can with his wife, Nancy, and family of six youngsters, at their home on the water at 77 West Shore, Belvedere.

Now, he's answering one of the great challenges for any skipper.

AS CAPTAIN of the great team of designer, builder, crew and backer, he will enter the Southern Ocean Racing Circuit competition of six lengthy races including the Nassau Governor's Cup in February and March, at St. Petersburg, Fla.

He will enter a design that has won 11 out of 12 races in which it has been entered. It is a design arrived at after lengthy consultation with Gary Mull, Oakland naval architect, and built in Taiwan entirely of mahogany and teak.

She is the Lively Lady, a 30-foot "Cruising Club D" design similar to that known as a "Newport Thirty." She is "strip-planked and edge-glued," with no frames — one of a very few of her construction in the entire world.

HER PLANKS are inch-and-a-half mahogany, her trim is teak. Her small coachhouse cabin is well raked, her deck is flush. She has a nine-and-a-half foot beam and weighs 10,000 pounds, with half of that weight in her lead-keel ballast.

Captain Shea has collected a star-studded crew for the big February-March effort.

First and foremost is his backer — David Allen, Marin County builder and developer, and president of the Belvedere Land Co.

Allen will stand the costs of entering the Lively Lady in the Southern Ocean competitions — a series of races ranging from 85 to 435 miles in distance, and known as "the great American tank test," where all the greatest of the country's designers and yachtsmen bring

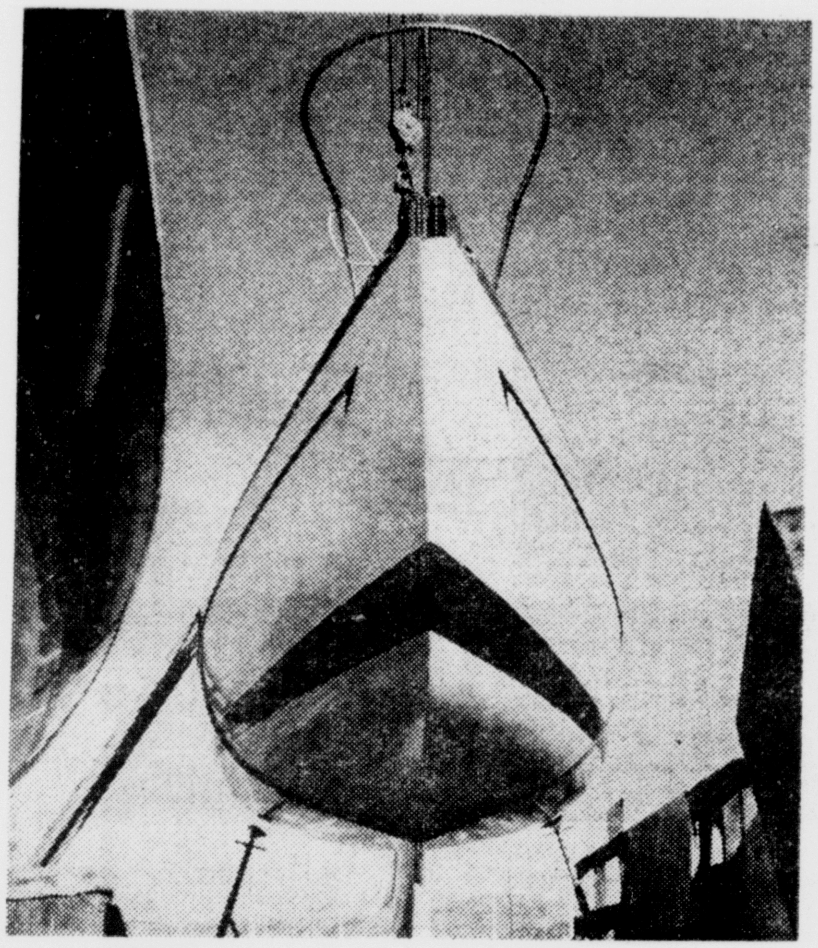
BEFORE DEPARTING for Florida and the upcoming Southern Ocean Racing Circuit season, the Lively Lady underwent a careful check and tune-up in her home port. Backer David Allen, left, who is also a member of the crew, and skipper Mike Shea supervise as Mike Verrier does a job.

WITH WIFE Nancy, Mike Shea relaxes on the deck of their comfortable Belvedere home beside the water upon which he spends so much of his leisure time.



IN DRYDOCK, the size and the lines of the Gary Mull-designed Lively Lady are impressive and pleasing to the eyes.

SNUG IS THE word for the small coachhouse cabin of the Lively Lady, and Capt. Mike Shea sees that things there are kept shipshape.

THE LIVELY LADY is the picture of grace as she glides over smooth waters of San Francisco Bay with skipper and crew relaxing aboard. Things become much busier, however, when the 30-foot boat competes in yachting races as she often does. Skipper Mike Shea has assembled an expert and experienced crew for what looms ahead as the Lively Lady's biggest season of racing.

Mull of Oakland, will be aboard to lend a hand, as will David Allen, Steve Taft, Tom Cooke and Les Brilliant of Belvedere.

Don Felix of San Francisco and Ding Schoonmaker of St. Petersburg, navigator, complete the roster of blue-water sailors.

She was hauled from the water in early December and trucked to St. Petersburg.

Except for some extraordinary troubles in one race that the Lively Lady lost by only seven seconds on corrected time, she would be entering the southern circuit as an unbeaten contender. The loss was in the Hearst Regatta, and in spite of the fact she broke her spinnaker pole, hove to for repairs and limped home on a jury rig, she came in ahead of the pack, only to lose, by those slim seven seconds, on corrected time.

SHEA'S YOUNGSTERS are taking to the water. Two of his five daughters are sailing successfully, as is his 10-year-old son.

Shea learned to fly with the Air Force, having flown B24s out of Africa and Italy in World War II until he was shot down over Yugoslavia. He then walked out in 30 days to freedom.

The design of the Lively Lady is already a proven success. She has been looked-at with interest by Ollin Stevens and Halsey Herreshoff, two of the world's best designers. And an initial 10 boats of the Lively Lady class will be built for sale, as soon as a builder can be decided upon.

So it will be with more than casual interest that the Belvedere, Marin County and Bay Area yachting communities will watch the Southern Ocean Racing Circuit this year, and the performances of Mike Shea of Belvedere, and the San Francisco Yacht Club's Lively Lady and her crew.

A Marin Designer Outside The County

The talents of Marin County designers and decorators often make themselves felt outside the boundaries of our own county.

When the builders of the Villages, a San Jose condominium development, wanted furnished models to impress the public with the potential of their new residences, they turned to Mrs. Johnson, who works out of her Sausalito home, for the decor.

LILLIAN KERSNAR JOHNSON

"What I tried to do," she says, "was to show an eclectic taste.

"I wanted to provide a setting suited to the needs of people with better than average income and education — people who travel and who are independent of fads and current fashions.

"These would be people of good taste, and with the means to satisfy those tastes."

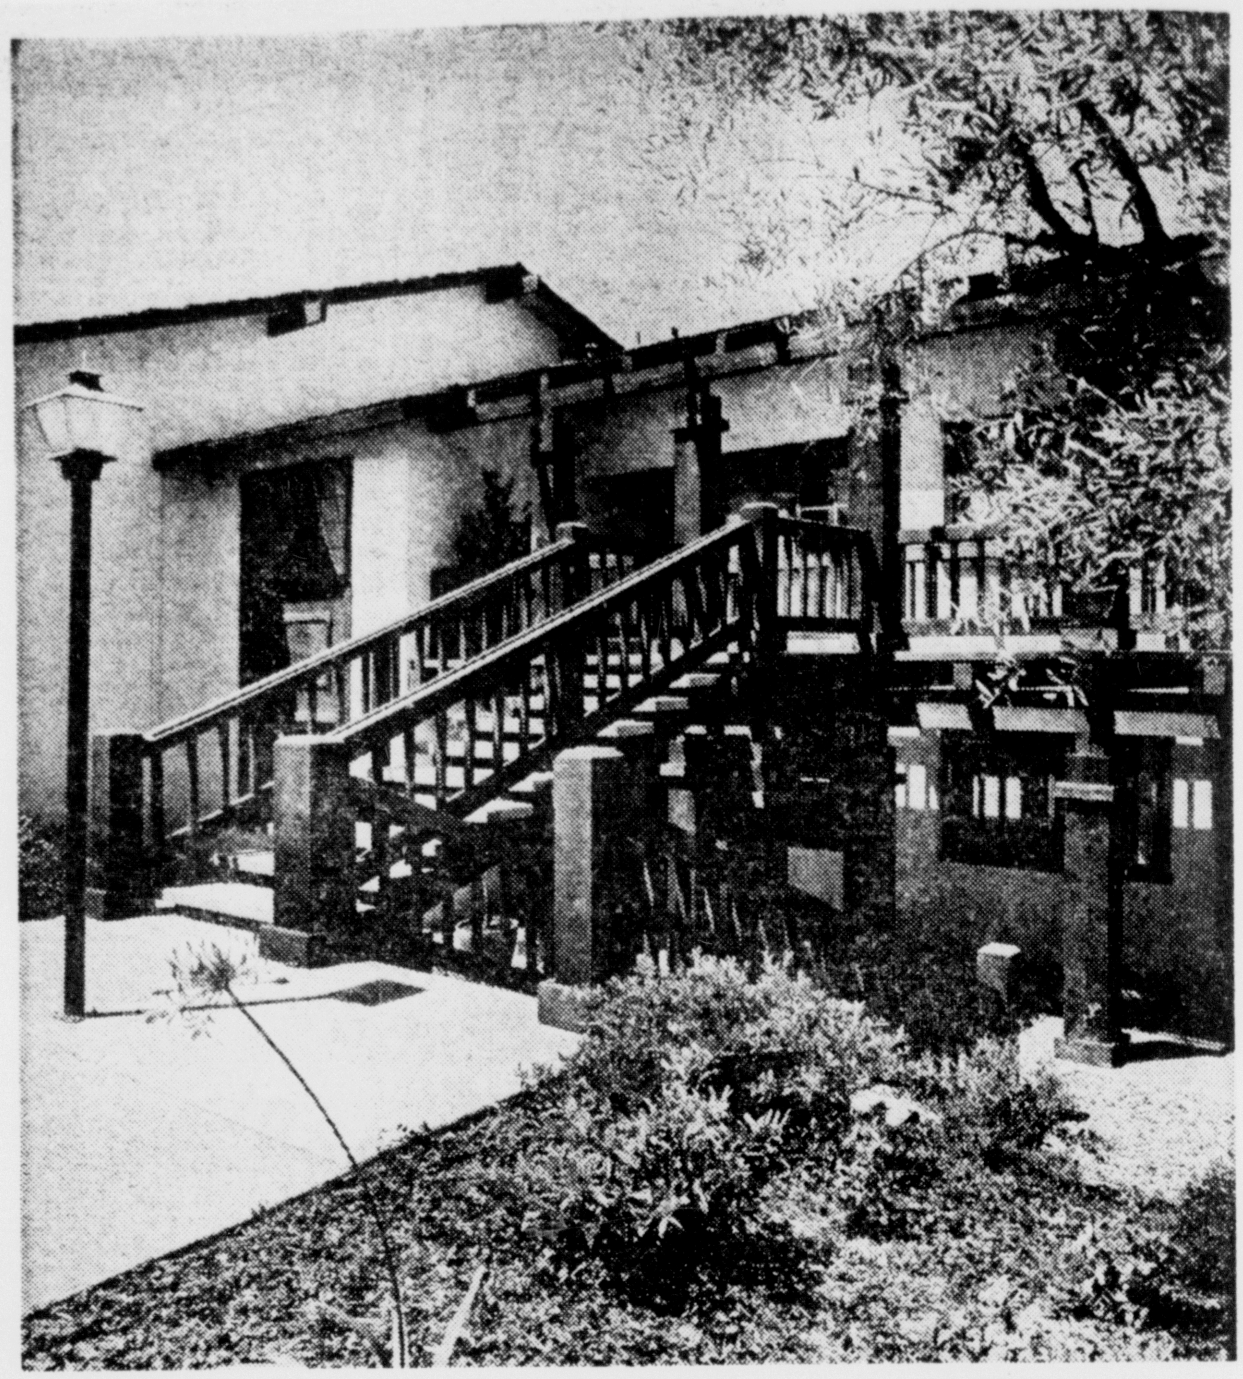
These were the kind of people for whom the Villages had originally been planned by the co-developers, Guy F. Atkinson Co. and Mackay Homes, the designer pointed out.

Mrs. Johnson is a member of the American Institute of Interior Designers and the National Home Fashion League. She has served as design consultant in the furnishing and decoration of many major executive offices and for both large and small private homes and apartments, as well as to the Stanford Research Institute at Palo Alto.

Her background includes liberal arts and fine arts schooling at the University of Arizona, painting instruction from Arizona artists Anita Buckman and Gertrude Ostrander, short periods of study with Frank Lloyd Wright, four years with the Emporium in San Francisco and four years with W. and J. Sloane of San Francisco including one year as manager of its Studio of Interior Design.

For the past 10 years she and her husband, Dale C. Johnson, a technical illustrator and structural designer, have operated their own business in Sausalito, Kersnar-Johnson Design.

She has four children, ages 6 to 29, and four grandchildren, ages 1 to 4, and finds time to teach classes in San Francisco at the YWCA, Galileo High School and San Francisco City College.



THE VILLAGES, constructed as a joint condominium project by Guy F. Atkinson Co. and Mackay Homes, is located in San Jose, but the builders turned to a Marin interior designer, Lillian Kersnar Johnson, for the decor of a model unit to impress the public.

THE PATIO as well as the interior of the model condominium at the Villages received the Lillian Kersnar Johnson treatment. The rattan chairs, bought in natural color and sprayed white, are by John McGuire, the San Francisco designer-manufacturer. Planters are peel (a form of bamboo) and also sprayed white. The redwood table moves on wheels.

THE LIVING area of the model condominium at the Villages in San Jose, as furnished and decorated by Marin interior designer Lillian Kersnar Johnson, features furniture by John McGuire of San Francisco that is rattan with cane sides and in a bone white finish. The couch is hand-embroidered crewel work, done in Spain. The draperies are of sheer linen casement with a burnt orange and gold fringe. Walls and ceilings of the apartment are white. Mrs. Johnson's intent was to design living quarters suited to persons of better than average income with eclectic tastes. Rooms were particularly planned for the effective display of art objects and other collector items which frequent travelers so often acquire. (Photos by Karl H. Riek)

THE DINING AREA features dividers that are black wrought iron equipped with pulls with pressure cups, as well as handsome furniture showing a Mediterranean influence. The table has an oak top and a heavy wrought iron base. Carpeting is Bigelow-Sanford with a very dense pile of off-white New Zealand wool. Designers, Mrs. Johnson says, generally give wool a strong vote of preference over synthetic fiber carpetings.

A BREAKFASTING area in the condominium kitchen is a bright and cheerful spot with its handprinted wallpaper, Bates circular tablecloth with fringe that is machine washable, and Swiss tambour drapes of hand-embroidered bastiste on an inch and a half brass rod. The chairs are imported from Portugal. Wall accessories are small antiques. Dominant colors are burnt orange, gold and off-whites. (Additional photos on Page M8)

THERE WERE two bedrooms in the Villages condominium apartments, one of which Lillian Kersnar Johnson furnished as a den. That room, at right, opens off the living room, but can be shut off by louvered doors. Without bolsters, the couch will sleep one. It is an antique piece purchased in Novato, sprayed black and upholstered in burnt orange velvet. The coffee table is oak. Book and ornament shelves are pilasters of oak with inset brass striping for hanging adjustable shelves. Below, the master bedroom features a bed and case pieces by Stanley with slight Mediterranean overtones. Drapes are a Schumacher antique satin in white with Indian-embroidered crewel border. A Peruvian rug has been used as a wall hanging. Spread is a heavy Wale corduroy in burnt orange with blending fringe. The two lamps are Chinese candlesticks that have been wired and shaded. A Marin Profile — Larkspur's Tall Man

By ROSS DAVIS

When tall-standing, hard-working Neil Rhinehardt Brixon discusses Larkspur's past, present, and future projects, it's difficult to determine whether he's talking from a city councilman's viewpoint or from that of a chamber of commerce official.

It's also difficult for him to distinguish between the two roles, and he readily admits it. "It's because business is still the prime support of the city," said the man who is Larkspur's Chamber of Commerce president and present vice mayor of the city.

HE FRANKLY admits to something else, too — that he has had only eight years of formal education.

"I finished the eighth grade and quit school to go to work to help support my family," he explained. "The experience I gained as a councilman has been a great help to me; it is one of the best educations a person can have."

That Brixon is tall-standing is evident. He's six foot, six inches high. The conclusion that he is hard-working, however, comes not only from his list of municipal and civic efforts, but from testimony by his working cohorts as well.

ASKED IF Brixon could be described as a conscientious civic worker, Neil Schultz Jr., chamber vice-president, declared: "He works overtime at it, I'd say." Schultz termed Brixon "very dedicated."

From the city's standpoint, Mayor Alfred J. Malvino described Brixon as "very, very active in county politics as well as civic affairs in Marin County."

Brixon, 47, was born in Hawley, Minn., moved to Greenbrae in 1949, and began work in Marin as a driver for Greyhound Bus Co. In 1952, he resigned to devote full-time to the business of rug-cleaning. He is owner of the Elite Rug Cleaners at 975 Magnolia Avenue, Larkspur, and a partner in Service Masters, a national concern dealing in furniture, carpet-cleaning and fire insurance work.

APPOINTED TO the Larkspur City Council Sept. 7, 1960, to fill out the term of H. H. (Steve) Wheeler, who resigned to move to Southern California, Brixon was re-elected to the council April 10, 1962. On April 21, 1964, he was named mayor, then was re-named to that post May 5, 1965.

His election as president of the chamber came on Dec. 12, 1967. In addition, Brixon has been chairman of the Marin Council of Mayors and Councilmen since Sept. 28, 1966, is an alternate councilman for the Local Agency Formation Commission, and is chairman of the advisory board of the Corte Madera Flood Control Project, Zone 9.

He said his biggest concerns, both as chamber official and councilman, have been the tax problem and the wants of the city.

"WE NEED a well-balanced commercial industry income to balance with the needs of city government so as not to put an unreasonable tax load on the homeowners," he said. "This is one thing that has to be done carefully. It's what we've been working on for eight years — to bring the right type of income in."

He said prize gains for Larkspur are businesses or industries that are called "no-load" concerns which cost the city little in fire and police protection and other attentions, but contribute handily to the tax rolls.

Other projects he's interested in, he said, are the proposed construction of a bridge over Corte Madera Creek to link Greenbrae with Greenbrae Marina and the Redwood High School area, and the construction of new city offices and a library building.

HE SAID the bridge would connect South Eliseo Drive with Riviera Circle by crossing Corte Madera Creek. It would give a safer and more direct route for many Redwood High School students, he pointed out, and would bring people to the Bon Air Shopping Center.

The bridge, he said, would be similar to but longer than the Bon Air Bridge, and is estimated to cost about $500,000.

Brixon declared he is expecting a goodly expansion of the Bon Air Shopping Center, and that its growth may provide the revenue for construction of the bridge and also help lower the city's tax rate through the center's own tax contributions.

RELOCATION OF city offices and the library is still a major project facing the council, he said, as is the continued development of Piper Park.

Biggest change in Larkspur since he arrived 27 years ago has been the growth in number of apartment buildings, declared Brixon. He termed the increase over the past 10 years as "fantastic," and said it appears the growth will continue.

"Because of its centralized location, Larkspur is a natural for people working in San Francisco or the East Bay but wanting to live in Marin," he said.

BRIXON, WHO in 1957 was on a committee studying the feasibility of a merger of Larkspur and Corte Madera, said the proposal is far from dead.

"My feeling on that is that if this were to be properly handled at some future time, it should be put up to a vote by the people and not resolved by the councils, themselves," he said.

The investigation faded away mainly because of lack of enthusiasm, he recalled.

Brixon, who resides at 30 Velardo, Greenbrae, with his wife, Velma Jean, and their two children, Bradley Warden, 12, and Susan Ellen, 8, is also a member of the Larkspur Lions Club, the Fairfax Lodge 556, Free and Accepted Masons, and the San Rafael Methodist Church.

"Why Is Lipstick So Difficult to Remove?"

Lipstick isn't too difficult to remove if you are a trained professional and have the proper equipment. Lipsticks combine waxes, oils, pigments or dyes. These smear on the surface of the fabric. Other lipsticks are in a liquid form and when spilled on a fabric are absorbed. This lipstick may damage a fabric if it is susceptible to the type of thinner used in it.

While some of the lipsticks containing a basic dye are not difficult to cleanse, many lipsticks now contain an eosin type of dye which is most difficult to remove. This is especially true if water or heat is applied to the spot. The eosin type of dye is very fast on practically all fabrics. Therefore, be certain you do not apply water or heat to any lipstick in an attempt to remove it.

By all means, take your lipstick-smeared garment to your professional drycleaner. Tell him what has happened and ask his expert care. You'll be far safer in handling it that way.

A Traveling Troupe Visits The Schools

REHEARSING A segment of the San Francisco Players Guild production, "Katya, the Wonder Girl," are cast members Clifford Dean and Diana Rugh who plays the title role. The Players continue to add new interpretations to their parts as the season progresses to keep the play fresh and lively.

They call themselves the San Francisco Players Guild, but Marin County can also place a substantial claim upon that professional acting company specializing in drama for children.

The troupe, for instance, draws heavily upon Marin talent.

Alice Perry of Sausalito is an actress and company manager, Philip Sheridan of Mill Valley an actor and stage technician, Emile Waldteufel of Mill Valley an actor and stage technician, Charlotte Wax of Sausalito a stage and costume designer, and John Brebner of Sausalito the designer of lighting.

For instance, next weekend, the Players will be presenting two performances of "Katya, the Wonder Girl," next Saturday at 10:30 a.m. and 2 p.m. in the auditorium of San Rafael High School as the second presentation in the 1968-69 Junior Theater of Marin Series.

Those will be but two of 400 performances to be given by the Players of "Katya, the Wonder Girl," during the current season that began in September and will continue into May.

MOST OF THOSE presentations will be in Bay Area schools. A dozen Marin schools are now listed among the 180 schools on the schedule.

While the San Francisco Players Guild is frequently described as "educational theater for children," Helene Oppenheimer, who wrote "Katya" based on an early Rumanian folk tale, points out that the group does not teach children how to perform on the stage. Rather, it seeks to stimulate appreciation and involvement in the theater as well as creative expression in many other areas.

To insure maximum benefits for the students, teachers in the visited schools are provided with related educational booklets.

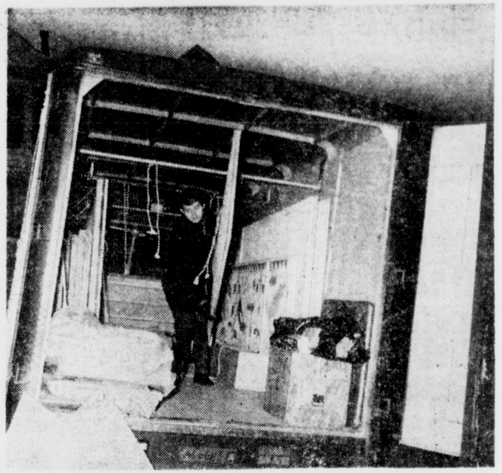
FOR INSTANCE, ONE such booklet offers directions for a folk dance in connection with "Katya" and was written by the choreographer, Mary Gould Quinn.

The school children also receive invitations to visit backstage with the cast, viewing firsthand the crafts and techniques that are required for successful play production.

To date, the Players have performed before nearly four million school children since their organization in 1919 on a non-profit basis.

Its approach of taking theater to the schools has won for the Guild national recognition as a unique method in furthering the learning experiences of children.

THE TRAVELING BUS of the San Francisco Players Guild is a familiar sight at Bay Area schools including those of Marin. In all, it will visit 180 schools this year for 400 performances. Next Saturday it will be at San Rafael High School for two presentations of "Katya, the Wonder Girl" under Junior Theater of Marin auspices.



SCENE FLATS are unloaded by Clifford Dean from the bus in which the cast and all their equipment travel from school to school for performances. Sets are compact and engineered for easy handling.

ACTOR Philip Sheridan of the Players doubles as a stage lighting technician, working with the special lighting designed for "Katya" by John Brebner and Patrick Hickey.

HANDLING TWO parts in "Katya" is Danny Duncan, talented actor, dancer and mime. But he still has time to fulfill backstage duties in the lighting department.

THE ACTORS of the San Francisco Players Guild find themselves called upon to serve as stagehands as well. Clifford Dean moves a stage set into position, while, behind the panel, Emile Waldteufel is adjusting the swivel mechanism that changes the scene.

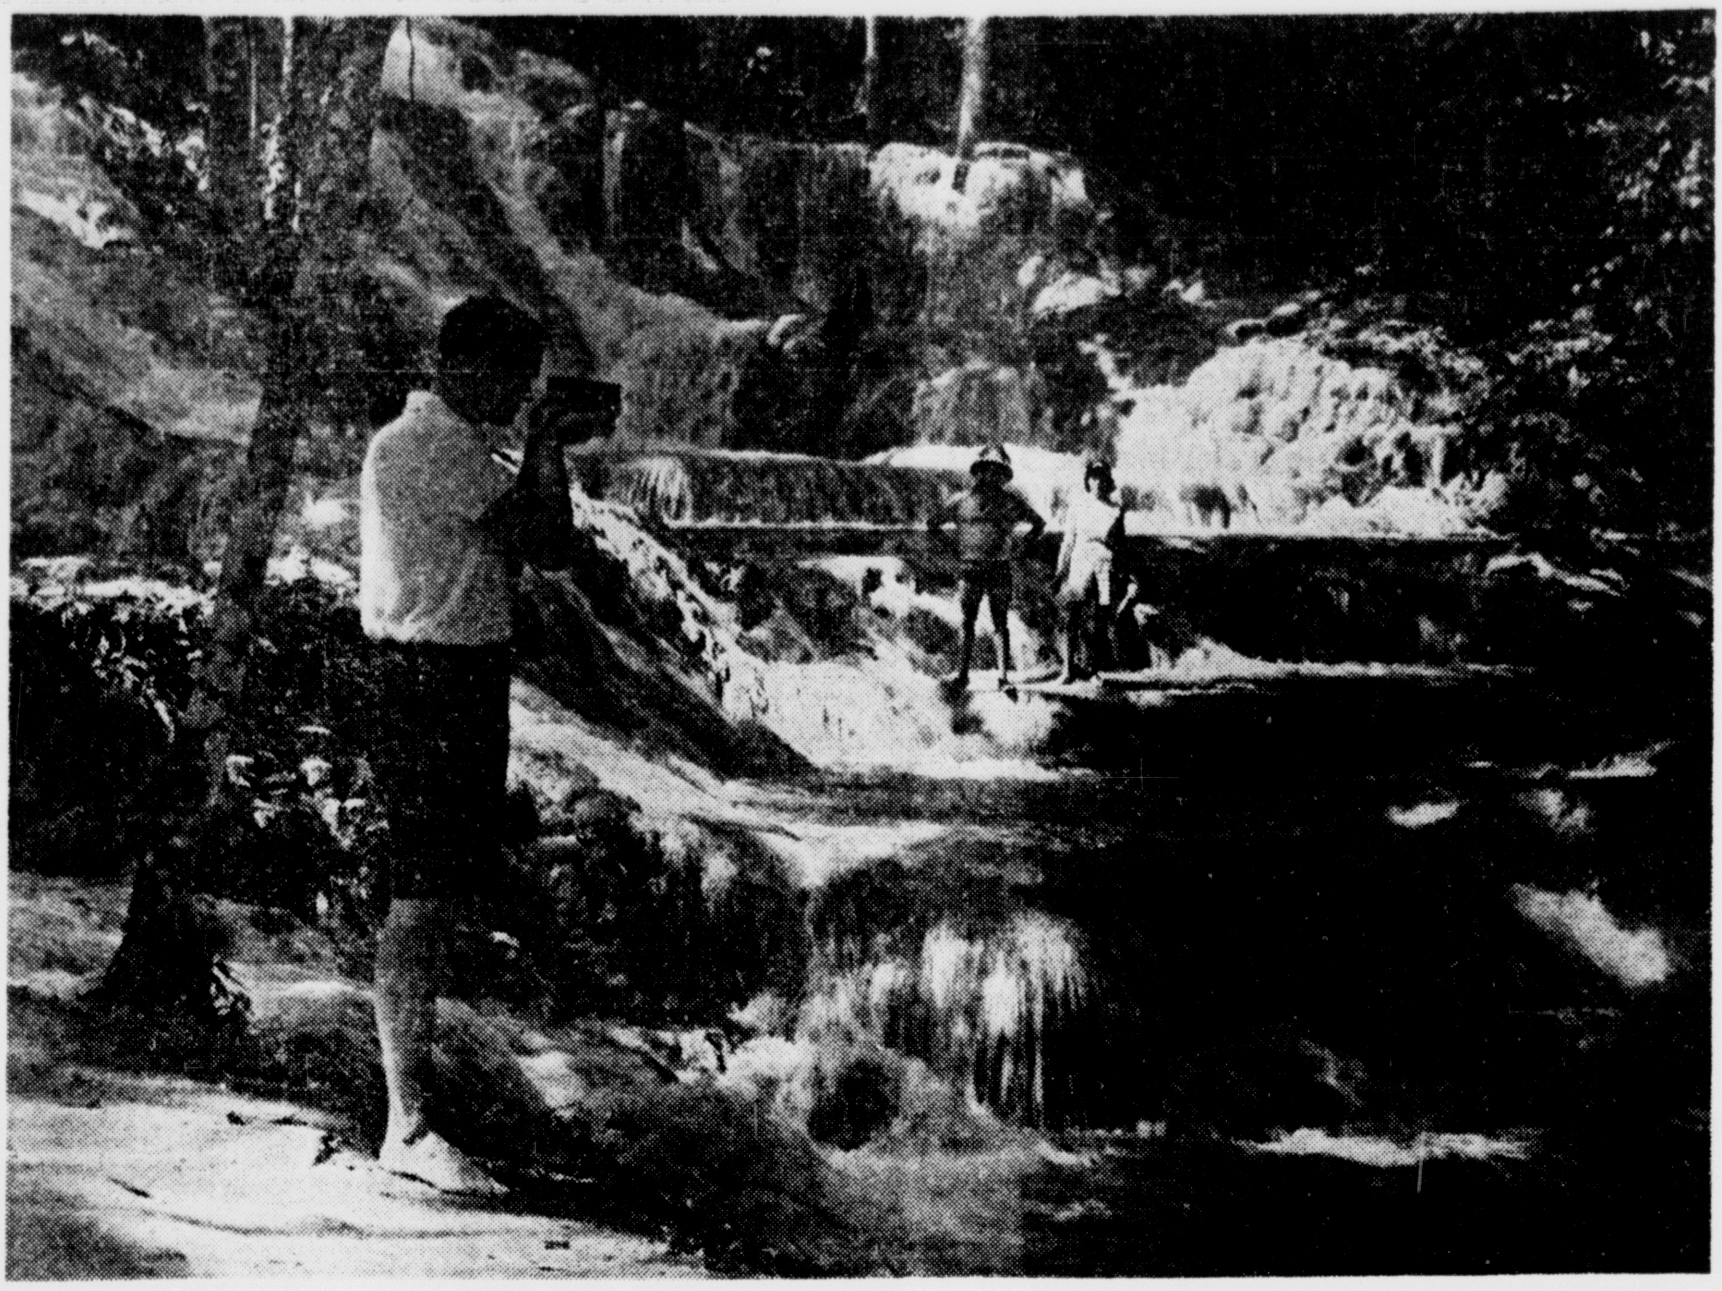
THE CAST OF "Katya, the Wonder Girl" makes up, in preparation for the play. Left to right are Diana Rugh, Alice Perry, Danny Duncan and Philip Sheridan. School children are given the opportunity to visit backstage and observe the pre-performance preparations.

TWO OF THE several Marinites active with the San Francisco Players Guild get their heads together to discuss an educational booklet based upon their current play, "Katya, the Wonder Girl." Boris Lakusta of San Rafael is the Guild president. Martha Eliot of Belvedere has been a director-producer with the Guild for 20 years.



WITH A MOTION picture camera, this traveler makes certain he has recorded for his future enjoyment the grandeur of the scenery at Ocho Rios, Jamaica. The swiftly cascading waters will give him the movement he needs. And he has avoided the "postcard look" by including people in his picture.

Some Steps That Will Help You To Get The Picture

Photographers of all degrees of expertise are discovering a valuable ally in their pursuit of the perfect shot. This ally is their travel agent, who has often been to the places they are going and may have taken some pictures there himself. He can advise the photographer on where to go, and when, to capture the quarry he most desires — on film.

KNOW YOUR camera before you leave home. Don't buy new equipment and take it with you untested. Shoot at least a roll of film at home, and see how it looks when it is developed. This will show you if you are making any errors and save you from returning from your trip with 50 rolls of poorly-exposed or unfocused pictures.

If you find that the pictures taken at home don't turn out well, ask the advice of the salesman at your local camera store. They should be able to tell you what you have been doing incorrectly — and they will tell you in English.

FILM IS generally more expensive in Europe, so take along as many rolls as possible. If you do buy film abroad, be sure to ask if it works in the same way as similar film made in this country. If your camera has a light meter and shutter adjustments, make sure to check on the ASA of any film you buy.

If you own a fairly new foreign-made camera, register it with the customs inspector on your way out of the country, or you may have to pay duty on your way back in.

It is wise to carry your camera in your hand luggage, and almost essential to carry film there. Occasionally customs inspectors will X-ray luggage before it goes into a plane or a terminal, and the X-rays will ruin any film.

WHEN YOU are photographing famous landmarks, do not try to duplicate the pictures on postcards. You will enjoy the pictures more if they are recognizable as your own. Look for a different angle. Put people in the picture.

When using a motion picture camera, make sure there is some movement in the thing you are photographing — even if it is just a leaf blowing in the breeze or a river flowing. It will make your films more interesting.

See your travel agent if you desire more specific information on particular places. Tell him that you are interested in photography, and would like his advice. If he can't give you first-hand advice himself, the chances are very good that someone on his staff can.

With a travel agent's aid, you won't be shooting in the dark — without a flash or time exposure, that is.

Parma Is Athens Of Italy

Ancient City Was Home To Many Greats

If you like good food and wine, music, art, history, typography, literature and flowers, you owe it to yourself to visit Parma, the Athens of Italy, so called, and the home of Verdi and Toscanini, of veal parmigiana, sparkling Lambrusco wine, Parmesan cheese, Parma hams and Panama violets.

It was also the domain of Marie Louise, second wife of Napoleon, who found sanctuary and romance there while her husband was in Elba.

Paganini died in Parma, and Stendhal chose it as the locale for his famous novel, "The Charterhouse of Parma" (though Parma has no Carthusian monastery;). Parma also has strong claims to Correggio, the greatest of fresco painters, who was not born there but who lived there most of his life and produced for the city his finest work.

Verdi, for that matter, was not born in Parma either but in the village of Roncole Verdi nearby. It is a short excursion for those who wish to see the modest stone cottage that was his birthplace, and the organ in the village church on which he used to play at the age of 11.

AMERICAN VISITORS to the cathedral in Parma will find an unexpected plaque and a touch of home over the tomb of Bodoni, the famous 18th Century printer.

It reads:

"In Enduring Recognition
Giambattista Bodoni
The Printers of the U. S.
XCMLVI"

Correggio's masterwork, "The Assumption," occupies the cupola of the same cathedral. "Fill the cupola with gold," said Titian, "and that will not be its money's worth," meaning that the fresco was worth more.

PARMA IS AN ancient city, founded by the Romans in 183 B.C., but its history has been — for Italy — a quiet one. Mainly, its claim to historical importance came during the Napoleonic period.

Bonaparte snatched it from the Bourbons and joined it to France. On his exile, the city fell to Marie Louise, who lavished so much attention and care upon it that even today she is revered almost as its patron saint. There are some, however, who credit her excellent rule to Count von Neipperg, who was not only her chancellor, but also her lover.

In modern times, Parma owes its fame to its opera house and its cantankerous opera buffs. If La Scala spells success to opera singers, the hardly less famous opera house of Parma, the Teatro Regio, built by Marie Louise, can mean disaster. Every opera-goer of Parma assumes the mantle of Verdi, and is not only harsh in his judgments but vociferous.

THE CLASSIC story concerning this has to do with a young singer who failed on a high note. "Get her off the stage," yelled ungallant members of the audience. But dissenting voices were heard. "No, make her stay until she gets it right."

Aside from its rude opera audiences, Parma is a gracious and polite city, particularly courteous to strangers. It has a fine museum of antiquities, a library that contains 400,000 books and manuscripts, including original editions of Bodoni, and many outstanding renaissance monuments.

It lies along a main road from Florence to Milan, with the super highway the Autostrada del Sole running close by, and merits a stopover. The natives take as much pride in their cuisine as the Bolognese and the native wine is better than excellent.

For A Destination That's Really Different

By MURRAY J. BROWN

Did you know Americans now may apply for State Department approval to travel to Communist China, North Vietnam, North Korea and Cuba?

The total ban on travel to these Communist countries was eased following a court ruling which, in effect, upheld the traditional right of freedom of travel by Americans except, for instance, in times of declared war.

The new policy has been noted in U.S. passports.

Formerly, the official government document stated flatly: "This passport is not valid for travel to or in the Communist controlled portions of China, Korea, Vietnam, or to or in Albania."

NOW, THEY READ on page 4:

"Unless otherwise specifically endorsed, this passport is not valid for travel to Communist controlled portions of China, Korea, Vietnam, or to, in, or through Cuba."

The ban on Communist Albania has been dropped, as were restrictions on travel to Egypt and Syria which were imposed in the wake of the 1967 war in the Middle East when those countries broke relations with the United States.

While the State Department may give special approval to Americans who can prove, among other things, that such visits are in the best interests of the United States, getting visas from Peking, Hanoi, Pyongyang and Havana may be something else again.

THE UNITED STATES does not maintain diplomatic relations with any of these Communist regimes and the visas would have to be obtained in some foreign country that does.

In addition, none of them, particularly Red China, has shown any indication it is prepared to roll out the welcome mat for the average American tourist.

Americans who do gain admission will be on their own, without any of the legal and other protection provided by U.S. diplomatic staffs in other countries in case of emergency.

IN SOME Communist countries, including Bulgaria and East Germany, Americans can get tourist visas at airports, seaports or border crossing points by presenting a valid U.S. passport. East Germany charges $2.50 and Bulgaria $1.

No visa is required for entry into Yugoslavia or Romania, only a U.S. passport. On the other hand, Poland requires not only a visa—fees range from $4 to $16.90—but proof that the visitor has paid in advance for his hotels and meals through the official Polish Travel Bureau, Orbis. Hungary charges $3.50 for a visa.

A TOURIST visa is required for travel to the Soviet Union, too. There is no charge, however, for the visa which is valid for up to three months. But it must be obtained in advance through a travel agency which has connections with Intourist, the official Soviet travel organization.

Hotel accommodations, meals and other travel expenses also must be prepaid to Intourist which handles all such arrangements in the Soviet Union.

THE KREMLIN, once forbidden to westerners, now opens its gates wide to tourists in Moscow. The citadel covers some 64 acres and is a vast museum of Russian history with its forts, cathedrals and palaces. Access to the Soviet Union is relatively easy for Americans in comparison to some other Iron Curtain countries.

Disaster And Its Aftermath Furnish Fodder For A Novel

"Damn California. No state has a right to be that important," says a nameless character on page 359 of Gentry's science-fictionish history — or is it historical science fiction?

By page 359, Gentry has let gigantic earthquakes dump everything west of the San Andreas Fault into the Pacific Ocean. He's wiped out 15 million or so of the 20 million Californians living in the nation's most-populated, most gaudy, most smoggy and most-almost everything else state.

When does all this happen? Within 12 months from now, gentle reader. Gentry knows because Edgar Cayce, the sleeping prophet, had told him so.

The loss of practically all that is California has a gigantic impact on the rest of the world. With Los Angeles, San Diego, Santa Barbara, Monterey and Santa Cruz slid into the ocean, the great central valleys flooded and San Francisco Bay Area a shambles surrounding a bay glutted with wreckage, Gentry's imagination runs riot — but very plausibly.

Grocery stores' bare shelves — California was the lushest agricultural area of the world — rationed gasoline — its oil fields and refineries are sorely missed—; stale television shows; Los Angeles talent is gone—; financial panic, all result from the disaster.

Gentry decides that mystery mogul Howard Hughes must know what he is doing, buying up huge chunks of Nevada real estate for what will become a major intercontinental air terminal and resort when Los Angeles and San Francisco's airports are gone. Seattle, he also sees as a ghoulish benificiary of tragedy, becoming the West Coast's only viable port.

Enough — I shan't give away any more the Gentry's visions.

It's the earlier two-thirds of the book that I find most fascinating.

Gentry takes advantage of the supposed destruction of the Golden State to view the "last days" leading up to its fall with a delightful, irreverent objectivity.

Anyone who has lived very long in California is more or less aware of the strange cults, the gaudy politics, the spicy history and the grubbing greed that have molded a state based mainly on the 49ers' mad rush westward in search of fortune. Gentry lovingly and sometimes cuttingly peels back some of the skin and muscles to give even more insight to some of the skeletons in closets of the Warrens, Christophers, Browns, Kerrs and lesser luminaries of the Golden State.

Adding to my enjoyment was discovery that Gentry and I are members of the same chapter of E Clampus Vitus, the great history-and-hijinks loving "secret" society that infests the Mother Lode whenever sounds the Hewgag.

Gentry is a connoisseur of the silly as well as the serious, and this makes his rather Jonathan Swiftian work even more understandable.

Gentry is a Bay Area writer; his other books on Californiana have been good, but none have I enjoyed so much as "The Last Days . . ."

The Bill Of Rights And Why It Was Written

". . . civil liberties are . . . an unnatural state for man or for society because in a short-range way they are essentially contrary to the self-interest of the majority. They require the majority to restrain itself, to say No to its immediate impulses, and to allow things to go on that threaten it."

As soon as we can understand the above lines we can understand the fervor of the advocates of "impeach Earl Warren," "curb the court," etc. It is the fervor of the frustrated majority faced with individual rights and liberties purposefully set outside of their control by the designers of the Constitution.

Part of the magnificence of the Constitution as a living document comes from the very realistic view of man in society that the Founding Fathers took. They recognized that men, particularly in political groups, were not always rational or reasonable. For this reason, says Dorsen, quoting Justice Jackson:

"The very purpose of a Bill of Rights was to withdraw certain subjects from the vicissitudes of political controversy, to place them beyond the reach of majorities and officials and to establish them as legal principles to be applied by the courts."

In this light it becomes easy to see why civil rights and civil liberties are always likely to be "controversial," simply because they tend to fly in the face of the majority will.

Professor Dorsen, director of the Arthur Garfield Hays Civil Liberties Program at New York University, has given the non-legal reader a behind-the-scenes view of how arguments are prepared for the Supreme Court.

"Frontiers of Civil Liberties" consists of briefs prepared for the American Civil Liberties Union as a friend of the court, symposia on vital current issues affecting civil rights, and analyses of other civil rights areas such as overlooked issues in the Army-McCarthy fracas, etc.

Dorsen says that his primary purpose is "to alert the public to the diversity, subtlety and importance of civil liberties problems in the U.S."

His thoughtful book will bring many of us up to date as to how the continuing struggle for "liberty and justice for all" is going and against what odds. Unfortunately, "Frontiers of Civil Liberties" will not be read by those who most need to understand the vital role that the Bill of Rights plays in preserving a free society.

The Collapse Of France Told By British Historian

THE IDES OF MAY by John Williams; Knopf, 386 pages, $7.95. Reviewed by Bob Raab.

On May 15, 1940, Adolf Hitler's mobile Panzer divisions and dive-bombing Stuka aircraft struck the armies of France along 90 miles of the Meuse River in Belgium. Within two days the center of the French line was shattered.

"Where is the strategic reserve?" Winston Churchill asked Gen. Maurice Gamelin, military chief of the army. "None," replied Gamelin.

"I was dumbfounded," Churchill recorded. He realized then, in this May 16 meeting in Paris, that France was doomed and England alone must fight Germany.

"The Ides of May" is English military historian John Williams' account of the stunning military and political collapse of France in the spring of 1940. The "you-are-there" narrative is spliced to flashbacks which illuminate the events.

Williams is not timid about assessing the reasons for the fall of France. They are (1) an army and a people depleted in manpower and spirit as an aftermath of World War I; (2) archaic military strategy and tactics, and (3) political corruption in high places.

There are French heroes. Premier Paul Reynaud emerges as a resolute, resourceful leader. Gen. Maxime Weygand, replacing the inept Gamelin, does well in the face of a military debacle. Brave troops of the 25th Division sacrifice themselves for the sake of 338,000 British and French troops trapped at Dunkirk. A lesser figure, Gen. Charles de Gaulle, is a courageous, effective division commander at the front. He then goes on to oppose surrender, escapes to England, and organizes the Free French resistance.

Williams presents evidence that Leopold, king of the Belgians, is a maligned figure. His seemingly abrupt surrender was condemned by Churchill and Reynaud as perfidy, but facts are given that refute this.

The tragedy of the fall of France in June, 1940, is described with clinical perception. The passions, intrigues and factions within France as it collapsed make grim reading.

Williams is a 60-year-old who served with the British Army in World War I. He is the author of "Mutiny, 1917"—an account of mutinies in the French army. "Ides of May" is his first book published in the United States. It is worth a place on your bookshelf; Williams is authoritative, trenchant and lucid.

Helen Bottel Writes About Problems Of Teen-Agers

TO TEENS WITH LOVE by Helen Bottel; Doubleday, 276 pages, $4.95. Reviewed by Grace Henderson.

In a folksy approach to teen-agers' problems, Helen Bottel, syndicated and Independent-Journal columnist, writes that "life is like a Chinese puzzle" and adds that if all problems in all households were related to fitting that puzzle together in proper perspective, life would be less complicated.

"You'll learn that every lock has a key, and the puzzles which seem impossible can often be cracked with this key phrase: 'I'm responsible for my own life. I'll make the very best of it!' " she writes.

Warm humor comes through giving the reader the impression the Sacramento home of the six Bottels must be one place where the solution to the Chinese puzzle has been achieved. This is accomplished in spite of the tendency to slip into written lectures in what Mrs. Bottel refers to as a "teen guidebook to better life."

The author's sincerity of purpose is apparent and must be acknowledged even by those not agreeing with all her answers to the problems. Mrs. Bottel strives a little too hard to make her points and her contrived colloquilisms sometimes miss the target. But the fact that an adult is dealing with teen-age problems and listening to their observations is in itself a commendable feature.

HELEN BOTTEL
Humor and sincerity

THE BOOK PAGES

Southwest Settlers, California Indians

By DON KEOWN

RANCH ON THE RUIDOSO: The story of a Pioneer Family in New Mexico, by Wilbur Coe; Knopf, 279 pages, $8.95.

ALMOST ANCESTORS: THE FIRST CALIFORNIANS by Theodora Kroeber and Robert F. Heizer; Sierra Club, 169 pages, $15.

"Ranch on the Ruidoso" by Wilbur Coe holds both a generalized and a specialized interest for students of western history and lore.

It is of general interest in that it presents an unusually broad and detailed picture of Southwestern range life over a period of nearly a century.

At the same time, it offers a considerable body of fresh information about one of the specific chapters in western history with which buffs have been most enamored — the Lincoln County War.

In recreating the story of his prominent pioneer New Mexico family, Wilbur Coe relates from his own experiences, and from what he was told by father and grandfather. The reader is thus enabled to relive a facet of American life that even today has left its rugged imprint upon those regions of the West that are still rural in character.

It is sometimes difficult for today's city-dweller with his many conveniences and comforts to realize just how his predecessors could have existed in the earlier West amid dangers and hardships, and have taken not only satisfaction but genuine enjoyment as well from that rigorous life.

But Wilbur Coe makes it plain that they did so. And the answer seems to lie in their sense of solid accomplishment — in knowing that they were building. And that what they were building was something worthwhile and enduring.

Sometimes the reader may feel that he is being told more than he really cares to know about the personal affairs and habits of three generations of Coes as they lived upon their land. On the other hand, what is trivia to one man is an obsession with another. Thus we found the lengthy descriptions of apple-growing and marketing far more engrossing than the chapters dealing with cattle-raising, which after all was the principal business of the ranch. Accounts of the part music has played in Coe ranch life struck another responsive chord with this reader.

All this, however, will pale for many western buffs alongside the opportunity to learn more about the controversial, much romanticized Lincoln County War.

Throughout their residence in New Mexico, the Coes have been substantial, law-respecting citizens. The bloody feud between the McSween-Tunstall and Murphy-Dolan crowds, however, brought about the one occasion when they fell from the grace of the law. It was all because of the friendship George and Frank Coe felt for one William Bonney.

Because of their affection for young Bonney, a part-time hand on their ranch, the Coes were drawn into the conflict on the McSween-Tunstall side.

As Billy the Kid, Bonney, of course, became one of the legendary heroes of the Old West, pictured as something of an American Robin Hood on horseback. Then, in more recent years, the pendulum swung. It became customary to portray Billy as a sneaky, cowardly little psychotic of moronic intelligence. Wilbur Coe attempts to restore some sense of balance.

The William Bonney known and admired by Frank and George Coe was a likeable youth of considerable courage, charm and intelligence, he says, with an almost fanatical sense of loyalty toward his friends.

True, the Coes were partisans. And Wilbur Coe no doubt writes as such. But he also writes from a more knowledgeable position than have most of the Bonney detractors.

For kill, Bonney did, generally out of thirst for vengeance for the deaths of his own friends. Sometimes lawmen were his victims. But it is important to remember that the dividing line then between sheriff and outlaw was a thin one, and many a wearer of the star had a shady past as a gunman, (Indeed, Hendry Brown, next to Bonney the most infamous of the McSween-Tunstall gunslingers, rode out of New Mexico ahead of the posse to our own Kansas hometown of Caldwell, there to become its marshal and to rule that bawdy cattle town with an iron hand until, one day, restless, he rode over to neighboring. Medicine Lodge with his deputy and two cowpokes to rob the bank. All four died by gunfire or by the rope. And Caldwell went hunting for a new marshal.)

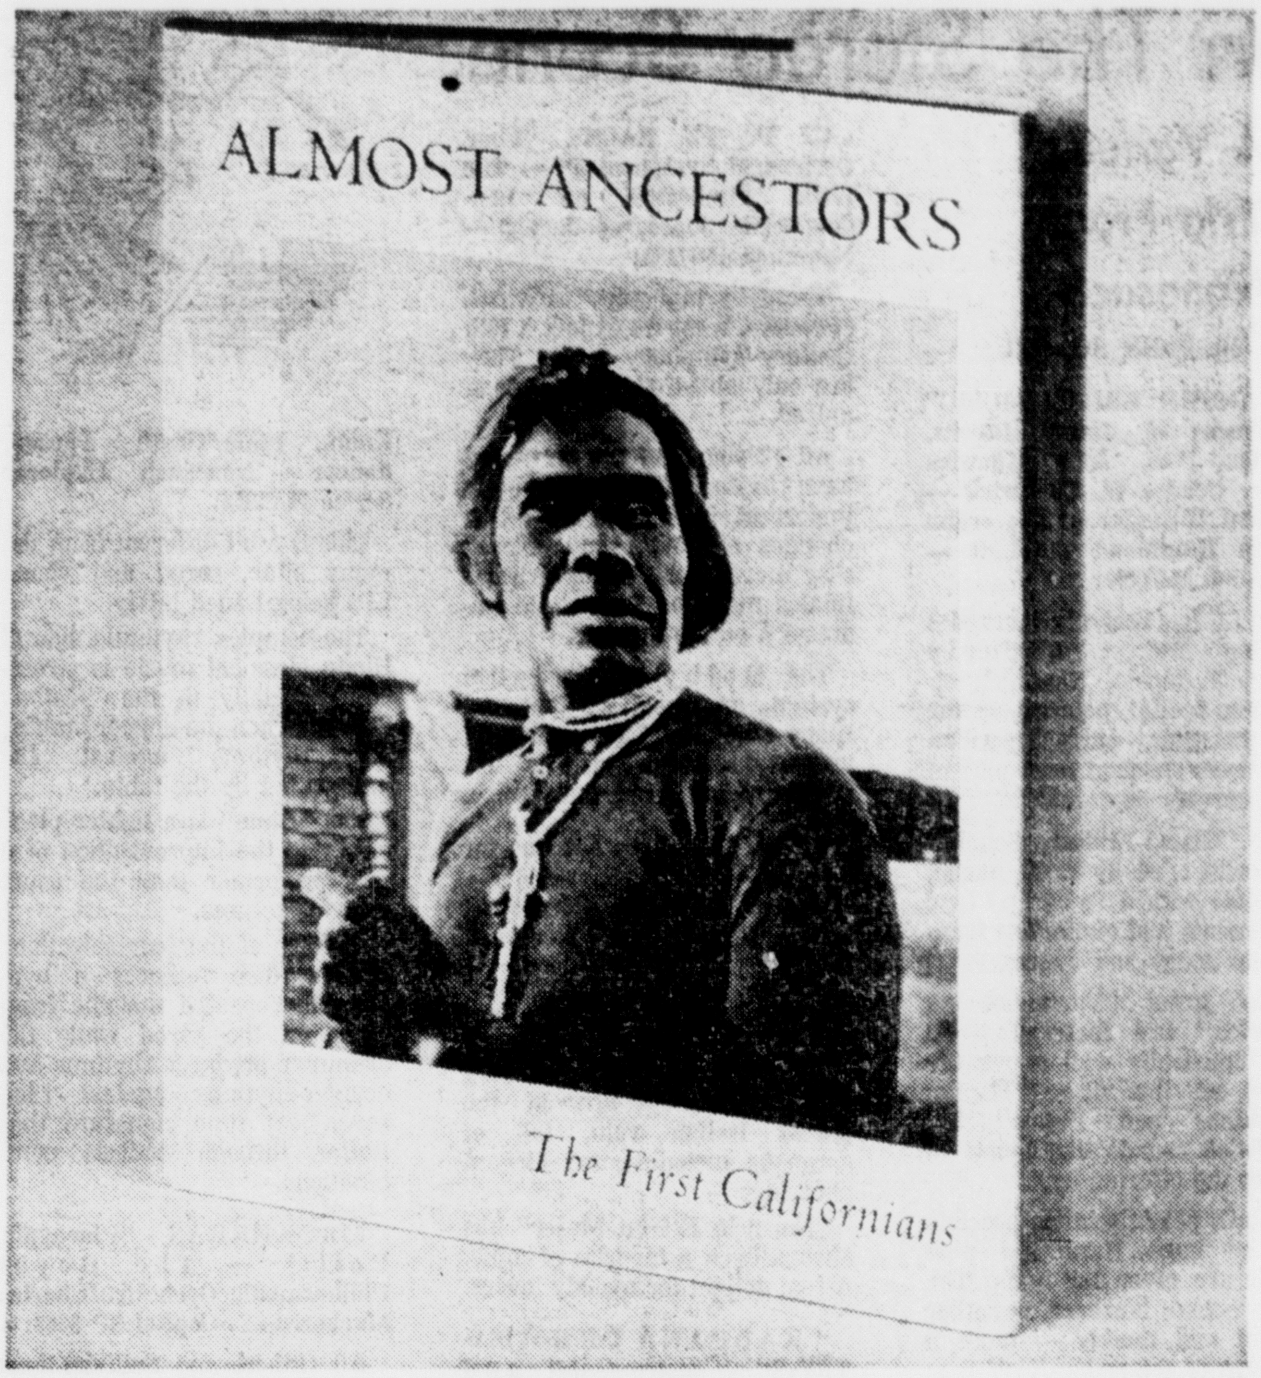
It is typical of Coe's vitality that one hardly notices that he has lived the hard and active life of cowboy and rancher crippled since early boyhood by a paralysis that did not dim his enthusiasm or limit his accomplishments. That, one realizes, is the kind of man the rigors of ranch life forged and molded.



"ON THESE FACES appears the signature of strength of spirit that has transcended suffering . . . ," says the Sierra Club of its collection of photographs of California Indians published under the title "Almost Ancestors," with text by Theodora Kroeber and Robert F. Heizer, detailing California's shameful mistreatment of its original residents.

"GENOCIDE" is one of the ugliest words in man's vocabulary.

Yet it has been practiced not so very long ago as history measures time right here in the very land where we now live in such affluence. We are confronted with the bitter record of that virtual elimination of a race in "Almost Ancestors: The First Californians," a Sierra Club book written by Theodora Kroeber, the author of "Ishi in Two Worlds," and anthropologist Robert F. Heizer.

Along with the text in which the two co-authors discuss with sympathy and sensitivity the histories, the way of life and the tragic fate of the 50 California tribes, the book also contains 117 original photographs of California Indians, dating back to 1851 and taken from the archives of the Southwest Museum and the Lowie Museum at the University of California.

These are pictures that focus upon the proud visages and erect carriages of a once free people. But suffering and bewilderment also show through as extinction closes in upon them.

These are not the scintillating color scenics one has become accustomed to in Sierra Club books. The photos are in black and white. Some are faded. And sometimes the negatives have been scarred. Why reproduce them, then?

Because, the authors tell us, it is the only photographic record of its kind available. And even with its flaws, it still tells us more about the features and expressions of individual Indians than do the available paintings and drawings.

Modocs, Yokuts, Mohaves, Miwoks, Yuroks, Pomos, Monaches, and many others, they are all there, with faces that mirror a quiet dignity and courage that reproaches the white man for the irreparable harm he has done his red brethern with his greed and thoughtlessness.

It reminds us that genocide isn't always the evil scheme of a madman such as Adolf Hitler. Right now, on this earth, man is doing his utmost to wipe out other groups of his own kind, as well as entire species of other creatures.

Mrs. Kroeber and Heizer have written a book that not only fills a yawning gap in our historical records, but which also confronts us with our past transgressions and cries out for us to mend our ways.

BALLANTINE Books has collaborated with the Sierra Club in publishing a paperback version of "The Sierra Club Wilderness Handbook," revised edition. Prepared originally a decade ago for the conservation group's own membership and since updated, the handbook has enjoyed a wide popularity as a camping-packing guide for lovers of the outdoors, with its invaluable, carefully tested advice on supplies, equipment, skills, techniques, planning, site selection, cooking, etc. This new version sells for a bargain 95 cents.

Sleuths & Suspense

Hardly a world-beater, this is nevertheless a quite acceptable suspense novel by one of that genre's more prolific writers.

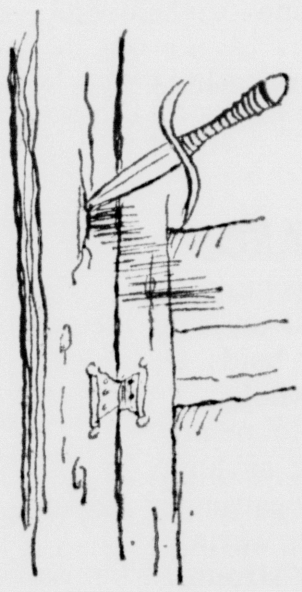
She discovers, however, that its previous occupant was murdered. And there is every indication that more violence will ensue — possibly with Norma as the victim.



Veteran readers of "who-dunits" will have no great difficulty determining rather early who is behind it all. But there is a nice touch of romance, and sufficient suspense and excitement to hold your interest.

On The Stereo Scene

A Varied Trio From Nonesuch

By JOHN SUNIER

"YANKEE ORGAN MUSIC" — Works of James Hewitt, Charles Ives, John Knowles Paine, George W. Chadwick — Richard Ellsasser at the organ of the Hammond Museum — Nonesuch H-71200:

The LP has recently sparked a growing interest in early American music. Nonesuch offers this recital, pointing up the fact that many early American composers spent at least part of their careers as organists.

Ives' great "Variations on America" are featured — a work musically well above the others on this disc. "Theme, Variations and Fugue" by Chadwick sounds like music to collect the offering by.

Details of registration possible on the huge Hammond pipe organ are given for buffs. The organ sound, however, is rather distant and muddy — more a problem of the organ itself than the engineering of the recording, I would say.

C. P. E. BACH: "Four Orchestral Symphonies" — The Little Orchestra of London/Leslie Jones, conductor — Nonesuch H-71180:

These "symphonies" are not, of course, what we expect a 19th Century symphony to be. They are only about 11 minutes long apiece.

All 12 voices of the orchestra have independent and equally important parts. Dramatic changes of key, richly colored slow movements, and whirlwind finales make an immediate impression on the listener.

The Dolby noise-reduction system, employed on this and many other new Nonesuch LPs, insures a high degree of freedom from background noise.

ROSSINI: "Three Sonatas for Strings — Nos. 1, 5, and 6" — Toulouse Chamber Orchestra/Louis Auriacombe — Nonesuch H-71179:

Rossini's six sonatas are among the most beautiful works ever penned for string orchestra. They are in the purest Italian vein, full of gorgeous melodies and elegant phrasing.

"No. 5 in E Flat Major" has always been a favorite of mine. A real delight for melody lovers.

"KALPANA IMPROVISATIONS" — Instrumental and Dance Music of India — Mrinal Sen Gupta, sarod/Lateef Ahmed Kahn, tabla/Tirath Ajmani, dancer — Nonesuch Explorer Series H-72022:

The "Dhun" is a lighter piece closer to the improvisation of a jazz performer than the usual raga structures.

All Gilbert and Sullivan fans will want to snap up this bubbling ballet score based on the buoyant melodies of the two venerable English satirists. It is a veritable patchwork quilt of tunes taken from nearly all of the Gilbert and Sullivan operettas. The ballet scenario is detailed on the liner for those interested, as well as hints as to which operettas the various tunes came from. Good stereo sound.

A TRAMP ON THE MOON

Right away we knew this must have been our man,
We watched him as he staggered near the crater.

Right away we knew this must have been our man,
This tramp with a face red as tomat'a:

This man, who left the earth behind,
Left so that he could get off wine . . .

Came up here and started on moonshine!

A House of Cards serves various purposes,
(Though the foundation is built on solid excuses.)
For just a while this house can hold
The fragments of a family, whole.
Just long enough for hearts to mend,
A House of Cards offers safe asylum.
When this house crumbles no cause for alarm—
During its time it kept us all warm.
It kept us together as we grew strong,
If this Card House is fallible, I

'Tis The Season For Mold And Mildew

Handyman's Page

Marinites are entitled to a bit of smugness when they read in their newspapers how easterners are battling winter elements.

No snow shovels or automobile chains for us.

Yet we are not without our climatic problems. And one of them is the highly undesirable condition of mildew that too often invades our home.

The combination of winter wetness, closed windows and interior heating produce conditions under which the tiny fungi plants called molds produce mildew most prolifically. Dampness, warmth, lack of air movement, poor light — all the factors are there.

AND WHEN they reach certain proportions the mold spores, which are always in the air around us, suddenly begin to multiply and to settle upon the objects from which they derive their food.

They become apparent with the appearance of that familiar whitish growth we call mildew.

In its initial stages, mildew merely has an unpleasant appearance. That's the time to get rid of it. If allowed to enlarge, it causes discoloration and rotting, and emits a musty odor.

FAVORITE targets are wood, leather, paper and nearly all fabrics except such manmade materials as nylon, acetate, polyester and acrylic.

When mildew is discovered on any wooden part of the house, the area should be scrubbed with any household cleaning agent that contains trisodium phosphate. For stubborn cases, make a solution of three ounces of trisodium phosphate, one quart of household bleach, one ounce of powdered detergent and three quarts of lukewarm water. After scrubbing, rinse the treated portion with clear water.

To prevent a recurrence, coat the area with a mildew-resistant paint.

CLOTHING OR household fabrics which have been attacked by mildew should be taken outside the house, brushed thoroughly and left in the sun as long as possible.

Should the material be stained, wash with soap or detergent and water, rinse well and dry in the sun. If the stain isn't thoroughly gone, repeat the process. And if it still hangs on, then use a commercial bleach or a mixture of lemon juice and salt — assuming that the fabric is colorfast.

Non-washable articles, of course, must be dry-cleaned, as housewives know.

TO REMOVE mildew from leather good, make a solution of equal parts of denatured alcohol and cold water. Soak a clean cloth in the mixture, then rub the affected area. Dry outdoors or, if this is not practical, in the path of an electric fan. This usually will work, but if traces of mildew remain, wash the leather with a mild soap or detergent or a soap containing a fungicide.

To prevent mildew, leather goods should be polished with a wax dressing.

A frequent cause of mildew in clothes closets is the habit of hanging wet garments in them. Always dry an article of clothing wet by rain or perspiration before putting it in the closet.

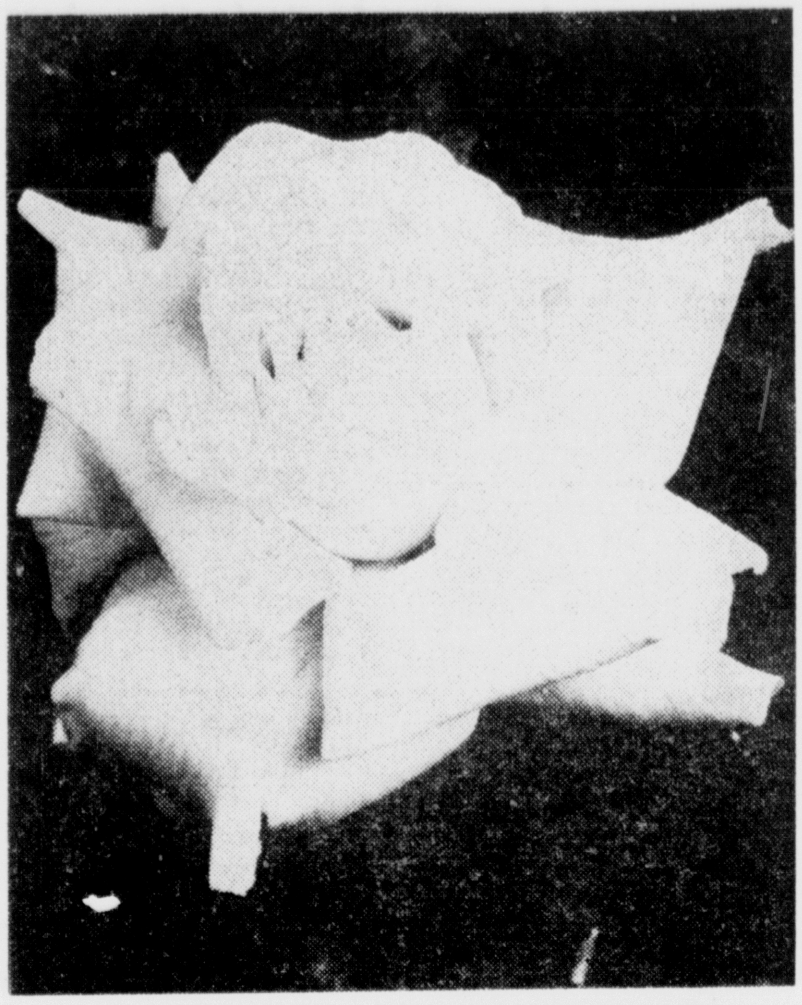
All-Star Roses For '69

The "glamour roses" among the new introductions each year are always the All-America Selections award winners.

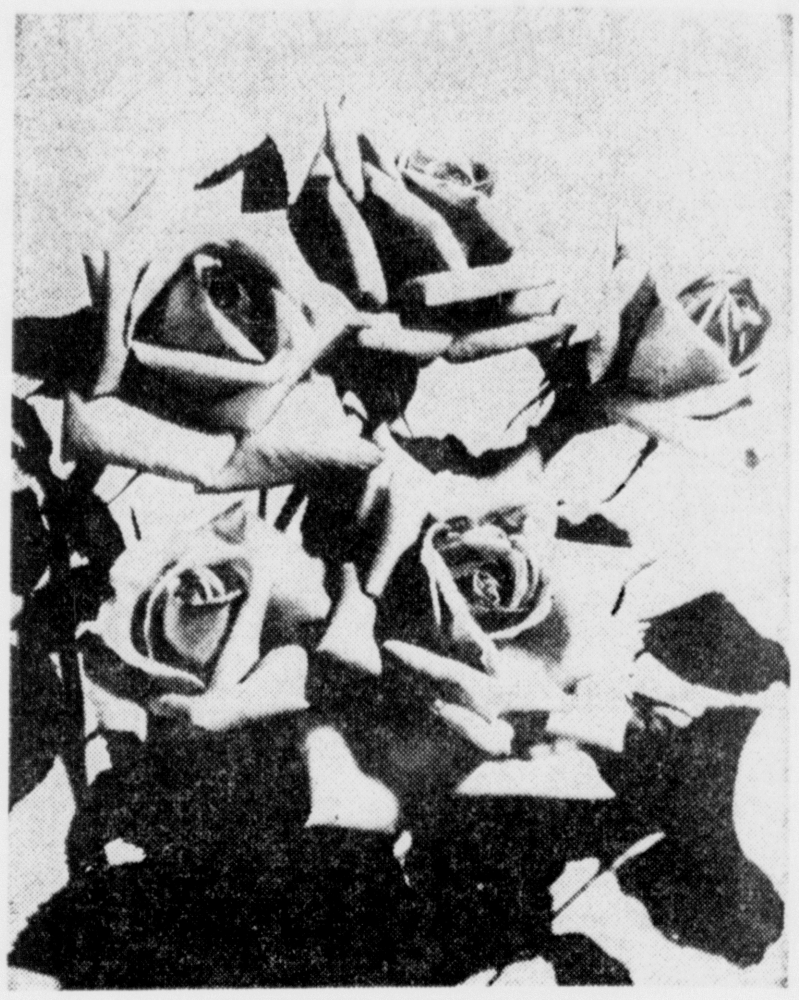
For 1969, there are four new roses so honored.

They were chosen from a huge field of candidates for their beauty, fragrance, shape and durability.

Expert rosarians rate the quartet the strongest All-America "team" to be produced by hybridizers in many years, and predict that they will dominate rose gardens in the U.S. in the years ahead.



PASCALI, WHITE HYBRID TEA



GENE BOERNER, PINK FLORIBUNDA

PASCALI, THE whitest of white hybrid teas, produces a vigorous growing, erect, well shaped and well clothed plant, which is always a good start for any rose. The pristine flowers of this "Paschal" or Easter rose, are remarkably beautiful in form, regardless of the weather. The graceful urn-shaped buds open to medium - size blooms which hold their high, bud - like centers exceedingly well—even until the outer petals drop.

The flowers are usually made up of 35 to 40 petals and give forth just the slightest breath of fragrance.

Pascali, a hybrid of Louis Lens of Belgium, not only has won All-America honors, but in addition earned a gold medal at The Hague, a silver medal at Baden-Baden, first certificates at Rome and Paris and certificates of merit at Geneva, Madrid, London and Vienna. Its parentage is Queen Elizabeth by White Butterfly.

COMANCHE, SCARLET GRANDIFLORA

ANGEL FACE, LAVENDER FLORIBUNDA

GENE BOERNER is an exceptionally free-flowering, clear pink floribunda. This new AARS award winner remains in bloom constantly from early spring until the late hard frosts of autumn.

The medium, long and pointed buds unfurl into clean, full flowers, usually about three and a half inches across and of about 35 petals. The blooms are borne in clusters and often on long (for a floribunda) cutting stems of 10 to 12 inches.

The deep, rich pink flowers of this rose are most attractively set off by a background of thick, bright green foliage. The handsome plant is upright, symmetrical, well branched and covered with blooms that even boast a light fragrance — a fringe benefit added to the many beauties of this rose.

This winner, the only pink rose to receive an All-America award for 1969, was named in honor of the late Eugene S. Boerner, longtime plant researcher and rose hybridizer. More than 160 of his originations have been patented and many have won All-America awards.

COMANCHE is a bold, new grandiflora with large, high-centered blooms of brilliant scarlet. The long pointed buds unfold to fully double four-inch flowers, of 50 petals. The blooms are borne on long, strong stems on a tall, well branched plant.

Sometimes the large blooms are borne singly, but more often three or more occur in fiery candelabras of color on stems excellent for cutting. Comanche is almost continuously in bloom.

The plant is tall and strong, bushy and vigorous, reaching five feet in height and producing an abundance of colorful blooms for cutting and garden decoration. The bright green, leathery foliage, very resistant to disease, well covers the entire plant. As a striking contrast, the new leaves are a rich maroon.

The perfect buds, together with outstanding form and substance in the full open flowers provide exhibition material of the first order. For home use the combination of bold, scarlet blooms and a vigorous plant, makes Comanche a top choice for planting in all areas. This grandiflora will provide bright accents in the garden, showy ever-blooming hedges, brilliant scarlet splotches of color in home foundation planting against dark- or light-colored buildings and in rose garden beds, its fiery beauty will attract attention from afar.

Spartan and (Carrousel by Happiness) are the parents of this 1969 All-America award winner and their offspring is a rose that everyone will enjoy.

ANGEL FACE is new, unique, unusual and totally lovely—the first lavender rose ever to win an All-America award. Ruby buds with just a hint of lavender slowly unfurl their petals until, when about one - third open, they take the form of a lovely lavender chalice.

The flowers open to fully double, truly lavender roses of perfect form with petal edges curved, wavy, ruffled and touched by a suffusion of royal ruby. The blooms of Angel Face are large, four inches or more, abundant, and come in clusters on medium-length stems, lasting for several days. As a finishing touch that spells perfection, the flowers are blessed with a rich, old-fashioned perfume that will fill a room with true rose fragrance.

The long-lasting, clear lavender flowers are an arranger's delight, as they provide an opportunity to create striking compositions in a totally new rose.

Medium to low growing and almost as broad as tall, the plants of Angel Face are evenly branched, well shaped bushes, deserving a place in the foreground of any garden. The plants are hardy, of good vigor and produce continuous bloom. The deep, firm green foliage is touched with copper, while the very new growth is an attractive contrast in maroon.

It's Time For Rose Planting And Pruning

The Newest Bareroot Stock Is In At The Nurseries

For Marin rosarians, it's the busiest time of the year.

If they aren't busy pruning those rose bushes already growing in their gardens, they are purchasing new bareroot stock and planting these for their future pleasure.

The California Association of Nurserymen has some suggestions, both as to buying and planting.

It pays, the nurserymen say, to select the best bareroot stock while you are at it. Roses are graded No. 1, No. 1½ and No. 2, with No. 1 being the best. A No. 2 grade rose is best ignored.

WHAT YOU should look for is a well-formed bush with at least three strong canes or branches. Only one strong cane is not enough.

Beware the shriveled looking rose bush as well as that with sickly-looking canes. Think twice, too, before purchasing a "bargain rose," especially if it is sold without a variety name.

There is always a lively demand for the new All-American roses — this year the Angel Face, the Gene Boerner, the Comanche and the Pascali. Consequently, they go fast. If you want one, then you had better shop early.

BUT KEEP in mind that there are many fine roses in addition to the 1969 All-Americans, both new and old, some of them past winners of All-American honors. Bewitched, for instance, is an utterly captivating award-winner of a couple of years ago.

As for planting: Select a site that offers good sunlight at least half the day. A well-drained location is another requisite, but this can be attained at planting time with the judicious use of soil conditioners and planter mixes.

The planting hole should be deeply cultivated and large enough to enable you to spread out the roots—about 18 inches across. Never jam or cram the roots into the ground.

IN THE HOLE, make a mound in the shape of a cone and spread the roots so that they settle over this mound.

At the base of the rose bush, where the canes bunch out from the shank, you will find a swelling that looks like a thumbnail. This is called the bud union. In planting, it should wind up about an inch above the final soil level.

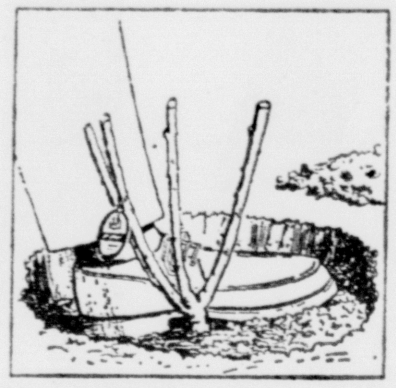
With the level determined, fill in around the roots with your mixture of soil and planting mix. After the hole is completely filled, use your feet to firm the soil so as to eliminate air pockets.

FINALLY, MAKE a basin around the bush. And if the bud union has been lowered during the planting, scrape the soil away from it while you are making the basin. This is for irrigating purposes. Fill the basin with water immediately, both to settle the soil and to keep the roots moist.

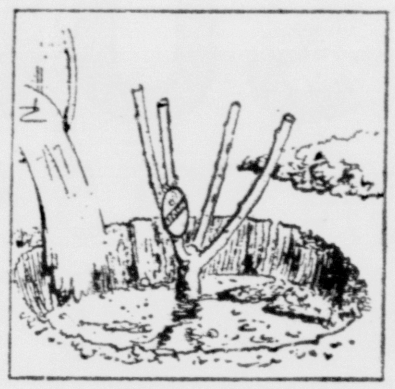
In some areas, rosarians mound the soil to cover the bud union temporarily, to prevent drying out and to protect against extreme cold.

Most Marin nurserymen, however, feel that this is an unnecessary precaution in our area, and that the bud union is best left exposed from the outset.

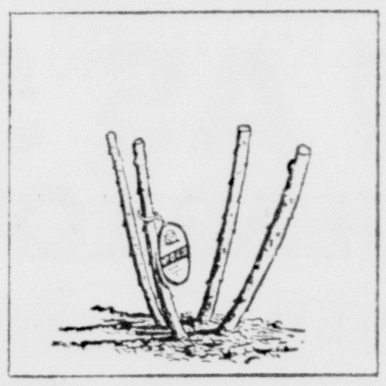
TO PLANT a rose, begin by preparing and fertilizing the bed. Dig a hole 15 to 18 inches wide and equally deep. Add quart of peat moss mixed with a half cup of fertilizer and mix well with soil. Form a mound in center and position rose on mound.



SEE THAT roots are spread naturally and that bud union is level with the ground. Scatter several inches of loose soil over roots and firm well with feet.



FILL remainder of the hole with water and allow to drain. See that bud union remains at ground level.



NOW, FILL remainder of hole with soil and tamp. Leave basin for irrigating, and apply the first watering.

Don't Neglect The Old Bushes In Your Garden

Now about that rose-pruning:

January is the month in Marin, and your purpose is to encourage your roses to produce their best, both as to quality and quantity.

Not all experts agree on all facets of pruning a rose. But they are unanimous in the opinion that the weaker the bush, the more severe the pruning. This forces new shoots from the base of the plant that should prove superior to the weak ones you have cut away.

Furthermore, shorter canes simplify later general rose care chores.

THE OLD IDEA that all rose bushes should be pruned to within a few inches of the ground has fallen into general disfavor, however, thanks largely to the development of stronger hybrid varieties.

Now the rules are less rigid. Generally, it is said, the length of the cane should be determined by the nature of the variety of the rose. For instance, one with a natural upright habit and unusually strong canes, such as Sutter's Gold, can be left with canes up to two feet in length.

The type of rose is another determining factor. Climbing roses, very popular in Marin, are only thinned. Most other roses are trimmed back to five or six canes of varying length.

SHOULD MORE severe pruning of climbing roses seem advisable, wait until after the heavy spring blooming period. This permits ample time for new growth to develop for the following season.

The experts generally agree, too, that center growth should be discouraged. An open center attained by eliminating shoots coming out from the middle of the plant allows the remaining canes to receive sufficient sunshine and air.

The pruner should practice great care in selecting the places for his cuts. Each cut should be made one-quarter of an inch above a bud that faces away from the shrub's center.

YET ANOTHER matter for consideration when pruning is that a rose bush cane generally will bear at its maximum anywhere from five to 10 years. After that, it has seen its day and should be removed in favor of younger canes with their best years still ahead of them.

If the grower has a cane that he knows is in its last year, he should pick as its replacement one of the strong young shoots coming up from the ground and tip it once to cause it to become yet more sturdy. Then, in his mid-winter pruning, he can eliminate the worn-out cane, and he will have a ready-made substitute to take over.

While generalities are possible in rose culture, it is also true that specific varieties have special needs. Your nurseryman is a good source for advice as to the special attention required for your particular varieties.

A CHECKLIST FOR GARDENERS OF MARIN

✔ Roses aren't the only shrub available now in the inexpensive bareroot form for easy planting. A wide variety of shrubs and fruit and shade trees await you in the nurseries in their easily-handled dormant state.

✔ With the passing of each week, new varieties of camellias come into bloom. Keep up with this parade of color at your nursery and select those whose flowers most appeal to you.

✔ Keep your Christmas gift plants well watered. Some like an occasional airing on the patio or before an open window.

✔ Winter-time dormancy enables plants to withstand a stronger spray that destroys mites, scales, aphis and other pests effectively without injury to trees or shrubs.

✔ Weigela is a good bet for garden color during the cooler months, and is available in nurseries now. You may also come upon the somewhat similar but less familiar Beauty Bush or Kolkwitzia with its white-pink flowers on long arching branches.

HARDLY SEEMS possible, does it, that Gladys Ormphby, left, the misbegotten old baggage of "The Rown and Martin Laugh-In" television show, and attractive and charming

Gets to a Major Cause of Hemorrhoids

Now! Most complete 3-way relief!

Important development: unlike every other hemorrhoid product, Counternoid™ works in 3 ways:
1. Lessens pain fast.
2. Coats, soothes and protects injured tissue.
3. Gets to a major cause of hemorrhoids: painful hard constipation.

In hospital X-ray tests, doctors have demonstrated that the exclusive Counternoid formulation with DSS₃₆™ penetrates in minutes to the top of the rectal area to soften the stool and ease the bowel movement, to make natural healing possible.

Remember: Counternoid. For temporary relief of minor hemorrhoid troubles. The most complete 3-way relief you can get without a prescription or without surgery. At all drug counters.

At 69, Fred Astaire Isn't Even About To Quit Show Business

By PATRICIA E. DAVIS

If it's any comfort to the judge of that 1932 screen test, all is forgiven.

"I didn't like very much what I saw at the time myself," said the 69-year-old smoothie with a grin. "I looked like a stick."

And with 62 years of show business, 35 movies and two generations of dancing partners behind him, Fred Astaire still isn't ready to call it quits.

"RETIREMENT IS not my world," he said in an interview, leaning back in his chair, relaxed, cheerful and looking 20 years younger. "I tried it once for two years and was just plain bored. I want to keep busy."

Astaire recently completed his 35th movie, "Finian's Rainbow" with Petula Clark for Warner Bros.-Seven Arts, and certainly shows no sign of creaky joints.

"I don't know how long I'll keep on performing," he said, "or how long I'll want to. When the desire stops, then I'll stop. I haven't had any physical signal to stop, so as long as I want to keep on performing I will."

The brother-sister act went on to appear in several Broadway musicals and broke up in 1932 after the closing of "The Band Wagon" when Adele retired to marry Lord Charles Cavendish.

When the partnership dissolved Astaire overcame that bad screen test and was teamed with Ginger Rogers in their unforgettable musicals of the 1930s and '40s, including "Top Hat" and "The Barkleys of Broadway."

HIS DANCING partners have always been the day's screen darlings — Eleanor Powell, Rita Hayworth, Judy Garland, Leslie Caron, Audrey Hepburn, Cyd Charisse, to name but a few.

Astaire, a perfectionist, recalled that he often was enraged by his partners' costumes. But he survived dancers who sewed lead weights into their flowing sleeves to make them stand out and nearly kayoed him, wore four-inch-high stiletto heeled shoes that cut his chins, ostrich feathered gowns that shed and made him sneeze and long full skirts he could trip on.

"Oh well," he sighed, "perfection is something you can only try for and very seldom get. I'm never satisfied."

BUT FRED THE hoofer is still nagged by Fred the actor who's like more straight dramatic roles.

"It's a challenge," he noted. "I was very proud of 'On the Beach,' " That first dramatic part also won critics' praise.

"Of course I won't give up dancing roles," he said. "I can't dance something unless I really want to. I don't beg a director to 'please let me dance, I want to dance.' I just wait for a great vehicle to do my dancing in. 'Finian' is like that. It's a nice picture without being icky."

WHEN NOT TRAVELING, Astaire lives in the Los Angeles home he shared with his wife, Phyllis, who died of cancer in 1954. He has a son, Fred Jr., and a daughter, Ava.

He relaxes by golfing, playing the piano or drums and raising race horses.

"Horses are my favorite topic," he said. "Mention horses and I'm off and running."

He has three horses now, including a filly named Sharp Curve which he hopes will be as successful as an earlier Astaire horse named Triplicate that won $245,000.

ALTHOUGH HE has tripped across the world's movie screens for more than 30 years, and is chairman of the board of a chain of 100 dancing schools bearing his name, he claims he loathes social dancing.

"Ballroom dancing bores me," he said. "I just don't dance for an evening's entertainment. I just don't go out dancing socially and I avoid parties. I got tired of that a long, long time ago."
